Marcucci Gets Fire Chief Badge

Robert E. Marcucci, an 11-year veteran with the San Rafael Fire Department and son of a former San Anselmo fire chief, was named San Rafael fire chief last night. (Other San Rafael city council stories, page 28.)

The San Rafael City Council voted unanimously to accept the recommendation of its fire commission that Marcucci be appointed to succeed Vance Trivett who resigned last month after 11 years as chief.

Marcucci, not present at the council meeting said later he was "apprehensive" about taking over for Trivett. "He was a big man with big shoes. It's going to be tough to fill them," he said.

Marcucci's appointment was effective immediately at a salary of $1,511 a month.

ROBERT E. MARCUCCI

Marcucci, 33, of 259 Center Street, has been one of three battalion chiefs with the San Rafael department. His brother, Marty, is a lieutenant with the San Anselmo Fire Department.

Their father, Nello E. Marcucci, served as San Anselmo fire chief for 33 years, retiring in 1963. He died in 1967.

The new chief's mother, Helen Y. Marcucci, lives in San Anselmo and is manager of the Corte Madera office of Golden West Savings and Loan Association.

Marcucci was born in Ross and graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School in 1956. He received a diploma in fire science from the College of Marin in 1969 and has served as an instructor in the college's fire science program.

He started his career early, working summers during high school as a helper for the Marin County Fire Department. After working two years for the Marin Municipal Water District, Marcucci joined the San Rafael Fire Department Sept. 1, 1960. He was named battalion chief in October 1967.

Plea For School Is Rejected

By PAT ANGLE

The Sausalito School District Board took sweeping action against the Marin City Learning Center and its sympathizers last night and drew an angry response from most of the approximately 50 persons who attended the special meeting.

By a 3-0 vote, with trustees Nathaniel Johnson and Jerry L. Whitcomb absent, the board voted to deny "unequivocally" the center's request to use the Manzanita School in Marin City for classes.

On the recommendation of Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg, the trustees also agreed to fire two teachers' aides, declaring them in "conflict of interest" because they are members of the learning center's board of directors. The center, with approximately 55 students (kindergarten through eighth grade) was established by Marin City parents who were dissatisfied with the education their children were receiving in Sausalito schools.

The board also accepted "with gratitude" the resignation of another educational aide, Susanna Lowry, who said she was "fed up with (the board's) political games" and its penchant "for backing people up against the wall."

And trustee Robert A. Thompson threatened to bring legal action against Special Assistant James T. Toliver Jr., charging that as president of the learning center board, Toliver "may well be" interfering with his contractual relations with the district and guilty of "unprofessional conduct." (Although Toliver was dismissed by the board in May, he has appealed the firing to superior court and remains an employee of the district until the case is decided in the courts).

In voting to dismiss title one aide Jackie Harris and educational aide Hazel Curry, Thompson said the learning center was a private school, practicing de facto segregation, "formed in protest and in direct conflict with the Sausalito School District."

Thompson and Lindberg questioned whether the aides could be loyal to both the district and the center. "Their loyalties may be so divided that we may not be able to trust them," Thompson said.

"Have you personally informed Mrs. Curry and Mrs. Harris that you feel their activities at the center are in conflict with their employment in the district?" asked Martha Freebairn-Smith, a former Sausalito District trustee who resigned in May 1970 in the face of a recall election that June which subsequently went against her. Mrs. Freebairn-Smith now teaches at the Learning Center.

Lindberg replied the matter had not been discussed with the two aides. "I am the first to admit that Mrs. Curry has been a great help at Martin Luther King School," the superintendent said. "I have complimented her and am indebted to her for her services, but I think she would be placed in an extremely awkward position, being responsible to both the district and the learning center."

Mrs. Freebairn-Smith said the board and the superintendent were calling the aides "guilty before they have committed one guilty act, accusing them of being disloyal before they have committed one act of disloyalty." She asked how the board could vote to fire the two women before informing them it considered them to be involved in a conflict on interest situation.

Robert H. Prather, former principal of Tamalpais High School, told the trustees they were "on really shaky ground legally" and said it was his understanding a person could not legally be dismissed because of race, poltiical activities or creed of any kind.

U.S. PRESTIGE AT STAKE

George Bush, American ambassador to the United Nations, stands in front of the board on which votes on admitting Red China to the UN will be tallied. Bush said he's "working my heart out" promoting the American policy of admitting Red China while retaining Taiwan. The outcome of the effort will be in doubt, observers feel, up until the vote is taken in mid-October. The U.S. is staking its prestige on the two-China policy. (UPI Telephoto)

Nixon Gets Passage Of Draft Bill

Measure Abolishes College Deferments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, after a seven month struggle, passed and sent to President Nixon today a draft extension bill that abolishes deferments for college students and gives the military a record high pay raise. The vote on final passage has 55 to 30.

Passage of the measure—which will restore draft calls that have been suspended since June 30—followed a close 61 to 30 vote which barred a threatened filibuster.

The bill is expected to be signed by Nixon soon. Inductions probably will be resumed immediately afterwards.

The bill carries the strongest statement yet written by Congress on the Vietnam war—urging the President to withdraw all U.S. troops from Indochina as soon as possible.

But, to the disappointment of war critics, the measure sets no deadline for an end to U.S. involvement.

Since the existing draft authority expired, a series of controversies had held up a final Senate vote on the new legislation to extending the selective service system until June 30, 1973.

Supporters of the extension succeeded in convincing two-thirds of their colleagues that a continuation of no inductions was a hazard to national security. No one has been drafted into the Army since

In addition to a two year extension of the draft, the legislation includes a $2.4 billion military pay raise and a compromise version of an end-the-war amendment.

The Senate originally passed an end-the-war amendment calling for the withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Indochina in nine months. The language was weakened and the specific withdrawal timetable deleted in a Senate-House conference.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who introduced the Vietnam amendment, promised his colleagues they would have another opportunity to vote for it later in the session.

"We must bring this war to an end," Mansfield said. "It is within our power, if we will act."

Mansfield failed last week to table the conference report and send it back to Senate-House negotiation in an effort to restore his amendment.

Joining Mansfield in voting against stopping the filibuster, Sen. Charles McC Mathias, R-Md., said "the time to end the war is now. The place is here."

Prior to today's vote, John Stennis, R-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, once again warned his colleagues that a prolonged filibuster would weaken the nation's security.

He circulated a fresh batch of letters from Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and the Joint Chiefs of Staff warning of an impending manpower crisis. In the nearly three months without the draft, Stennis said half the enlistees were drawn from "the lowest possible category" of qualification.

Without the motivation of the draft, he contended "you don't get many men that are worth half their keep."

Gravel, however, pleaded for more time to make his case that draft calls were not needed now and in the future. He contended that conscription was inimical to freedom and served notice that "it will take a cloture vote as long as I am a member of this body to initiate the draft."

Angela Evidence Is Revealed In Motion

By MARY LEYDECKER

A motion filed yesterday by attorneys for Angela Davis asking that certain evidence in her case be suppressed gave several hints as to the large amount of evidence the state apparently intends to present against her.

Only a skeleton of the case against her has been made public so far — mainly the testimony of witnesses before the grand jury which indicted her.

Asst. Atty Gen. Albert W. Harris, who is prosecuting the case, has reportedly preferred to retain the bulk of evidence for the trial itself.

In the motion made yesterday, however, Miss Davis's attorney referred to several searches and seizures not made public before.

Revealed was an incident on July 30, 1970 (a little more than a month before the Marin Civic Center shoot-out) in which Miss Davis and Jonathan Jackson were stopped at the California-Mexico border.

A customs inspector who stopped them at the San Ysidro border station said he questioned them "because of the unusualness of blacks crossing the border at such a late hour," according to the motion. (It was 11:30 p.m. and the agent said they were returning from Mexico.)

According to the motion, Miss Davis was taken to the San Diego Police department, where she was questioned about "transporting a juvenile across the border" and statements were taken from her illegally, according to her attorneys.

Another heretofore unknown incident revealed in the motion was a search of an apartment in Miami, Fla. on Oct. 9, 1970, where Miss Davis was appar-

Police Gas Saigon Students

SAIGON (UPI)—A bomb wrecked the Vietnamese Confederation of Labor building tonight following outbreaks of antigovernment rioting in which police fired teargas to disperse 300 students protesting the compulsory draft.

The explosion, across the street from the headquarters of the U.S. aid mission, tore apart several rooms, left a gaping hole in the outer wall and set fire to several cars parked in the compound. No casualties were reported.

The students today complained there was no point in taking university examinations if they were going to be drafted anyway and poured into the streets to express their feelings. Police met them with a barrage of teargas that forced them back inside.

Nelson Blames Revolutionaries

By FRANK FARRARA

Warden Nelson described current attacks against the prison system as the work of those who have disrupted college campuses, castigated police and delayed court procedure.

Speaking before the San Rafael Rotary Club, which gave him a standing ovation, Warden Nelson said prison officials have seen "clouds on the horizon" for several years.

"By no stretch of the imagination did we believe that savage butchery would be the end result, butchery without rhyme or reason, slaughter of men both personnel and inmates, who were only going about their daily tasks," he said.

Six men died at the prison in an attempted escape Aug. 21, three guards, two nonparticipating inmates and George Jackson, one of the Soledad Brothers awaiting murder trial in San Francisco.

"The primary responsibility must be laid at the feet of those same people who are responsible for bringing our institutions of learning into such ill repute with many persons in the land," Nelson said.

"They are the same persons who are dedicated to bringing our police departments down to the level of the secret police of foreign countries and who are dedicated to proving that our judicial system will not work by constant delay and disruptions," he said.

"In short, they are attempting to prove that prisons are unmanageable and that the system of banishing men from the midst of the larger community is not a workable method."

In recent years, revolutionary forces outside prisons have played a role in prison disturbances, Nelson said. For the revolutionaries and some of the inmate leaders "the prison becomes one more tool of the system that must be overthrown," the warden said.

Fatal Shot Entered Jackson From Back

The bullet that killed San Quentin inmate George Jackson Aug. 21 entered his back — not the top of his head as previously reported.

The information came in a final autopsy report filed by Dr. John Manwaring, Marin pathologist, yesterday at the Marin County Coroner's Office.

Neither prison officials nor Coroner Donovan O. Cooke would speculate today on the implications of Manwaring's report.

Dr. Cooke had told reporters Aug. 23 that Jackson died of a bullet wound that apparently entered the top of his head and exited from his lower back.

Manwaring's preliminary report, based on his examination of Jackson's body early Aug. 22, noted bullet wounds in the scalp and back, but said that "it was impossible to be certain of the direction of this bullet pending consultation with ballistics experts and opportunities to see the clothing."

Dr. Cooke said today that he had said earlier the bullet entered the head because he "just thought it looked that way."

Manwaring was reported to be out of town today, but his final report says that "ballistics consultation confirms that the

Supervisors Vote Courtroom Shield

Marin County Board of Supervisors voted to install the protective device this morning by 3-to-2 vote on a motion by John F. McInnis.

Michael Wornum and Louis H. Baar joined McInnis in voting for shield, which will cost a minimum of $15,000.

Baar said he thinks the shield, to be erected between the spectators and the front area where the jury and court attaches sit, would save the county money by reducing the number of bailiffs needed in the courtroom. Wornum said he would vote for the shield only if there were such a saving.

Arnold M. Baptiste and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. voted against the shield, arguing that they see no offsetting saving if present security measures are continued. They contended that present security measures are adequate, and if the judges and court attaches are to get bullet-proof protection, the other people at the Civic Center should

Job Funds To Marin Cities

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — San Rafael has been awarded $48,400 and San Anselmo $31,600 in emergency public service job funding, the Department of Labor announced yesterday.

The $80,000 allocated to Marin and another $459,800 to Sonoma County is part of $30,863,900 statewide funding for California under the Public Service Employment Act program for areas of high unemployment.

Yesterday's allocations, totaling $200 million nationwide, are part of a $1 billion appropriation by Congress for this fiscal year. Earlier, some $600 million was distributed in the program, the first general act of its kind since the Works Progress Administration of the 1930s.

Branson Officials Vote Boys' Campus

Officials of Katharine Branson School in Ross, frustrated last year in attempts to set up a boys' campus in Kentfield, today announced that a boys' school will open next year on the Ross campus.

The 50-year-old private boarding school will open its doors to boys in the daytime only, however, according to an announcement by H. Leonard Richardson, headmaster.

The boys' school will be called Mount Tamalpais School, a name chosen by trustees two years ago.

During the past three years trustees have sought a site in which to open a boys' school, according to Richardson. The search went as far as obtaining conditions for purchase or lease from owners of five parcels, but none of the sites worked out.

(Marin County planning commissions deadlocked in July 1970 over a permit for a site in the Del Mesa area of Kentfield and trustees decided not to make further attempts to use that property for a boys' campus.)

Richardson said that although the opening date for Mount Tamalpais is set for September 1972, applications will be accepted immediately. If a minimum of 15 students apply for ninth, 10th and 11th grades for January 1972, the school will open then.

One dormitory, "The Residence," will be turned over to

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backers of a constitutional amendment to put prayer back in the schools claimed all but three of the 218 signatures they needed today on a petition to force a House vote on the issue.

Managers of the move to dislodge the amendment from the judiciary committee said the three needed members were lined up and waiting to add their names within moments after the opening gavel at noon.

Opponents of the controversial prayer amendment conceded there was no way now to block the discharge petition. Generally they agreed with proponents that there was no prospect either that the House would reject the amendment.

Rep. Chalmers P.Wylie, R-Ohio, sponsor of the petition and of the constitutional amendment to which it was directed, stood ready to call up the issue at the earliest available date.

Police Fired Upon

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Gunmen fired about 20 shots at a five-man police and army patrol in the Roman Catholic Andersonstown district of Belfast today, but failed to hit anyone, the British army said.

The patrol returned fire from its Landrover and reinforcements were rushed to the scene of the incident at the intersection of Glen and Shaws Roads where a soldier was wounded last week, an army spokesman said.

Mail Favors Action

ATTICA, N.Y. (UPI) — A spokesman for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said yesterday roughly 60 per cent of the letters and telegrams coming to his office supported the governor's decision to storm the Attica state prison.

The spokesman said as of last night, the governor's office had received 3,176 letters and telegrams on the Attica situation and 1,986 supported Rockefeller's decision. There were 1,190 communications opposing it, the spokesman said.

The announcement came one week after nine hostages and 30 prisoners were killed when troops stormed the prison. The inmates had held the prison and 38 hostages for five days before the attack.

Leader Stabbed

Takeiri, 45, head of the Buddhist-oriented Komeito Party, was rushed to the hospital, where doctors said his condition was critical. His assailant, identified as Takeo Yajima, a day laborer from Osaka, was arrested on the spot.

Takeiri was taken to Keio Hospital near his party headquarters where his physician said "there is no danger to Mr. Takeiri's life."

Yajima told police that he wanted to "crush Sokagakkai," the powerful Buddhist religious organization with origin created Komeito as its political arm in 1963.

Witnesses said Yajima plunged an eight-inch knife into Takeiri's stomach as he stepped out of his automobile near his party headquarters. Takeiri had been attending a party convention.

Muskie On Busing

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — Sen. Edmund Muskie, swinging through Dixie in a possible quest for the Democratic presidential nomination, said yesterday that busing is an uncomfortable means of righting a social wrong.

The Maine Democrat had said earlier in Columbia, S.C., that President Nixon's selection of a new Supreme Court justice should not be limited to the South. He praised the "great influence" that retiring Justice Hugo Black, an Alabama native, had on the Supreme Court.

South Carolina Gov. John West told newsmen later that his state's national convention delegation is uncommitted, but he praised Muskie as a "great American . . .and if he is the Democratic nominee, I can support him."

Muskie's remarks on busing of school children to achieve a racial balance were made to newsmen before he addressed a Democratic fund raising box supper in Chattanooga.

"The chief objective of busing," he said, "is the breakdown of social inequality. To right the wrong, we must use means which might not be comfortable."

Export Tax Hinted

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan is considering a plan to levy a 10 per cent tax on selected exports if the United States agrees to lift its 10 per cent surcharge on imports, a government official said today.

"This would be quite a sacrifice for Japan," said Eimei Hamashita, a high-ranking official in the ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI). "But the U.S. surcharge is having such an effect."

Yamashita said export contracts signed by Japanese traders have declined by 90 per cent in the past 10 days because of confusion surrounding both the American import surcharge and the flotation of the yen.

Maximum Alert

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Cairo newspapers said today Egyptian troops along the Suez Canal had been put on maximum alert for possible renewal of the conflict with Israel, but UPI dispatches from Qantara on the east bank of the canal reported there was no evidence of unusual activity.

It appeared Egypt would concentrate on political rather than military means at the present to ease the Middle East situation. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad left Cairo today for New York and said he would try to isolate Israel further in the United Nations.

"The scheduling of the Middle East crisis at the United Nations and securing world condemnation of Israel also places the United States in an awkward position," Riad said in an airport statement. He did not elaborate but Egypt has accused the United States of encouraging Israel.

A 'Brain Drain'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Communist party officials have told Soviet Jews there can be no unrestricted emigration to Israel because it would lead to "a brain-drain," Jewish sources said.

They were reporting on a meeting at Communist party headquarters yesterday between a delegation of Jews petitioning for the right to emigrate and Albert Ivanov, head of the administrative section of the governing central committee.

"Ivanov said Jews have no special national right to emigrate to Israel," one source said. "He said each person who wants to emigrate is considered as an individual case.

"He said there would be a brain-drain if all the Jews who wanted to go to Israel were allowed to go," the source said. He said Ivanov had used a Russian phrase which translates literally as "brain-drain."

German Shepherd Kills An Infant

HEMET, Calif. (UPI) — A 21-month-old girl died of bites and gashes received when she was attacked by a large German shepherd, the county coroner's office reported Monday.

Scientists Ask DDT Phaseout

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A panel of scientists has recommended that the use of DDT be phased out except for public health emergencies.

The panel did not specifically recommend that use of the pesticide be totally banned ultimately as environmentalists have asked. It is still used on some crops such as cotton and peanuts and the scientists said this did not create a human health hazard.

The panel said however that DDT and its derivatives are "serious environmental pollutants and present a substantial threat to the quality of the human environment through widespread damage to some nontarget organisms."

The scientists said there is danger in continued widespread use of DDT, although exposure to even high doses for a short period of time apparently causcg no irreversible damage.

Therefore, the panel said that the present reported usage, DDT "does not present an imminent hazard to human health in terms of individual bodily functions and safety."

The panel said that there is so much DDT in the environment now that "either immediate suspension or rapid and continuous decrease in the use of DDT will achieve essentially the same result."

The administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, William D. Ruckelshaus, in March began a process of cancellation that could lead to DDT being removed from the market, although he refused to ban it outright as an "imminent health hazard."

Ruckelshaus acted under a court order that grew out of a suit brought by environmentalists asking the ban of DDT.

The panel of scientists was formed at the request of the Montrose Chemical Co., the nation's only producer of DDT, a procedure authorized under the cancellation process used by Ruckelshaus.

All But One Coastal Bill Are Killed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three rival measures clamping regulations on development of California's 1,100-mile coastline have been killed by the Senate Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee.

The action leaves one remaining bill designed to curb unrestricted development of this scenic coastline. It is pending on the Assembly floor.

In successive action Monday, the Senate committee killed the three rival proposals, when none of them could muster sufficient votes for approval.

Ironically, opposition by conservationists and a group against stringent governmental regulation of the coast combined to defeat a so-called compromise measure sponsored by Sens. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, and Donald L. Grunsky, R-Watsonville.

It would have created a state commission and six regional planning commissions to regulate development by permit. The commission's jurisdiction would have extended 1,001 feet seaward.

But a group called California Coastal Alliance, a group of various conservation organizations, opposed the bill contending local governments would be given too great a voice in the commissions.

The Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce also opposed it because certain development moratoriums would work hardships on landowners.

Two other rival bills, by Sens. Ralph C. Dills, D-Gardena, and James Q. Wedworth, D-Hawthorne, also were defeated when they could only get the votes on their sponsors.

The one remaining coastal measure out of six introduced this session is one which would set up a state commission and six local agencies with powers to regulate development by permits. The commission's jurisdiction would extend five miles out to sea and include islands. Its author is Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills.

Selection Of Alioto Jury Going Slowly

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) —The $2.3 million civil lawsuit against San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto in a fee splitting case almost got bogged down yesterday because "everybody in Clark County knows" Elwood Caples, a prospective witness in the trial.

Selection of a jury already had been delayed into the afternoon because Judge Donald L. Gaines heard arguments challenging the jury panel and for delaying testimony in the case.

Gaines rejected the formal motion for delay and no formal mention was made of the challenge to the panel. It had been trimmed to 39 from 120 before court opened Monday morning by eliminating those obviously ineligible and those who asked to be excused for cause.

Paul Cressman, of Seattle, attorney for Alioto, argued that entry of two more candidates into the mayor's race in San Francisco just before the filing deadline Friday would make it impossible for Alioto to be at the trial as frequently as he should. Cressman asked a delay in testimony until Nov. 3, after the election. Alioto is seeking a second term.

After the first 12 prospective jurors had been seated, Gaines began asking a series of general questions. When he asked whether any panel members knew anyone involved in the case, two women raised their hands.

Both said they were friends of Caples, former attorney for the Clark County Public Utility District here. The PUD is one of the plaintiffs in the suit.

Both women were excused and two more were called. The first said her daughter had "gone with" Caples' grandson. She was allowed to remain.

The second said she knew Caples only slightly and added, "everyone in Clark County knows Mr. Caples." She too remained.

By the time attorneys began questioning the prospective jurors it was after 3 p.m.

A list of 130 prospective witnesses, including Washington Gov. Dan Evans and Attorney General Slade Gorton, was read in court.

Thieves Take Jewels From Body Of Saint

FLORENCE, Italy (IPU)—Thieves broke into a church Monday and stole jewels taken from the embalmed body of a saint, police said.

The theft in St. Mark's church was the latest in a long series of underworld raids on unguarded Italian churches, many of them containing art treasures. A Titian, a Tintoretto and other paintings estimated at more than $4.8 million were stolen over the past weeks from churches in the Venice region. The Titian and other paintings have since been recovered.

Roaming Moose Pays A Visit

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — The officer on the police switchboard had just gotten a call about a moose walking around in a residential neighborhood. Then he looked out the window.

There was the young moose, 800 pounds and inquisitive, standing in the parking lot behind police headquarters.

Wary police officers kept him there for awhile but when game wardens arrived on the scene it was apparently too much for the moose, who took off again. He frightened a group of children when he trotted through their schoolyard and sent a number of amazed housewives scurring for their phones.

He was never rounded up.

New Program Launched To Determine GI Drug Use

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command announced today a new program for testing the urine of all U.S. servicemen in Vietnam every three months to find out whether they are using heroin or other narcotics.

A statement issued by the command said the program was expected to have "an impressive deterrent effect" on growing heroin usage here that turns an estimated one GI in 10 into heroin addicts during their one-year Vietnam tours.

One of the major difficulties in dealing with the heroin problem here has been the difficulty of detecting users. Many GIs who use heroin rather than softer drugs, say they do so because it is odorless and almost impossible to detect.

The command statement said the program had been in effect since Aug. 25, but spokesmen said they had no figures on the number of GIs tested so far, or the number of drug users uncovered. They conceded that one of three central facilities needed to conduct the testing was still under construction.

The statement said, "This program will cover all units of all services and the ultimate objective will be to test each unit on an unannounced date once each quarter (of the year).

"Individuals determined as users are immediately sent to treatment centers for detoxification and counselling and then returned to their units for a close and continuous followup program.

"This expansion of the drug counteroffensive is progressing satisfactorily and it is anticipated that this program will have an impressive deterrent effect" on GI drug addiction, the statement said.

Spokesmen said the new program is conducted like a series of snap inspections, with the units selected on a more or less random basis, and the men in them ordered to line up and give samples immediately.

The samples are shipped to one of three centers where machines that electronically detect the presence of heroin or other opium derivatives are located.

Men found to be on drugs are sent to drug treatment centers, put through withdrawal, given counseling and then sent back to their units, the spokesman said.

FTC Studying Plan To Halt Payments On Defective Goods

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission has taken under advisement testimony calling for an end to a credit practice that requires consumers to continue paying for defective goods.

Witnesses urging abolition at Monday's opening round of hearings included Virginia H. Knauer, the White House consumer adviser; Dean W. Determan, vice president of the Council of Better Business bureaus, and Fairfax Leary Jr., a Temple University law professor representing Ralph Nader.

The chief opposition was raised by Robert S. Olson, chairman of Ford Motor Credit Co., which handles installment sales contracts for Ford automobiles.

The FTC has proposed a ban on "holder in due course" credit contracts.

"Holder in due course" works like this: you buy a car or appliance on a monthly payment plan. The dealer sells your installment sales contract to a bank or finance company. The product goes bad, and the store refuses to fix or replace it. You stop paying to force action, but the bank or finance company makes you resume payments on grounds it has nothing to do with the product but does have a contract requiring you to pay.

"The consumer caught in the 'holder in due course' game feels he is batted back and forth like a tennis ball, never turning up on the winning side," said Mrs. Knauer.

The FTC's proposed rule would make the finance firm just as liable for the product as was the seller. Leary urged that the rule be broadened to also covrcredit card sales, many of which are financed by banks.

Determan testified that the rule would not only protect consumers but also prompt banks and finance firms to stop buying installment contracts from "fly by night operators and dishonest businessmen."

Olson questioned the FTC's authority to issue such a rule and said unscrupulous businessmen would dodge it anyway.

Papers Of Ellsberg Are Seized

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In a series of legal maneuvers, the federal government gained access yesterday to a large collection of papers and personal possessions stashed in a storage warehouse by Dr. Daniel Ellsberg.

Ellsberg, principal figure in the Pentagon papers' controversy, failed in an attempt to quash an FBI search warrant involving his belongings held by Bekins Moving and Storage Co. in Beverly Hills.

Justice Department attorney David. R. Nissen said last week that many of the stored documents were classified government records but Ellsberg's attorneys have insisted they are personal papers of their client.

U.S. District Court Judge William M. Byrne Jr. made a conditional ruling Monday morning prohibiting the government from examining the belongings. The judge gave the government until noon to file notice of appeal on his ruling.

Meanwhile, FBI agents served a warrant on operators of the Bekins' warehouse where Ellsberg's goods are stored. In an afternoon court session, Byrne said Ellsberg had no legal recourse to prevent the FBI's move and he could not overrule issuance of the warrant by a U.S. magistrate.

Two men who identified themselves as agents for Ellsberg said they were at the warehouse attempting to claim the goods when the warrant was served.

One of Ellsberg's defense attorneys, Morse Taylor, asked Byrne to "freeze" the property, saying the government was "on a blanket fishing expedition" hoping to turn up evidence to be used in Ellsberg's trial.

Selection Of Woman To Bench Is A Possibility

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On July 10, 1969, President Nixon told a group of women congressmen he wanted to appoint the first female U.S. Supreme Court justice.

The conversation, reported by Rep. Florence P. Dwver. R-N.J., helped fuel speculation today that a woman might be given consideration when Nixon picks a successor for Justice Hugo L. Black, 85, who resigned Friday because of ill health.

Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House press secretary, said Monday Nixon's list of possibilities could grow to 10 to 12. He said Nixon "favors strict construction of the Constitution" and would "look for someone who shares that philosophy." Ziegler said the President would "move as quickly as possible."

Nixon has been urged to appoint a woman. One formal appeal was made yesterday by the National Women's Political Caucus. Another plea was made by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment to guarantee equal rights to women.

Such a move is just the kind of surprise that Nixon likes best —the kind of stunning decision like his plan to visit Mainland China or his wage-price freeze and moves to devaluate the dollar.

The name mentioned most frequently as a possible female successor to Black is that of Rita Hauser of New York City, Nixon's delegate to the U.N. Commission on Human Rights and a long-time Nixon campaign worker.

Once employed by the Justice Department, Mrs. Hauser is with the law firm of Moldover, Hauser and Strauss in Manhattan. She specializes in international law and has a branch office in Paris. She is the wife of Gustav M. Hauser, a vice president of General Telephone and Electronics International Co.

Two Vehicles Looted Of Items

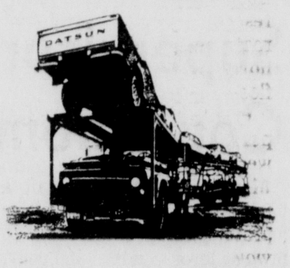

Thefts from two vehicles, one in Terra Linda and the other in Los Ranchitos, were reported yesterday by the Marin County sheriff's office.

Deputies said a $250 radio was stolen from a Jeep owned by Norman A. Coggins of 409 Hickory Lane, Terra Linda, Sept. 10. The jeep was parked near Coggins's residence, deputies said.

Clothing valued at $385 was stolen from the car of Herbert W. Clark of La Quinta, Riverside County, Sept. 10 or 11, deputies said. The car was parked near 3725 Redwood Highway, Los Ranchitos, they said.

Famous European Chef names Dominic's America's finest restaurant.

Not long ago we decided to ask the world's most renowned chefs and restaurateurs to judge the quality of our fine restaurant and its continental cuisine. But the trouble was that most of these people were in Paris and Bologna and other strange places. So we settled the whole thing by asking the famous Pierre Giavinna to make an honest and objective appraisal. "America's finest," he said. That was good enough for us. After all, he's not only our chef, but he owns part of the place. So who should know better than he?

Fight For Marin Suicide Center Finally Won

By MARY LEYDECKER

The naming yesterday of a Los Angeles man as executive director of the Marin Suicide Prevention Center climaxed a drive of more than two years by a group of Marin residents, including a coroner's investigator, to get such a center functioning.

The new director, who will start Oct. 1, is Richard H. Reuben, 25, who has worked for the Los Angeles Suicide Prevention Center, the University of California at Los Angeles's "Help Line" and the University of Hawaii's "Life Line."

Although the Marin center has been operating in a room in a San Anselmo church since July 1 with volunteers taking phone calls at 454-4524 from distraught persons, the center's board has eagerly anticipated a full-time director.

Reuben will take full charge of the center, screening and reevaluating volunteers as well as supervising them in the delicate task of counseling persons who are contemplating suicide, according to Coroner's Investigator Keith C. Craig.

Craig, who was the primary moving force behind the crisis center, began a crusade toward trying to stop Marin's high rate of suicide during four and a half years in the coroner's office.

Craig pointed out that Marin currently has the second highest suicide rate in the state — topped only by San Francisco.

So far this year in Marin there have been 49 suicides (compared to 47 for all of last year), and the rate of children who kill themselves is rising at an alarming rate.

"Seven children under 17 years of age have hanged themselves in Marin so far this year," Craig said.

"Children kill themselves for the same reasons adults do — but they don't understand the finality of death," Craig said.

He went on to give an example. "An 11-year-old boy found hanging in his garage — was he playing — was he getting even with his family?" he asked. "Maybe he was saying, 'My mommy and daddy will be sorry when they find me.'"

In addition to taking calls from distressed adults, Craig wants to see teacher and parents educated through the center to "recognize cries for help" from children.

It was working with the families of suicide victims which led Craig to the hours of work he has put into creating a center.

"Suicide is never forgotten — nor forgiven," he said, describing it as the type of death most difficult for survivors to face.

"What did I do wrong?" the survivors ask," Craig said.

Describing suicide as the most selfish act a person can perform, Craig said that sometimes he tells families, "You must say to yourself, 'that was a dirty lousy trick this guy did to me,'" (by committing suicide.)

As to cold statistics about suicide in Marin, Craig said that gunshots are the most common method along with overdoses of drugs. For the last five years, suicide has topped traffic accidents as a cause of death in marvelous Marin.

The motives vary from the loss of a loved one to trying to punish someone else, Craig said, but surprisingly seldom include two reasons generally believed to be responsible for suicides.

"There are very few disease-oriented suicides," he said, adding that in most of the ones which he has investigated in which a person took his own life because he thought he had a dread disease, it turned out he didn't.

In four and a half years, Craig said that he had only investigated one suicide case that seemed to have any drug connection — and that one was rather tenuous. Finally, most people are sober when they kill themselves, he said.

Will the suicide prevention center (which Craig prefers to call 'intervention center'), help tide the rising suicide rate?

"That's tough to find out," Craig said, because it's impossible to find out whether the persons who call the center would have actually committed suicide or not.

He said, however, that San Francisco's center reports that only 1 per cent of the persons who call there for help actually end up as suicides.

"All of the persons who have survived jumping off the Golden Gate Bridge have said afterwards they changed their minds on the way down," according to Jamshid A. H. Bakhtiar, president of the center's board.

The phone counselors, as they are called, first try to deal with the caller as fellow human being, finding out what his problems are and how serious he is about suicide.

The next step is to try to arrange for him to get outside help for his problems. A "rather sophisticated" file of resources ranging through such subjects as abortion, adoption, aged, alcoholism and on through the alphabet of human problems is at the counselor's fingertips.

About 100 volunteers are now working at the center, which is housed in a peaceful little room which is equipped with a narrow bed for late night hours. More are needed, however, according to both Bakhtiar, a psychiatrist and Craig.

"There are still bugs to work out," Craig concluded, saying that the center board will have to give a full accounting to the Marin Board of Supervisors in six months.

The new director, Reuben, who will receive a $12,000 a year salary, will be paid for the first six months with county money appropriated earlier this year.

Four Reshuffled At San Quentin

Four men have been reassigned or promoted in a staff shuffle at San Quentin which Warden Louis S. Nelson said yesterday had been planned for some time.

Last week he had announced that Associate Warden James W. L. Park, 49, had been relieved of duties as public information officer but would retain responsibility for Death Row. Park was also assigned the new task of working with prisoner self-help groups.

Joseph R. O'Brien, 62, was named to deal with news media.

Yesterday Nelson said that John Apostol, 47, has been appointed associate warden for classification and treatment. He will be responsible for education, vocational, religious and counseling programs, Nelson said.

He replaces Wayne Bartels, 44, who is recuperating from a serious heart ailment. Apostol has been in prison work for 23 years. Since 1966 he has been a program administrator at San Quentin.

Robert Coates, 48, has been appointed correctional industries manager. He was transferred from the Department of Corrections Headquarters in Sacramento, where he was assistant general manager of the statewide prison industries system. San Quentin has a furniture factory, clothing factory, mattress factory and a detergent blending plant.

Paul Lemon, 59, has been named an assistant to Coates and will have responsibility for upgrading manpower skills and availability for the industries program. Lemon's prison experience goes back 29 years. Before becoming a correctional officer he worked on the last of the giant gold dredges working streams in the Gold Rush country near Sacramento.

William A. Drummond Jr., 54, will assume the duties of the classification and parole representative, a job formerly held by O'Brien. Drummond has been a prison clinical psychologist at San Quentin since 1950.

Flood Victims Rescue Under Way In Spain

BARCELONA (UPI)—Army units today joined fire brigades and rescue teams trying to rescue villagers marooned on roof tops and high land in northeastern Spain's worst floods in 10 years.

Police reported at least 10 persons died and hundreds were driven from their homes when up to 7.2 inches of rain fell on Barcelona and Gerona provinces during a series of violent rainstorms Monday.

County Is Given Land For Park

The federal government announced today it has given 5.3 acres of the old Tiburon Net Depot to Marin County for expansion of the county's Tiburon Uplands Nature Preserve.

Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, said the land would be kept undeveloped, except for eventually building a nature trail to tie in with proposed nature trails along the Tiburon Ridge.

Frank E. Sylvester, regional director for the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, said in San Francisco that the federal land gift was part of President Richard M. Nixon's "Legacy of Parks" program to make surplus land available to nearby city dwellers for recreational use.

The land lies uphill from Paradise Drive, immediately adjacent to the county's existing nature preserve. Joske said today he and conservation leader Elizabeth Terwilliger of Mill Valley had inspected the parcel to begin making long-range plans for its use.

AMERICAN MOTORS INTRODUCES THE GUARANTEED CAR.

AMERICAN MOTORS 1972 BUYER PROTECTION PLAN.

For years, car buyers in this country have been saying that instead of shiny new chrome every year, what they really want is a good car they can count on.

A STRONG GUARANTEE IN PLAIN ENGLISH.

When you buy a new 1972 car from an American Motors dealer, American Motors Corporation guarantees to you that, except for tires, it will pay for the repair or replacement of any part it supplies that is defective in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is good for 12 months from the date the car is first used or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.

All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for under normal use and service in the fifty United States or Canada and that guaranteed repairs or replacements be made by an American Motors dealer.

This guarantee gives you 12-month or 12,000-mile coverage on a lot of things most car warranties don't. It covers air conditioning, battery, radio, wiper blades, front end alignment, light bulbs—literally everything we put on the car except tires.

In other words, if something we did goes wrong with one of our '72's, you won't have to pay for the parts or the labor. We will.

A MORE THOROUGHLY-CHECKED CAR. FROM THE FACTORY AND THE DEALER.

Naturally, we wouldn't be backing our cars like this if we weren't more sure of them than we've ever been before. For 1972, we've put in more quality control steps, more tests and more people to see that every car leaving our factory is as perfect as man and machine can make it.

At the dealer's, it's checked over again.

Every car (not one of 50, one of 5, every one) is road-tested for starting, handling, braking and overall performance. When the serviceman completes the test, he signs his report and slides it over the sun visor, where you can see it.

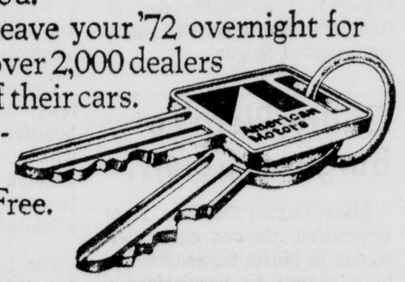

And, when a man signs his name to something, you can be sure he's done his job. And done it right.

A LOANER CAR WHEN YOU NEED IT. FREE.

Not only do we offer you a strong guarantee, we've set up a system to back it up without inconveniencing you.

If you have to leave your '72 overnight for guarantee repairs, over 2,000 dealers will loan you one of their cars. A nice, clean, well-equipped car in good condition. Free.

A DIRECT LINE TO DETROIT. TOLL-FREE.

We're making some big promises, and we fully intend to keep them. But, just in case you have a problem, we have a way of handling it. When you buy a '72, you get the name and toll-free number of a person in Detroit.

If you call, we promise you you'll get results. And fast.

These aren't just fancy words. We mean it.

Nobody in the business does as much for you after you buy a car, and it takes a lot of time, men and money to do all these things.

But we think it's worth it.

Since we're giving American car-buyers exactly what they say they want, we should sell more cars than we've ever sold before.

STARTING TODAY, THESE AMERICAN MOTORS DEALERS WILL DO MORE FOR YOU AFTER YOU BUY A CAR THAN ANY OTHER DEALER IN TOWN.

U.S. Planes Strike Into North Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers carried out more than 200 strikes against North Vietnam today, hitting military targets as far as 35 miles above the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in one of the heaviest air raids since the bombing halt of Nov. 1, 1968.

The U.S. command said the strikes were carried out because recent North Vietnamese attacks on unarmed reconnaissance planes and U.S. aircraft bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail in neighboring Laos had posed "a threat to the safety of U.S. forces" in the war zone.

Military sources said the raids almost certainly concentrated on Communist supplies and vehicles being assembled for the southbound shipping season along the Ho Chi Minh Trail, expected to open in a few weeks with easing of monsoon rains. Many B52 strikes recently have been directed against this buildup.

The announcement said the planes encountered light to moderate antiaircraft fire but that none of the American planes was hit. The command said the North Vietnamese did not fire any surface-to-air (SAM) missiles during the raid.

The attacks began at dawn and lasted until early afternoon. They were the 60th against North Vietnam this year.

Spokesmen would not report on how many Air Force jets participated in the attacks but said more than 200 sorties were flown (a sortie is one strike by one plane). It did not pinpoint targets, but the port of Dong Hoi, which has a major military airfield, is within the 35-mile raid limit.

Today's raids were the heaviest "protective reaction" strikes over the North since last March 20-21 when about 250 fighter-bombers and escorts hit targets across the border. Those raids brought charges by Hanoi that the Americans had bombed civilian targets.

The raids were announced in a special communique.

"In response to recently increased evidence of North Vietnamese aitiaircraft and missile activity against our unarmed reconnaissance aircraft flying over North Vietnamese territory and U.S. attack aircraft flying in Laos near North Vietnamese territory, U.S. Air Force tectical aircraft today conducted protective reaction strikes against military targets in North Vietnam constituting a threat to the safety of U.S. forces," the command said.

The North Vietnamese responded with "light to moderate" antiaircraft fire but hit no American planes, the spokesmen said.

Spokesmen said the missions were confined to an area within 35 miles of the DMZ which divides North and South Vietnam. The command declined to say how exactly many American planes took part or give the precise target areas.

The command said no surface-to-air (SAM) missiles were fired at the U.S. warplanes.

It was the 60th in the series of what the U.S. command calls "protective reaction" strikes into North Vietnam this year and the heaviest raids since the unsuccessful attempt to free U.S. war prisoners from Son Tay, North Vietnam Nov. 21, 1970.

U.S. 7th Air Force spokesmen said they were under orders not to report any details of the raids and the U.S. command declined to elaborate on its communique which said "all strikes were confined to an area within 35 miles of the DMZ."

As the U.S. warplanes struck inside North Vietnam, a U.S. Navy destroyer's five-inch guns saturated a U Minh forest battleground with heavy fire and helped South Vietnamese troops halt a major Viet Cong assault in nearby swamps.

One of the three missions by the guided missile destroyer USS Epperson was in answer to an emergency call for support from South Vietnamese troops engaged in an eighth day of fighting in the forest, 145 miles southwest of Saigon.

Investment Tax Credit Plan Backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Ways and Means Committee decided today on a flat 7 per cent investment tax credit for business equipment purchases to spur the economy in place of a two-stage plan proposed by President Nixon.

The committee action followed its decision Monday to substitute Nixon's plan for a credit rate of 10 per cent now, with a 5 per cent rate starting Aug. 15, 1972.

A 7 per cent credit would allow businessmen to subtract $7 out of every $100 for purchase of new machinery made in the United States as a way of stimulating production. A similar credit was repealed in 1969.

Consumer representatives meantime urged President Nixon in a White House meeting to push for price rollbacks and to make sure manufacturers did not skirt the purpose of frozen prices by reducing product quality.

Dr. Colston E. Warne, president of the nonprofit Consumers Union, said he told Nixon "there are a good many ways to skin a consumer." He said an effective price freeze must include policing of product quality, packaging and assurances that manufacturers don't simply stop making lower priced products in favor of premium lines.

Don S. Wilner, president of the Consumer Federation of America (CFA), urged Nixon to regulate profits, interest rates and dividends as well as prices.

"Unless there is equality of sacrifice there will be no consumer confidence in Phase 2" —economic controls that follow the freeze —Wilner told a news conference after the one-hour, 45 minute White House meeting.

In addition to Warne and Wilner, consumer representatives at the meeting included five members of Nixon's Advisory Council on Consumer Affairs, private citizens who meet periodically to advise the administration.

Ralph Nader was not invited and Wilner said there was no discussion of Nader's absence.

The CFA, a coalition of more than 200 local, state and national organizations, gave Nixon a statement saying that Phase 2 controls must be fair to convince consumers they "will not be left holding the bag."

The CFA urged strict policing of prices, consumer participation in forming and carrying out government economic policies, ceilings on profits and dividends, stricter antitrust enforcement, lower interest rates and utility rates, and a looser wage policy so low income people can get pay raises.

The White House said the consumer spokesmen unanimously endorsed Nixon's economic initiatives, including the 90-day freeze.

Ziegler said the group generally urged the President to take steps to prevent deterioration of product quality when prices are controlled and to keep a reign on prices of foods and other necessities.

Guilty Plea To Burglary Count

Albert Burton Fierstine, 27, of Greenbrae, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge he burglarized a Mill Valley residence March 27.

He is to be sentenced Oct. 18.

Fierstine was arrested when police said they found him inside the home of Thomas J. Zilka of 15 Escalon Drive.

Copper Basin Area Turning Green Again

COPPERHILL, Tenn. (UPI) —The 50-square mile copper basin in southeastern Tennessee is turning green again. For more than 30 years Cities Service Company's Copperhill Operations has been restoring 22,000 acres of lands that were denuded of vegetation as a result of copper mining during the 19th century.

Since the mid-1930s more than 7 million pine tree seedlings and countless number of seedlings or root starts for an "ivy-type" ground cover have been planted. A new 10-year program of planting 500,000 seedlings a year was begun in 1970 and by 1980 it is hoped that all but the badly eroded land should be restored.

Extra Funding For Panel Is Advanced

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation providing an additional $160,000 for operation of the state Fair Employment Practices Commission was approved 27-1 Monday by the Senate and sent to the Assembly.

Author of the bill, Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, said the sum restores the amount vetoed from the agency's budget by Gov. Ronald Reagan. Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale, cast the sole dissenting vote.

Mineral Exploration In Britain?

By DENNIS EISENBERG
Toronto Telegram News Service

LONDON — For decades past, Britons have been reading about the exciting tales of prospectors seeking out precious metals in far-off lands such as Africa, Australia, Canada, and the Unites States.

Now, with a bit of a shock, Britons are realizing that the hunt for mineral wealth is being switched to their own back gardens — and the prospect is one which fills them with alarm.

It is one thing having an open copper mine, miles long and one mile deep gashed out of the earth in a desert region of Australia. After all, it is so vast that hardly anyone would even notice the ugly scar left behind. It is another matter, however, to do the same in overcrowded Britain where open space is one of the most precious qualities of life.

Thus the idea of digging for mineral wealth here is meeting with fierce opposition. Even so, the government is going ahead with its plan to subsidize the search for gold, tin, copper, lead, zinc, tungsten, uranium, potash, barium and fluorspar to the tune of $62 million.

Already, 100 mining companies have expressed interest in mineral exploration and the financial aid offered to them to undertake the costly and risky work. And digging around for the stuff is acting as a powerful spur.

Gold and tin were mined in Britain even before the Romans set foot on these shores. But because the world was so large in the past century or two, Britain had neglected its own resources to concentrate on getting minerals from other lands.

Although it is known that there is a lot of underground wealth lying around, nobody has ever bothered to even draw a comprehensive map of such resources.

Today, however, with the country spending $1.5 million a year in valuable foreign currency buying minerals, there is a strong temptation to dig the metal out of British soil and so save money.

One major snag, however, is that the precious metals are to be found in the parts of Britain which are national parks and areas of outstanding natural beauty. Despite promised safeguards, many Britons fear that huge earth-movers and dragline excavators will completely wreck the peace and quiet of the countryside.

BRANSON

This will, of course, result in fewer number of girls taken as boarders at Branson, a change which trustees believe is in keeping with nationwide trend toward coeducational day schools for teen-agers.

The boys' school will be under the Branson's board of trustees and the same headmaster, according to Richardson.

Although the boys will study mainly in their own classes, taught by some of the Branson faculty members and augmented by newcomers, they will use such facilities as dining hall, library, laboratories and the computer math terminal with the girls.

Trustees made the decision to set up the boys' school on the Ross campus because of "sustained requests of parents of boys in the area," according to an official announcement.

"The real need for such a school is, if anything, clearer now than at any time in the immediate past," the announcement said.

(A longtime Marin private boys' school, the San Rafael Military Academy, closed its doors this summer.)

Innocent Plea To Credit Card Fraud

Patricia Jean Morris, 32, of Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior court to two felony counts of credit card fraud. Jury trial was set for the week of Nov. 1.

She was arrested Aug. 27 when she attempted to use a stolen credit card at two Sausalito shops, Sausalito police said.

Traffic Up

Traffic on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge totaled 604,939 vehicles in May, up from 567,012 in May, 1970. Revenue totaled $440,643, down from $465,173 the preceding May because of toll reductions.

SCHOOL

tive director of the Marin County Housing Authority and Marin County Redevelopment Agency, said the teaching aides need only be loyal to "the children they are supposed to serve."

In response to Thompson's statement that he was involved in a conflict of interest, Toliver called the trustee's remarks "a breach of ethics. If an employee is doing something contrary to district policy or the education code, the employee should be informed of this fact in a private session, not at a public meeting," Toliver said. "The employee should be given a chance to change the behavior in question, if it is indeed detrimental to the welfare of the district," he added.

Board Chairman Delta Christ said no charge had been made against Toliver. "What was stated tonight was strictly factual," she said.

Norman Tilbury, who claimed to be attorney for the learning center, said people at the center were "sincere people who are trying to do a good job for the children. Just because their ideas of how to go about it are different from yours, you shouldn't despise them or stop them from oeprating," he told the board.

Tilbury said he would like to see a new era of cooperation between the board and the center and would do all he could to see that if came about. He was seconded by Royce McLemore, director of the learning center.

When the matter of use of Manzanita School came up, Lindberg said the center, now located temporarily in the Village Baptist Church in Marin City, has asked for full-time use of the school. The district is not using the facility this year, having placed all students in Martin Luther King and Bayside Schools. He said the College of Marin had also asked to use Manzanita part-time for adult education classes, but indicated the college had said it did not "want to be put in the position of block use of the building by other groups."

The property on which the school is located was donated to the district, along with other land in Marin City, by the Housing Authority and the Redevelopment Agency to build an elementary school. The district received the land at no cost.

In order to lease, rent or sell the Manzanita Building or property, Lindberg said the board must first decide to declare the land surplus.

The board directed the superintendent to look in the procedures for declaring the property surplus and the consequences of such a move. Then, on a move by Thompson and with almost no comment, the board denied the learning center's request to use Manzanita.

Shepherd said the redevelopment agency and housing authority were interested in "building a viable community in Marin City" and, to that end, were in the process "of reacquiring the (redevelopment) land we gave away."

He promised the authority and agency would do everything in our power to see the property, including the Manzanita School, is put back in the hands of the Marin City community" and take legal action, if necessary, to retrieve the land.

STUDENTS

Once inside, the students burned Thieu in effigy.

Thieu, after denying charges by Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that recent events had made him afraid to sleep in the presidential palace, announced he would fly Wednesday to Pleiku for the first campaign rally of his solo race for the presidency.

The students have been agitated for several weeks over Thieu's decision to run for re-election without opposition Oct. 3. They also have been at odds with the government over paramilitary training which makes them eligible for compulsory military draft upon graduation. They burned Thieu in effigy at the demonstration and waved banners reading "Peace in Vietnam Now."

The demonstration opposite the heavily-fortified national police headquarters was held more than a mile from the university housing complex which police occupied Monday to stop further rioting. Saigon and Buddhist Van Hanh University buildings are scattered all over central Saigon and provide gathering places for the universitys' 25,000 students. Only a minority are considered militant, however.

Thieu, in the second of three campaign speeches delivered on government radio, said, "the only guarantee for our future freedom is to deal the Communists a positive defeat."

De Gaulle Escaped Many Death Plots

By HAROLD KING
Toronto Telegram News Service

Many more carefully planned attempts to assassinate him were made between 1961 and 1965 than have been officially recorded.

Information on some of these attempts now is leaking out under the stimulation of the publication in London and Paris of a best-seller novel called "The Day of the Jackal."

The book, constructed by British journalist Frederick Forsyth, is based on an imagined attempt by a hired professional killer to pick off the General with a long-sight rifle as happened to President Kennedy in Dallas.

Quite aside from the book, all but one of the real attempts to kill the General were conceived and organized by determined and bitter men grouped in what they themselves called "the secret army organization."

It was recruited mostly from officers and foreign legionnaires who had fought long wars in Indochina and Algeria and who considered that De Gaulle had sold them down the river by giving Algeria national independence.

At first, the plotters concentrated on plans for killing de Gaulle on his way to his country home in Colombey, his retreat almost every weekend while in office.

The case of "petit clamart," a road crossing a few miles outside the capital, made the headlines, with four machine-guns firing bullets into his fast-driven car and missing him and his wife by only inches.

On this occasion, the General was only saved by the coolness of his driver who drove on at 100 m.p.h. with flattened tires. "They can't shoot straight," was all De Gaulle said on this occasion.

The secret army men also tried to get him on the Colombey road by a long-distance rifle fired from a rented roadside house, but the potential killer fired at the wrong car, the timing of de Gaulle's journey having been altered at the last minute, and a bullet-proof car similar to his having been sent 10 minutes ahead.

The most complicated plot was to shoot de Gaulle from one of the top-floor flats of a building overlooking the forecourt of the Elysee Palace when de Gaulle was scheduled to accompany a state guest to his waiting car in front of the palace entrance steps.

But the police got wind of the plot and arrested four heavily armed men as they were driving to their murder rendezvous.

De Gaulle's security men got really worried when one of their undercover men introduced into the ranks of the secret army rebels reported that a former foreign legionnaire of Swiss nationality had perfected a short-wave system capable of exploding a bomb 50 yards away.

The ex-legionnaire manufactured seven of these bombs, and I was sitting on one of them one sunny afternoon in the South of France.

I was covering de Gaulle for Reuter when he visited the naval port of Toulon. In the afternoon, the official motorcade of 17 sleek black cars went to visit a war memorial at Mont Farron, a tiny village surrounded by woods.

While the General was inside the memorial chapel, I was waiting for him to emerge and was leaning against the first of three earthenware jars on the path leading to the chapel.

In the surrounding woods prowled a man with a short-wave wireless apparatus whose job it was to set off the bomb buried a few days earlier in this particular jar.

The bomb never went off, and in due course the official motorcade with de Gaulle, officials and reporters roared off again in the Riviera sunshine, everybody quite unaware of the narrow escape.

It was only a few days afterwards that a gardener unearthed the bomb in the jar when changing the flowers and reported his find to the local police.

The secret army organization was at one stage patronized by some prominent political figures, one-time Gaullist supporters, such as Jacques Soustelle and Georges Bidault, but none of these approved of the extremists who wanted to kill de Gaulle at all costs.

The security services said they were often informed about the latest plot by some of the political leaders of the secret army organization who wanted to keep their opposition to legitimate political methods.

The trouble with these de Gaulle haters was that they all had political ambitions and wanted to live.

If they could have found a man willing himself to die in the attempt to kill de Gaulle, we would have been hard put to prevent the attempt," the security service men fully agree today.

There was one plan to kill de Gaulle which had nothing to do with the secret army organization. That was when de Gaulle was preparing his famous journey to Quebec.

A time-bomb was to be planted in his plane. The police authorities said this plot was "linked to the General's foreign policy," but gave no indication of who may have been involved.

Information about the plan to kill de Gaulle en route to Quebec was received, said the authorities from several different sources.

It was decided that de Gaulle should travel to Canada in a cruiser.

In the early 1960s, a young Frenchwoman of aristocratic origin established herself in London as a student of English. She was a go-between and fund-raiser for the secret army.

Both the British and French authorities knew of her existence, and both secret services decided to let her be while watching her activities closely. This was the time when Anglo-French relations were at their lowest, with the British infuriated by de Gaulle's first veto on British entry into the Common Market.

An entire school of wartime psychological warfare "experts" turned-diplomats began a campaign of reckless mendacity about de Gaulle. The London Evening Standard columnist, Sam White, reported "There was even the case of a member of the British Embassy telling an Anglo-French dinner party that he considered it a tragedy that a recent attempt on the General's life had failed."

However, de Gaulle now is dead and buried, Britain is virtually inside the Common Market, and Paris and London are basking in the sunshine of a new honeymoon.

ently staying after she fled California following the shootout.

The lawyers want papers and property taken from the Florida apartment stricken from the case as they said FBI agent who made the search did not have a warrant.

The lawyers also want suppressed a wig, credit cards and other things seized by agents when they found Miss Davis on Oct. 13 in a New York City motel.

They further want removed from the case items that were taken from Miss Davis's car which was found parked in Los Angeles 12 days after the shootout.

The judge in the case, Richard E. Arnason, yesterday said he would set a date for hearing the motion regarding the evidence as well as one made yesterday asking the case be tried in San Francisco at a hearing next Monday.

(Marin County officials said today that even if the case is transferred, under California law, Marin taxpayers will still have to pick up most of the tab for the costs.)

Judge Arnason yesterday also signed an order telling the attorney general's office to give to the defense statements made by George Jackson's mother and his attorney to the grand jury.

Public Drunkenness Debate Is Scheduled

BOSTON (UPI)—The Massachusetts House begins debate today on legislation to repeal the crime of public intoxication.

The bill, given a favorable report Monday by the House Ways and Means Committee, would also establish a statewide network of centers to treat alcoholics.

BLAME

bands and speakers that can be heard inside, have given inmates the impression that they have support on the outside, he said.

The fact that in the California Prison System today there has been more meaningful change in the past four years than ever before has been lost on the people who are crying for prison reform," he said.

But reforms that have been made have not satisfied the militants because that isn't their true goal, he said. "They have indicated that prisons are the breeding ground for true revolutionaries and intend to make the most of it."

"The militants who cry for prison reform present no positive programs for prison reform except, 'free all political prisoners.' "

"We are learning that within our institution there is an increasing number of people who consider themselves victims of the system," Nelson said. "They are being told this by people who are involved in the militant movement that because of the rottenness of the system they are required to steal, to kill, to take dope, to escape or do many other things in order to survive and that since it is the system that makes them do these things, they should not be punished for the acts of the system."

These people "totally disregard the fact that most of our inmates are the only persons in their family who have violated the law and who presumably were raised in the same environment as the balance of the family."

Nelson spoke bitterly of "a new breed of attorneys, who demanded concession after concession ... attorneys brought with them assorted characters under the guise of potential witnesses or investigators. One attorney wanted to have 50 persons named investigators in his particular case, thus allowing each of them access to the institution during regular working hours."

Criticism of the prisons isn't lost on the inmates and they believe the "great bulk of people on the outside are in their corner and none in ours," Nelson said.

He said the attempts by persons on the outside to influence the inmates into violent acts "is succeeding aided by what seems to be an overly sympathetic press, except during times of great stress such as we have recently experienced," and by the fact that for some time court decisions "have tended to concern themselves less with the rights of groups but rather with the rights of individuals."

There must be some solution to the problem, Nelson said. "It is not readily apparent, however, to me as long as society tolerates the same sort of shenanigans that build up tensions within our institutions."

SHIELD

get equal consideration.

Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court urged that the shield be installed. He said he visited the San Francisco Hall of Justice where there is such a shield and said Judge Walter Alcagno found it invaluable during a Soledad Brothers hearing last month.

"We must maintain a feeling of security," said Judge Broderick. "Jurors must be able to serve without fear of mob action."

"If someone gets a weapon into the audience section, it seems to me they should be protected too," said Baptiste.

Which of the courtrooms will get the protective shield will be decided later.

In another motion by Wornum and a second by Baptiste, supervisors asked the county administrator to make a thorough review of present security measures to see if any relaxation is possible.

BULLET

entry wound was located in the midback and the exit is through the top of the skull."

Jackson's mother, Georgia Jackson, claimed after the prison violence that her son had been shot in cold blood and his body thrown out into the prison yard.

Prison officials said Jackson was shot when he fled from the Adjustment Center after pulling out a smuggled gun when he returned from a visit with an attorney.

Two other inmates and three guards were killed in the violence.

Joseph R. O'Brien, public information officer at the prison, declined to discuss Manwaring's report today. He said he had not seen it and was not an expert on trajectory.

He said the tower from which Jackson was shot as he fled across a prison court yard was 15 to 18 feet high and was 80 or 90 yards from Jackson when he was shot.

Dr. Cooke also said he was not qualified to speculate on whether a bullet fired at that angle could have hit Jackson in the back.

It would depend on Jackson's position when he was hit, Cooke said, and he didn't know the position.

Keith C. Craig, coroner's investigator, said that since Jackson was also wounded in the ankle, he could have been falling when struck by the fatal bullet. In that case, he said, "it's feasible" that a bullet fired from the tower could have gone in Jackson's back and exited at the top of his head.

More Pay Hikes In Mill Valley

With raises averaging 7.5 per cent for many Mill Valley city employees already approved, the Mill Valley City Council last night passed out salary increases ranging from 5 to 9.5 per cent to department heads and supervisors.

The council took the action even though the raises can't be paid until the current wage freeze expires and even though increases for police and firemen haven't yet been settled.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham said he proposed the raises because a survey of 23 California cities showed Mill Valley's salaries are low for department heads.

The council also approved creation of three new posts — police captain, accounting supervisor and deputy director of public works. Public works director Ross H. Benson will be promoted to the public works post and Lt. William Walsh to the police position while retaining their present duties with only a change in title.

The council handed out the raises even though the issue of pay increases for police and firemen remains unsettled. The city's negotiator and representatives from those two departments have signed a "memorandum of agreement" calling for wage increases, but the city council has yet to ratify the document because it cannot take effect until the freeze expires. Terms of the memorandum have not been disclosed, but the city previously had promised to grant raises at least equal to those given other non-supervisory employees.

Thirty-nine employees, excluding police and firemen, walked off their jobs July 1 in a dispute over recognition of their union, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

They returned to work Aug. 3 after the city council approved $50 across-the-board raises which averaged 7.5 per cent for most workers.

The monthly salaries set by the council for the three new posts are: accounting supervisor, $964; deputy director of public works, $1,377 and police captain, $1,260.

Raises granted other supervisory personnel, with the maximum each could earn (based on experience), were: 5 per cent to the recreation supervisor, bringing him to $923 per month; 7 per cent to secretary to the city manager ($685), librarian ($1,116), parks and recreation director ($1,377), park supervisor ($1,037), finance director ($1,391), director of community development, ($1,391), and city manager ($1,757).

Given to the fire and police chiefs were 8 per cent raises, bringing their salaries to $1,400 and $1,425 respectively. The assistant fire chief's salary was raised 9.5 per cent to $1,230 per month.

Restaurant Loses Plea On Expansion

A parking variance to allow expansion of Pat and Joe's restaurant in Mill Valley was denied last night for the second time.

The Mill Valley City Council voted 4-1 to overturn a planning commission decision granting a variance from offstreet parking requirements. The appeal was filed by the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce, long a foe of such variances in the downtown area.

Richard C. Conrad, speaking for the chamber, said the well patronized Lytton Square restaurant, closed since last month for alleged health code violations, already adds to congestion in the downtown area and the expansion would increase that congestion.

A variance from the required 54 parking spaces to allow expansion from 85 to 135 seats was approved by the planning commission Aug. 23. The chamber appealed three days later.

A similar variance, granted by the planning commission was overturned May 18 by the city council.

The Mill Valley City Council Also:

OPEN SPACE — Was told the North Ridge Open Space Committee, made up of persons from Larkspur, Corte Madera and Mill Valley, will meet at 8 p.m. Oct. 14 at Mill Valley City Hall.

COMMISSIONS — Referred to the planning commission and architectural advisory committee a proposal that the two seven-member bodies be reduced to five members.

PARKING — Told Jordan to prepare an ordinance requiring merchants unable to provide required offstreet parking to pay $1,500 for each space not provided. The money would be used to buy land for offstreet parking.

CLAIMS — Denied two claims: the first, for $5,809, was filed by Marie S. Graham of Ross, for damage to her auto when it allegedly was struck in front of 24 Hillcrest Street June 30 by a Mill Valley Refuse Service truck; the other, for $25,000, was filed by Mrs. Louis Freeman, San Francisco, for injuries allegedly suffered in a fall on a city sidewalk July 2.

GROUNDSMAN — Reinstated the position of groundsman II to the parks and recreation budget. The post had been eliminated during budget sessions.

LEASE — Told Cunningham and City Atty. Leland H. Jordan to proceed with collection of $540 in back rent and utility bills the city claims is owed it by Janice Aranoff, leasee of the city-owned Lytton Square bus depot property.

TAX — Officially set the 1971-72 tax rate at $2.76 per $100 assessed valuation, down from last year's $2.929.

Pollution Deaths In New York City

NEW YORK (UPI) —The death rate in New York City rose as much as 10 per cent during periods of dense air pollution on 1970, according to Funk & Wagnall's 1970 yearbook.

"Most of the excess deaths were among the elderly and sufferers from cardiac and respiratory diseases, but some occurred among younger people and healthy newborn infants," the annual reference books says.

Glass Recycling On Old Bottles

NEW YORK (UPI)—The technology of glass recycling may make it possible for old bottles to provide glass for new bottles even after they have passed through the fiery heat of a modern refuse incinerator.

The Glass Container Manufacturers Institute reports ways have been discovered to extract glass fragments —and the metal residue left from cans as well —from the unburned ash that stays behind after the other refuse has been consumed by high-temperature incineration.

After removal, the salvaged bits of glass are scanned by light beams, which automatically sort them according to color. The material is then considered suitable for being melted down with sand and other substances to make glass for new containers.

Consultants For Sewage Study Hired

Two consultants, who will study both the $8.1 million sewage treatment system proposed for Bolinas and Stinson Beach and alternate solutions to the sewage problems of the two communities were hired last night by directors of the Stinson Beach County Water District.

Board president Hugh Dougherty said the board voted to employ Frank M. Stead, retired state director of environmental health and Dr. George Tchobanoglous, professor of sanitary engineering at the University of California at Davis.

The men will be paid a fee not to exceed $2,500, according to Dougherty, who said the report is to be completed within 60 days.

In addition to studying the proposed system and alternative methods of waste disposal, he said the consultants have been asked to determine to what extent it is possible to control population growth by controlling the availability of sewage treatment facilities.

Both long-range and interim solutions to the communities' sewage problems will be explored, according to Dougherty, who said the study will also focus on public health considerations involved in the various sewage treatment methods.

City Offices For Rohnert Park Backed

The Rohnert Park City Council last night tentatively approved construction of a new city office building.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the council reviewed rough sketches prepared by Architect Lawrence Simons and directed him to go ahead with more detailed drawings for the building to be located on Commerce Boulevard near Hinebaugh Creek.

Mrs. Logue said the council will hold a formal public hearing on the plans at the Oct. 4 meeting. Under the plan, the city will use one wing of the building for offices and will rent the other wing to the Cotati School District for office space.

The building currently used as the city hall will be turned over entirely to police and fire department use.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

DUPLEXES — Expressed reservations on the request of Sonoma Campus Co. to rezone 16 single residential lots for duplexes on Southwest Boulevard. A public hearing was set for Oct. 4.

SNYDER — Heard Sonoma Campus Co. protest the planned widening of Snyder Lane, calling it too expensive and premature. The council delayed action on the plan until Oct. 4.

GOLF — Heard City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan report he is working out an agreement with Sonoma State College for its use of the Rohnert Park Golf Course.

Camera Equipment Reported Stolen

About $500 worth of cameras and camera equipment were stolen Sunday from the auto of a South Hanover Park man who stopped at Denny's Restaurant for a cup of coffee, Corte Madera police said yesterday.

Officers said Reinaldo Miguel Jimenez reported the items missing shortly after he stopped at the restaurant at 3:40 a.m.

Ecology Curriculum Reviewed In Ross

The Ross School District board reviewed but took no action last night on a 150-page ecology curriculum guide for teachers.

According to Supt. Thomas A. Anderson, the guide will come up for adoption at the October meeting.

Basically the guide outlines the ecological assets of areas ranging from the Ross Common to Point Reyes National Seashore.

It was developed by consultant Dan Campbell and will be used by teachers wishing to conduct their own ecology trips.

Campbell, who has been employed as a consultant for the last two years, was instrumental in bringing outdoor study courses to the Ross district.

It was on one such field trip, that he and students discovered the pollution of Phoenix Lake by the Marin Municipal Water District.

The Ross School District board also:

PERSONNEL — Approved the hiring of Beverly Davis as a four-fifths time art teacher at a salary of $7,241 per year.

OBJECTIVES — Reviewed mandatory educational objectives developed by teachers and based on previously approved goals drafted by a special committee. The objectives were returned to staff for additional study.

COMPLAINT — Heard complaints from John Clow of Ross that students taking beginning algebra at Ross School are not being accepted in advanced classes at other schools and that the fourth grade spelling list during the first week of school was too easy. Supt. Anderson said the first week is devoted to spelling review and that students are being accepted in advanced classes.

Water Board To Study Foreaker Replacement

Marin Municipal Water District board will decide whether to appoint or elect a successor to director Raymond W. Foreaker Jr. when it meets at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at the district office.

Foreaker will resign at the meeting in order to become county public works director. When he announced his intention to resign two weeks ago, he told directors he felt his replacement should be elected rather than appointed.

Discussion at that time was cut off by chairman Robert G. Anderson who declared that a director (Foreaker) who had only been in office eight months should not "presume to suggest or dictate to the board" the manner in which his successor is to be selected.

Other directors did not comment at that time about their preference in selecting Foreaker's replacement.

Consumer Protection Is Really Old Stuff

CHICAGO (UPI)—Consumer protection for at least one group of buyers came to England 262 years ago.

The 1709 English copyright act, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, provided that if a customer considered the published price of a book to be unreasonably high a complaint could be filed with the Archbishop of Canterbury and others.

If these authorities agreed with the customer, a lower price was put on the book and the merchant was fined 5 pounds for every copy he sold in excess of that amount.

The Local Elections Adding Voting Fuel

NEW YORK (UPI) —When Ohio became the 38th state to ratify the 26th amendment to the Constitution enabling 18-year-olds to vote in all elections, a controversy over registration procedures began.

Students at Kent State University (Ohio) and at the Universities of Alabama and Kentucky are bringing suit to force officials to register them to vote in local elections. The issue: Should college students be allowed to vote in their college towns or the location of previous residence? Local officials see large student populations having unwarranted power in local elections.

Philippines Has New Government Award

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippines has instituted a new governmental award called "Presidential Citation for Outstanding Humanitarian Services."

A palace announcement says President Ferdinand E. Marcos ordered the award to give official recognition of those "who have rendered spontaneous, exemplary service in social welfare, education, health, and national defense undertaken by the government in times or urgent national need."

Next To Final SALT Working Round Held

HELSINKI (UPI)—American and Soviet negotiators today held their next to last working session during the fifth round of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) and decided to adjourn on Friday after a meeting with President Urho Kekkonen, conference sources said.

Today's meeting, the 91st since SALT began in the Finnish capital in late 1969 and the 22nd since the talks resumed in Helsinki on July 8, was held in a "more intensive atmosphere" than ever before, the sources said.

A FIND — William M. Harnett's "Ease", a masterpiece of 19th Century "trompe l'oeil" American painting, has come onto the market after being lost in San Francisco for nearly 70 years. The four-by-five foot painting is valued at $350,000.

Planning Firm Hiring Delayed

The Tiburon City Council last night postponed hiring a San Francisco planning firm when one councilman asked to review other applicants and said there was "considerable dissatisfaction" with the firm's previous work for the city.

Councilman Branwell D. Fanning said he wanted to look at the other applications before making a decision whether to hire Mocine and Williams, the firm the city staff had recommended.

Mayor Denis T. Rice said Fanning's request was reasonable and council would put off deciding whether to hire the firm until the other applicants could be reviewed.

Richard Arjo, planning director, said Mocine and Williams was picked from among several firms which applied when they heard "through the grapevine" that the city was interested in a consultant for its general plan. The job had not been advertised, he said.

Arjo said Mocine and Williams was recommended because it had done planning work for the city in 1966 and the council indicated to him that it wanted to hire a firm as soon as possible.

Fanning said there was "considerable dissatisfaction" with the firm's work for the city in 1966.

Councilwoman Anne L. Ellinwood disagreed with Fanning saying that the firm was justified in quitting work for the city because the city staff did not cooperate with the firm.

Sidney Williams, representing the firm, said he was shocked at the accusation of bad work. "I didn't think our work was being criticized," he said. "We left voluntarily."

The Tiburon City Council Also:

STRAWBERRY — Went into closed session and announced on emerging it would put off condemning a 6.7 acre parcel in Strawberry Cove and accepting participation with the Strawberry Recreation District to buy the land pending a meeting on price with the owner, Leonard B. Fleischman. Tiburon wants the land for a park while Fleischman is attempting to develop the property into a 72-unit apartment complex.

HIGHWAY — Passed a resolution opposing the state Highway Division plan making highway 131 a four-lane road partially running along the shoreline and requiring bay fill. The council stressed that safety, lighting and other road improvements should be made.

HOLDING — Requested the city staff to zone certain parts of tha city holding areas preventing development until proper use could be determined. Balmer said the ridgelands would be one area that might be zoned a holding area because the city may want to keep the land in open space.

DESIGN — Asked the Tiburon Planning Commission to express its views on how broad the scope of the Tiburon Board of Design should be. Mayor Denis T. Rice suggested the board might review single-story family residences (it now reviews two-story residences, apartments and commercial developments), but Miss Ellinwood said this might result in duplicate housing designs and less creativity.

PEACE — Decided to put on a future agenda Miss Ellinwood's request that the city endorse a peace expression on Oct. 13. She said several people have been working on plans for a short-lived and simple expression of peace such as a march along the Richardson Bay bike trail. She added the motto would be "joining hands for peace."

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to Sept. 27.

GOP Leader Says Drive Improper

Telephone solicitations to Marin County Republicans to donate to their party, by a publication calling itself The Republican, were branded as unauthorized today.

The chairman of the Marin County Republican Central Committee, Rodgers Broomhead of Ross, told the Independent-Journal that any fund drive in Marin would require his approval, "and I have not given it."

The San Diego-based publication started its telephone campaign in Marin some time last week, he said. Party members reported to Broomhead that they were told "this is an opportunity to donate to the Republican Party," and were asked to give $10 to the publication.

Broomhead stressed that the publication has no official party sanction to raise funds. He noted that "anybody can buy a list of voters."

Terra Linda CSD Will Seek Director

Even though a consolidation election may put the district board out of business by January, Terra Linda Community Services District directors last night decided they wanted to recruit applications for the directorship vacated by the resignation of Nicholas E. Toussaint last month.

On Nov. 2, Terra Linda voters will decide whether to consolidate the community services district and the Terra Linda Parks and Recreation District. If the merger is approved, the new Terra Linda CSD director would serve only the remainder of 1971. Otherwise the term will be for two years, according to Robert N. Bennett, chairman of the board.

Dedication Set

Rohnert Park will dedicate its new sewage disposal plant in a ceremony Thursday at 10:45 a.m. The dedication will be followed by an inspection tour and conclude with a luncheon at the Carriage House.

Board Asks Control Over Development

The Marinwood Community Services District board last night adopted requirements it will recommend to the county planning commission for a planned 20-acre subdivision at the end of Kernberry Drive.

Genevieve Bolding, business manager and secretary for the district, said the board wants design review for the parcel, owned by Aubrey Holman, in addition to street, drainage, fire hydrant and a fire trail easement requirements.

She said that Holman plans to divide the land into four parcels, building a home for himself on one, selling two others and setting aside the fourth as a park.

Because the land is very hilly and a geological study showed some soil instability, Mrs. Bolding said, the board wants to review plans so that draining onto existing homes below will be controlled.

The board also will recommend to the planning commission that the park parcel be dedicated either to the community services district or to the county.

In other action last night the community services district board decided to submit a bid of $1,200 a month for maintenance at the Roundtree condominium development.

Mrs. Bolding said that the development is seeking someone to maintain planting there.

Youths Held In Burglary Of House

Robert Elton Yates, 86 Forest Lane, San Rafael, and Michael James DeMello of no known address were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary and held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

The youths were arrested in connection with a residential burglary at 108 Coleman Drive at about noon yesterday. The house is owned by Richard W. Wolk, M.D., of Houston, Tex., and is rented by Theodore N. Brown, Daniel Garrett and Robert Trost.

Two witnesses said they saw Yates leaving the scene in a car, according to the police report. A police officer spotted Yates' car at Lea Drive near Surry Lane and stopped him. Police said they found a watch, field glasses, boots and sunglasses the residents reported missing.

At 5 p.m., DeMello called the police station asking if he could see Yates. Police said they told DeMello they wanted to see him and went out and picked him up.

Trial Set In Robbery Case

Trial was set for the week of Nov. 1.

Nivens was arrested Aug. 25 after a San Anselmo woman was attacked in her car in San Rafael. She fended off the attacker and got the license number of his car, which was traced to Nivens, according to San Rafael police.

A 'Lost' Harnett Masterpiece Found

NEW YORK (UPI)—A masterpiece of 19th century American painting, William M. Harnett's "Ease," came onto the market Monday after being "lost" in San Francisco for nearly 70 years.

The four by five foot canvas, valued at $350,000 by the Kennedy Galleries, had been in the possession of a California family for three generations and had been stored UNTIL RECENTLY IN a basement, according to gallery director Lawrence A. Fleischman. IT depicts Victorian bric-a-brac on a table in a realist style known as trompe l'oeil (trick-the-eye).

Fleischman said the owner, a woman whose name is being withheld, knew the identity of the artist but did not know of Harnett's importance in the booming American art market. Lesser works of the New York still life specialist who died in 1892 have brought as much as $75,000 at auction in recent years.

"She showed it to an art historian who recommended that she write to me," said Fleischman, a former Detroit cultural leader who is a leading authority on American art. "When I opened the letter, a snapshot of the picture fell out, and I knew what it was immediately."

The dealer recognized the picture because he was familiar with a photograph published in a book about Harnett in 1953 and a detailed description of the painting published in the Springfield (Mass.) Republican in 1887. "Ease" was commissioned from Harnett in that year by paper manufacturer James T. Abbe of Holyoke, Mass., near Springfield.

Abbe is known to have sold the painting to West Coast railroad tycoon Collis P. Huntington before 1900. It is not known how the canvas made its way from Huntington's extensive art collection into the possession of a San Francisco picture framer whose granddaughter will share the proceeeds of its sale with the gallery. A price of $350,000 would set a record for an American art work.

All objects in the painting belonged to Abbe—a Bible, volume of American history, flute, violin, sheet music, palmetto fan, oil study lamp, silver vase, and library scissors. A lighted cigar rests on a newspaper and has begun to burn a hole in it.

Chicago's Mayor Denies Pressure In Booting Book

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley has denied that his wife pressured a supermarket chain into removing the bestselling controversial book "Boss —oichard J. Daley of Chicago" from its shelves.

Daley told a news conference Monday that Mrs. Eleanor Daley had told some neighbors and friends that the book, by Chicago Daily News columnist Mike Royko, was "trash and hogwash."

"It was some of the neighbors and friends of ours" who actually made the protests to the National Tea Co. stores, Daley said.

Special Session For Rec Board

The Strawberry Recreation District board will discuss management and operation of district property when it meets in special session at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The special meeting was called because of the lack of a quorum at the regularly scheduled meeting last night, according to Jeanne Heick, District clerk.

Panel To Eye Mobile Homes

The San Rafael Planning Commission will consider whether to permit a mobile home park with facilities for 400 mobile homes off Smith Ranch Road at its adjourned meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

The commission will hear from the city attorney on the legality of imposing an access road to the Smith Ranch Airport through the property of the mobile home park owned by Jordan Smith. This held up commission approval at its last meeting.

The commission will also consider how far the planning staff should go in approving building permits for additions to houses. At issue is whether the staff should approve an additional bedroom that may be illegally used later for a rented room.

Auditions Set In Goldsmith Play

The Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts will hold auditions for Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m. at the theater on Buena Vista Avenue.

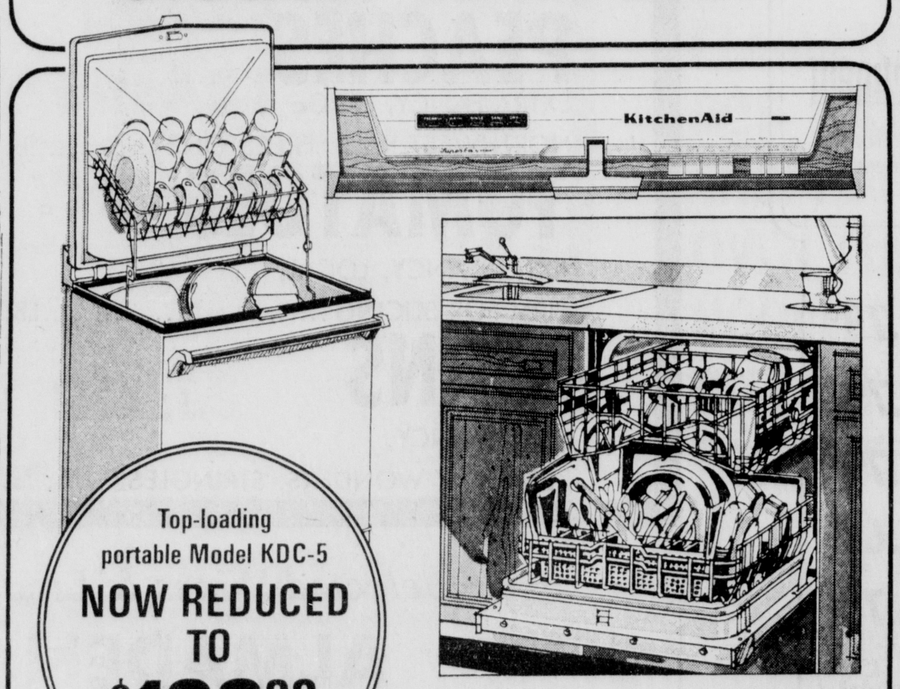

Edgar Weinstock will direct the play which is to be done in modern dress.

2 Cited In Theft At Larkspur School

Two Corte Madera boys, 9 and 10, were cited Sunday to juvenile authorities on suspicion of burglarizing the Larkspur-Corte Madera School in Larkspur.

Officers said yesterday they found the boys at the school after a silent alamr had been trpped.

ABAG Issues Warning On Dumping Sewage In Ocean

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

BERKELEY — Proposals to dump sewage into the Pacific Ocean instead of San Francisco Bay merely shift pollution from the bay to the ocean, ignoring the need to upgrade treatment and reuse of wastewater.

This warning has been issued by the Association of Bay Area Governments in an initial plan for water, sewerage and drainage in the nine-county region.

The plan also suggested a slowdown in the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct.

The ocean long has been eyed by Southern Marin sewerage agencies as the likely dumping ground for a joint system going out Tennessee Valley to the coastline, and there may be no alternative for them, the report conceded.

The ABAG plan, approved Thursday night by the association's executive committee and distributed yesterday, cautioned, however, that the ocean will prove much more difficult than the bay to control and monitor the effects of sewage discharge.

"Much more investigative study is necessary before the ocean can be considered as the recipient of the region's wastewaters," it said. "Unless this is done, future generations may find themselves with the same problems in the ocean as exist in the bay today."

The plan, done by ABAG engineering consultants Metcalf and Eddy of Palo Alto, also criticized local agencies for failing to keep drainage facilities in tune with the demands of growing development.

Criticizing drainage systems in Marin, the plan said the county's flood control and water conservation district has "no overall plan." The district is run by the county supervisors.

In San Anselmo, it said, the storm drain system was installed 40 to 50 years ago and "has begun to fail and is inadequate for current development." The plan said "a complete master plan for storm drainage is badly needed."

In San Rafael, it found that the city "does not have adequate drainage facilities." The city has a tentative 10-year program to correct the problems, but "no specific plans at this time for funding the program have been made," it said.

In Novato, it noted the "northwest area of the city is presently exposed to local flooding, and improvements are badly needed."

A slowdown in development of the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct from the Russian River may even be called for, the plan suggested. It noted that population growth had fallen below previous projections for the two counties, thus "project scheduling should be modified accordingly."

(Marin Municipal Water District directors have noted the lower population prediction, but scheduling of the project has not been modified.)

The 217-page plan which cost $35,000 is designed to provide ABAG with a guide to review applications by local agencies for state and federal funds.

It also stressed the need to develop a method to give at least cursory treatment to stormwater runoff. This runoff, the consultants said, "is so highly contaminated that, for short periods, it often discharges more pollution than the primary effluent of a wastewater (sewage) treatment plant."

The plan, however, gave high marks to water planning in the region, concluding that the "Bay Area as a whole can depend on an adequate supply for the next 20 years or longer."

An ABAG spokesman told the Independent-Journal that the final plan on water, sewerage and drainage would be done jointly by ABAG and the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

In other recommendations, the plan urged creation of a new regional agency to build a regional sewerage system discharging into deep bay waters.

Legislation to create such an agency in the Bay Area is awaiting final passage in Sacramento.

Large pipes discharging treated sewage into deep bay water will be needed regardless of future recycling of wastewater, the plan said. There always will be a need for moving "unused and unusable" wastewater to the bay, it said — the same conclusion reached by the regional board in June.

In Southern Marin, only the Tiburon and the Sausalito-Marin City sanitary district may overcome their pollution problems without joining a subregional system discharging into the ocean, the plan said. These two agencies discharge outside the confines of Richardson Bay, a constricted arm of the bay with poor circulation.

Hopes for total reclamation of wastewater "may never be feasible," the plan acknowledged, but it stressed that the goal still must be "maximum reuse." Major use for reclaimed wastewater probably will be limited to industrial cooling water, agricultural and recreational irrigation, and recharge of underground water supplies.

Greenman Chosen Forum President

Robert W. Greenman Jr. of Mill Valley has been elected president of the new Marin Democratic Forum.

Members of the organization changed its name from the Mill Valley Democratic Club because many of them lived outside Mill Valley. The club was formed in 1952, and now hopes to become a countywide organization, according to its corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank P. Helm.

Abolishing Chain Gangs To Governor

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The State Assembly voted final passage and sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan Monday legislation to abolish prisoner chain gangs in California.

The measure repeals a law which places police chiefs in charge of "chain gangs" created by city councils.

Series Of Hearings Set On County Master Plan

Marin's preliminary countywide plan will get a series of public hearings from Sept. 30 through Oct. 30 in various localities throughout the county.

The preliminary plan calls for future urban growth to be concentrated in present city areas in the eastern one-third of the county, with the remaining two-thirds predominantly open and rural.

The plan also encourages social and economic diversity and visitor enterprise as a means toward more economic self-sufficiency.

The City-County Planning Council, headed by Anne L. Ellinwood of Tiburon, will sponsor the public hearings as follows:

Thursday, Sept. 30 — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. auditorium, Third and Brooks streets, San Rafael, 8 p.m.

Wednesday, Oct. 6 — Novato Community House, 8 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 14 — West Marin School, Point Reyes Station, 8 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 21 — Sir Francis Drake High School, Little Theater, San Anselmo, 8 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 30 — Countywide symposium on the countywide plan, College of Marin, Olney Hall, 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Former Aides To Wallace Indicted

A grand jury here indicted former State Docks Director Houston Feaster, former State Finance Director Seymore Trammell, former State Democratic Committeeman Earl Goodwin of Selma, and Robert H. Cottingham and Elton B. Stephens, both of Gadsden.

Creek Walk Set Tomorrow

The annual inspection of San Anselmo and Sleepy Hollow creeks in San Anselmo will begin tomorrow at 9 a.m., Charles R. Letizell, director of public works, has announced.

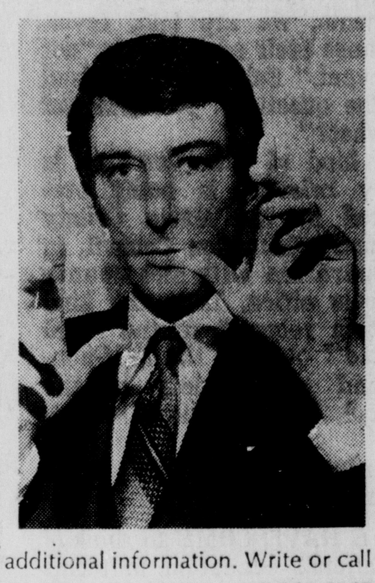

The inspection is made, he said, to locate trees, debris and other obstructions which may interfere with the free flow of water during the winter rainy season.

Because of the interest in the creeks, he said, the inspection has been turned into a "public creek walk" with everyone interested in attending to meet at the parking lot at Lansdale and Forest avenues.

He advised wearing either hip boots or shorts and tennis shoes.

Beaten By Friends

RIED, Austria (UPI)—Farmer Josef Neubauer, 50, was beaten by his village friends for posing with a nude blonde girl in a sex magazine.

Vocational Education Gets A New Look

We hear much talk these days about "relevance" in education. High school and college students, we are told, revolt because their education is "not relevant." Seldom even raised is the question, "Not relevant to what?"

A kind of education that is truly relevant is being promoted by the Marin County Industry-Education Council, in cooperation with the county schools office. It is the kind that is relevant to the "real world" outside the self-contained mini-society of the school. It is vocational education.

Unfortunately, the name turns people off.

WE HAVE COME to think of vocational education in terms of the woodshop or auto shop course taught in the high school basement or an adjacent sheet-metal shack that spoils the appearance of the campus. And increasingly in recent years, we have come to think of it as a place for "dropouts," for those who "can't cut it" in the academic studies. Carolyn Horan, career counselor for the county schools, says that "at least three times every day, some one asks me if we're running a school for dropouts."

It's not like that — not as promoted and practiced by the Marin County schools office and the Marin County Industry-Education Council. And so, recognizing the importance of labels, they're calling it "career education."

LAST WEEK at the Pacific Gas and Electric Building in San Rafael, they showed a film prepared by the California Department of Education to illustrate what career education is and can be. The turnout of about 60 people included (unfortunately, we thought) a minority of industry and business representatives, with the majority being teachers.

This new type of vocational education, as it has been started here, utilizes those schools that have up-to-date equipment for teaching such things as auto repair, electronics, vocational nursing, office practices, etc. The student, who can be anyone who has passed his 16th birthday, is bused to his class. The program may include work experience training in addition to the classwork.

The young man or woman who completes a course is qualified for entry-level employment. The county schools office tries to place each graduate in a job.

The career education program does not necessarily end there, however. The employed graduate may return for more advanced training to help him climb the "real world" ladder on which he has attained the bottom rung.

THIS PROGRAM has advantages which we feel should commend it to both schools and employers: It need not interfere with the academic program in the schools (and should not, for no vocational advancement is open to the young man or woman who failed to get the basics of academic instruction). Its application to actual employment is much more practical than was that of the old-style "shop course." And it involves leaders of industry and business in the educational process.

The Marin County career education program is still in its infancy. We hope it will grow, and will not depart from the approach it has taken so far.

Can't Satisfy Democrats, Even With All The Breaks

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Some folks just can't stand prosperity. They're never satisfied. Give them the biggest slice and they want the whole pie.

Take our Democratic friends in the state Assembly. When it comes to dividing up the 80 Assembly districts, they want it all. One-man, one-vote, one-party.

Republican assemblymen went to a lot of trouble to work out a reapportionment proposal. They used computer wizardry to figure out boundaries which would permit a community of interest within the districts. They provided for an increase in legislators from the minority groups. They worked things out so that each of the 80 new districts reflected population shifts and no district's population would be more than one per cent over or under 249,414 — the magic number for the "ideal" district.

And what happens? The Democratics called it "a joke," "a stunt." Said it was unfair. And, it is. To Republicans.

FOR EXAMPLE: the statewide partisan registration as of November, 1970, was 55 per cent Democratic and 40 per cent Republican. Yet, the GOP plan would give Democrats the registration edge in 75 per cent of the 80 Assembly districts.

That's a pretty fair shake for the Democrats. But they don't think it's good enough. One reason is they just can't stand competition. And, when you look at the vital statistics of recent Assembly elections, you understand why.

Of the 37 incumbent Republican assemblymen, 28 (75 per cent) were elected from districts where the GOP registration was less than 50 per cent. About 40 per cent were elected from districts where the GOP registration was less than 45 per cent.

Let's face it. Democrats gotta have a stacked deck or they can't win.

THAT'S NOT ALL that's bugging them about the GOP plan. For years, left-wing Democrats have been whispering sweet nothings to minority groups. Kept telling the Negros and the Mexican Americans they deserved better representation. Which they do.

So, the GOP comes up with a plan to give the minorities the opportunity to pick up four or five Assembly seats and what happens? The left-wingers pop their corks. Why? Because the plan would carve up some of their private plantations; open those districts to minority group representation! Ho-ho-ho!

Take Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park. Walter's a wheel, Speaker Bob Moretti's strong left hand. He's majority floor leader in the Assembly. Under the GOP plan, the ethnic make-up of about 5/6 of the area in Karabian's new 45th district would be 50 per cent or more Mexican-American. That means the Mexican-Americans could elect their own man to represent them.

Same thing with Jack Fenton, D-Montebello, another wheel, member of Moretti's power guard, chairman of the Assembly's Finance and Insurance Committee (which is a handy place from which to raise campaign funds for the party). Fenton's proposed new 51st district would also provide Mexican-Americans with a real opportunity to elect one of their own.

And Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco, a lib of whom there is no libber, he who is chairman of the Assembly Rules Committee? His new 20th district would be drawn to include a large number of Negroes. Enough, perhaps, to send a Negro to the Assembly.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Schools' Appointment Methods Questioned

At the Sept. 7 regular meeting of trustees of the San Anselmo School District at least two new "positions" were filled that we believe bear further looking into by the people of this district.

There appear to be no approved specifications for the job of "teaching assistant". The agenda calls for a 5½ hour day at $497 per month. One of the duties as outlined in a note apparently not yet approved by the board calls for "identifying educationally handicapped youngsters" throughout the district . . .

These jobs were described by Mr. (Eugene M.) Cochran, head of the E. H. program in San Anselmo, as being worth $3.57 an hour (or approximately $345 per month for a 5½ hour day) but the Classified Employees Association recommended the $497 and $472 figures!

In another case, on the same evening, a job for "clerk" for Red Hill School was filled by Sophia Spencer. On questioning Supt. (Kenneth) Lowry, it was discovered that an ad was placed in the I.J. which elicited 30 written replies. Mr. Lowry stated that he at least had not even read the replies (and he knew of no one else who had read them) since when it was learned that Mrs. Spencer wanted the job, it was immediately given her. There are no specifications on file for a "clerk" job, pay $497 for a six-hour day. It was explained that no principal would be hired at Red Hill to replace Mr. Donald Shaw (who passed away suddenly Aug. 2) but that a secretary and Mrs. Spencer would be the entire administration for the school with Mr. Lowry devoting part of his time to overseeing.

It has not escaped the notice of many citizens that two of these jobs have been filled by politically active persons. We wonder if it is not doing these women a disservice to fill these positions without absolutely clear-cut specifications and qualifications voted on by the board in advance of any recruiting . . .

Motivation Research: Corporate View

We at Motivation Research Center, Inc. appreciated the objective, unbiased manner in which your recent "Full Mind" article on Alpha Dynamics was presented.

However, the purpose of this letter is to clarify any misunderstandings that may have been created by the letter by Dr. G. Warren Kleinmaier, a member of our board of directors, as it appeared in your paper on Sept. 11.

In November of 1970, Dr. Kleinmaier was offered a position on our board of directors, as the results of his stated enthusiasm for our program and our desire to have a qualified M.D.-psychiatrist available to screen the Alpha Dynamics course, when it was being developed, as to the content of the course material.

After reviewing the materal, Dr. Kleinmaier offered no suggestions for changes from a professional, medical-psychiatric position.

He did offer suggestions for certain copy changes, of a grammatical nature, and some of his suggestions were implemented.

Unfortunately, as with most corporations, marketing and advertising copy decisions must be made daily by corporate executives. The board of directors are rarely consulted for opinions on routine corporate matters, and MRC has never implied that all our board of directors are asked to "approve" all printed copy or material.

We respect Dr. Kleinmaier as a dedicated professional, and as an individual of high personal integrity.

It was with regret that we accepted his formal resignation from our board of directors, effective Sept. 16, 1971. However, under the circumstances, we do feel it's to everyone's best interest.

Omission Of Message Perhaps Beneficial

Perhaps the omission of a Rosh Hashanah message to Marin Jewry on the occasion of the New Year 5732 which took place this weekend (Sun., Mon., Tues.) in temples and synagogues throughout the world, may have had a beneficial result-courtesy of the I-J. If you can't read about it, go hear it "live.".

Printing the annual New Year's message, (called to the attention of the I-J well in advance of the date) might have kept some readers from participating in the worship services conducted in Marin this year. Certainly the large attendance at these services would indicate that the omission of the New Year's message had no adverse results.

In any case — Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement (tomorrow) is an ideal time to forgive. Let's hope that Marin Jewry will do just that.

Isn't That Painting Scene In Rockport?

With reference to Mrs. S. Mizel's letter in Friday's paper (Sept. 17), may I carry this pleasantly nostalgic discussion a step further?

When I saw the Couper painting to which Mrs. Mizel refers, my heart leaped as I thought I recognized the well-known "Motif No. 1," so-called, I'd always understood, because it was one of the foremost subjects chosen by painters from all over the world. As a child I played around it, as an art student I painted it, and as an adult, when I can, I revisit it. But isn't it in Rockport?

Actually I was willing to let Tiburon have it, as granted by the Journal, in the spirit of beauty shared. Let me thank Mrs. Mizel for her note of correction. But my curiosity, aroused, remains.

Lack Of Financial Report Overlooked

Having attended the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council board meeting of Sept. 15, I was surprised to see that the I-J reporter had not included in his coverage of that meeting the interesting case of Alan Shattuck.

Mr. Shattuck had been hired by the MCEOC to prepare the financial statement for that agency for the year ending March 1971. Unfortunately, Mr. Shattuck has not yet found time to complete his task although nearly five months have elapsed. Perhaps Mr. Shattuck is not aware that the board of supervisors cannot give the MCEOC moneys promised until the report has been prepared and made available. In the meantime, the manpower program that the money was needed for has withered and is on its way out. It seems as though Mr. Shattuck no longer worries about his job or its effect on others' lives since he has already received payment through December 1971.

As a member of the MCEOC board of directors (and, of course, as a member of the human race) I do not comprehend why your reporter did not consider this newsworthy, nor even worth mention with other, more routine agenda items.

Justice Black's Retirement Opens Way For Virginian

WASHINGTON — At the age of 85, Justice Hugo Lafayette Black has just resigned, coincidental with a serious illness. After a tumultuous and troubled beginning on the Supreme Court, he has served his country well, with an independence of mind and spirit that has characterized the truly distinguished judges in the long history of the court.

Justice Black's many admirers had hoped he would be able to return to the bench, if not at the opening of the fall term on Oct. 4, then shortly thereafter. His anticipation was to have served longer than any other justice had. Only two have exceeded his 34 years. One was Chief Justice John Marshall and the other Associate Justice Stephen J. Field.

THE COMPOSITION of the supreme court, the highest body in the third independent branch of government, is not for years but for decades. This makes the president's appointive power one of the most important functions of the chief executive. He can determine the direction of the court as the final arbiter far beyond his own term or terms in the white house.

In this department Mr. Nixon's record has been dismal. Twice the Senate, with some Republican support, rejected his nominations. Both Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and G. Harrold Carswell were found, ideological considerations to one side, unfitted for the high court. Finally, after two long controversies ending in defeat, the President named a meutral figure, Judge Harry A. Blackmun of the circuit court of Appeals of the eighth Circuit.

When a vacancy occurred with the resignation of Justice Abe Fortas, following a bitter controversy over his nomination to be chief justice, the name of Rep. Richard H. Poff of Virginia was immediately speculated on. It was soon realized that Poff, second ranking Republican member of the House Judiciary Committee serving his 10th term in Congress, was ineligible. Under the constitution a member of congress may not be appointed to an office for which he has voted a raise in pay.

WITH ELECTION to a new Congress this barrier no longer applies, and it is widely believed that Poff is in line for the next vacancy on the court. An ideological conservative, stopping considerably short of being a Byrd Virginian, Poff gets high marks from both liberals and conservatives on the judiciary committee for his knowledge of the law and the judicial process.

When Poff's name was speculated on earlier, Chairman Emanuel Celler and Rep. Robert Kastenmier, who has served for many years on a subcommittee with the Virginian, told him half-jokingly that if he had any trouble with the Senate Judiciary Committee over confirmation they would be happy to come and testify for him. Kastenmeier, a Democrat from Wisconsin, points out that in the recent battle in the House to repeal the concentration camp Law, Poff supported the repealers against the conservatives.

A Poff nomination would go through with no difficulty. This would be the President's third appointment. Given more than a year still in office, barring a second term, Mr. Nixon may well have an opportunity to name a majority of the nine judges. This is underscored by the fact that a second justice, John M. Harlan, 72, has been hospitalized since Aug. 12.

TIME AFTER TIME it has been shown that it is one thing to establish a court liberal or conservative in color and quite another matter for the court to keep that coloration. Chief Justice Warren Burger, the first Nixon appointee, wrote the decision of a unanimous court last April upholding the constitutionality of school busing, rejecting the administration's claim that southern school districts should be permitted to assign students to schools in their own neighborhoods even if this slowed the pace of desegregation. Burger's predecessor, retired Chief Justice Earl Warren, also appointed by a Republican President, wrote in 1954 the landmark decision of Brown vs. Board of Education ending the "separate but equal" doctrine.

One of the longest and most stubborn deadlocks occurred in the early '30s. A Supreme Court with a conservative majority turned down one after the other basic New Deal reforms. There followed Franklin D. Roosevelt's disastrous "court packing" proposal, which was defeated by the Senate. This, together with the age of the justices, brought a quick reversal and a new court.

Old Patriot Stirs New Fears Of War On Cyprus

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Even though Gen. Gorge Grivas is 73 years old, the mention of his name still can cause tremors on the island of Cyprus and bring a frown to the forehead of Greek Premier George Papadopoulos.

Ever since the mid-1950's when he led Cypriot guerrillas in a fight for independence from Britain, Grivas' name has been associated with violence and intrigue worthy of a paperback spy thriller.

After a period of relative obscurity, his name surfaced again in recent days when he disappeared from Greek government surveillance in Athens and, amid rumors, reappeared in Cyprus. Even though Grivas himself maintained silence, his presence was enough to cause the island to brace for renewed trouble.

WITHIN THE GOVERNMENT of President Archbishop Makarios there was a fear that violence, if it came, might be directed at Makarios himself. In preindependence days, the archbishop and Grivas had been close allies. Later, sharp differences arose, most of them stemming from Grivas' fanatic devotion to "Enosis," the union of Cyprus and Greece.

Makarios, at one time also a proponent of Enosis, now favors Cypriot independence and peaceful co-existence between its Greek and Turkish inhabitants.

The issue between Greeks seeking Enosis and Turks favoring partition is responsible for much of the violence on the island going back years. More than a hundred assassination attempts have occurred since Cyprus became independent in 1960, several of them against Makarios.

A 1968 attempt against Greek Premier Papadopoulos was said to have Cyprus links.

FORCES OPPOSED to both Papadopoulos and Makarios are suspected of having a hand in Grivas' escape from his closely guarded Athens home.

Grivas' surprise return to Cyprus climaxes a summer of increasing tensions between the island's 600,000 Greeks and approximately 100,000 Turks. It was Grivas who as commander of the Cypriot National Guard in 1967 ordered an attack on two Turkish villages that nearly led to war between Greece and Turkey.

As result of that incident Grivas was ordered into unwilling retirement and placed under guard.

GREECE, TURKEY and Great Britain are co-guarantors of Cypriot independence under terms of a treaty signed in 1960.

Three years of talks between leadrs of the Cypriot, Greek and Turkish communities foundered on the old issue of partition as demanded by the Turks.

Failure of local leaders has led to mounting fears among Greek Cypriots that the governments of Greece and Turkey were nearing agreement of their own which would be imposed upon the island, on terms unfavorable to the Greek inhabitants.

A United Nations peacekeeping force has been on the island since the spring of 1964 under terms renegotiated every six months by U.N. Secretary General Thant. Makarios has dispatched his foreign minister to New York where the U.N. General Assembly is to convene tomorrow. Reportedly, he is to seek new moves to break the deadlock.

How The Great Bus Boycott Ended Marin's Commute Woes

Long after the anti-busing movement waned in San Francisco, it gathered strength in Marin, spurred by the wives and children of commuters.

A new bride tired of watching a Greyhound bus carry off her husband each morning forlornly mentioned to her friends that it was a lousy way to live.

"It would be nice if all the husbands could work in their hometowns," she said. "I'm sick of my husband being bused to work."

"Well, then, let's do something about it," replied Mrs. Zap, who got in the habit of zapping things during the Women's Liberation campaign and didn't want to quit zapping.

SOON THERE WERE slogans appearing on hillsides, fences and buildings reading: "Busing Separates Families," "Busing Is An Aid to Segregation," and "A Man at Home is Worth Two on a Bus."

Children gathered at bus stops carrying signs reading, "Don't Take Our Dads Away," "Think of Those They Leave Behind," and "I Don't Want To Be a Bus Driver When I Grow Up."

Women organized into a countywide group known as Women Against Commuting, known in some circles as the WACs, and its slogan was "Leave the Driving to Us."

Marin County supervisors were swamped with petitions to ban commuting on the grounds that it was bad for the economy of Marin.

"Look at all the lunch money we lose," said Mrs. Zap.

CONSERVATIONISTS, long foes of motor vehicles, advocated that no one should work farther away from home than he could walk. The ministerial association sent out a brochure entitled: "A Man Near Home Isn't Likely To Roam."

The first confrontation came when WAC declared a boycott and wives wouldn't drive their husbands to the nearest bus stop.

Several stubborn husbands who hiked to bus stops were met by rows of militant women who blocked their way and called them "Commuter cowards," "copout commuters," and "Highway 101 husbands."

One brave husband answered: "We have a right to commute if we want to. It's not that we want to be segregated from our families during the day."

Other men began to chant: "One, two, three, four, let us to the bus door."

THE WOMEN BEGAN to lie down in front of the bus and let the air out of the tires, while the men stacked up their brief cases and tried to climb up to the windows.

When Bus Stop 37 came to trial, they were advised to seek their remedy in a legal manner, and they did.

WAC got an injunction against busing for 30 days. The men stayed in Marin all day, liked it, and no one ever commuted again.

Soft Sell And Help Wanted: A Matter Of Motivation

WASHINGTON — One of the problems with today's economy is that it's very hard to find young people who are good salesmen. Many students coming out of college are more interested in a customer's motivation than they are in closing a sale. They also have a tendency to be too honest, which can play havoc in the retail business.

A friend of mine has a dress shop here in Georgetown and she told me of the problems she had with a young lady, a psychology major, whom she hired as a salesgirl.

This, in essence, is what happened:

THE FIRST DAY a lady came in the store, and the salesgirl (let us call her Miss Brampton) asked if she could be of help.

"I'd like a suit for the fall," the lady said.

"What price range?" Miss Brampton asked.

"It doesn't make any difference," the lady replied.

"Well, let me ask you this question: Do you want the suit because you need it? Or have you just had a fight with your husband and are trying to get even by making a very expensive purchase?"

"I BEG YOUR pardon?" the lady said.

"Perhaps you suspect him of some infidelity, and you think this is the only way you can get back at him."

"I have no idea what you're talking about," the customer said.

"Spending money in anger is a very expensive form of hostility. My advice to you is to think it over for a few days. Try to patch up your differences. Buying a new suit won't save your marriage."

"THANK YOU VERY much," the customer said frostily and left the store.

"She's angry with me now," Miss Brampton told the dress shop owner, "but in a week she'll be grateful I talked her out of it."

My friend the shop properietor decided to let the incident pass, but that afternoon another customer came in, and Miss Brampton asked if she could be of help.

The lady said, "I need something really exciting. I'm going to the Kennedy Center and I want a dress that will knock everyone dead."

MISS BRAMPTON said, "We have some lovely evening dresses over here for insecure people."

"Insecure people?"

"Oh, yes. Didn't you know that clothes are one of the main ways women compensate for insecurity?"

"I'm not insecure," the lady said angrily.

"Then why do you want to knock them dead at the Kennedy Center? Why can't you be accepted for yourself instead of what you wear? You are a very attractive person and you have an inner beauty you try to disguise. I can sell you a new dress that will attract attention, but then you would never know if it were you or the dress that made people stop and stare."

BY THIS TIME the dress shop owner decided to step in.

"Miss Brampton, if the lady wants an evening dress, let her see our evening dresses."

"No," the customer said. "Your girl is right. Why spend $500 to get a few compliments from people who really don't care what I wear? Thank you for helping me, young lady. It's true I've been insecure all these years and didn't even know it."

The customer walked out of the store.

The final straw for the dress store owner took place an hour later when a coed came in to buy a hotpants outfit, and Miss Brampton gave her 30 minutes on Women's Lib and then said, "All you do when you buy hotpants is become a sex object."

That night the dress shop owner put a sign in the window "Help Wanted — No Pyschology Majors Need Apply."

Jail Term In Sale Of Heroin

Dennis Lee Hovde, 22, of Corte Madera, was sentenced to nine months in Marin County Jail yesterday for selling heroin.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court also placed Hovde on probation for two years and gave him credit for time he has already spent in jail.

Hovde and Nalla Hovde, 27, were arrested July 8 by Marin drug agents who had obtained a warrant accusing Miss Hovde, who is also known as Judith Samuelson, of selling heroin to agents three times, and Hovde with selling it once, in June.

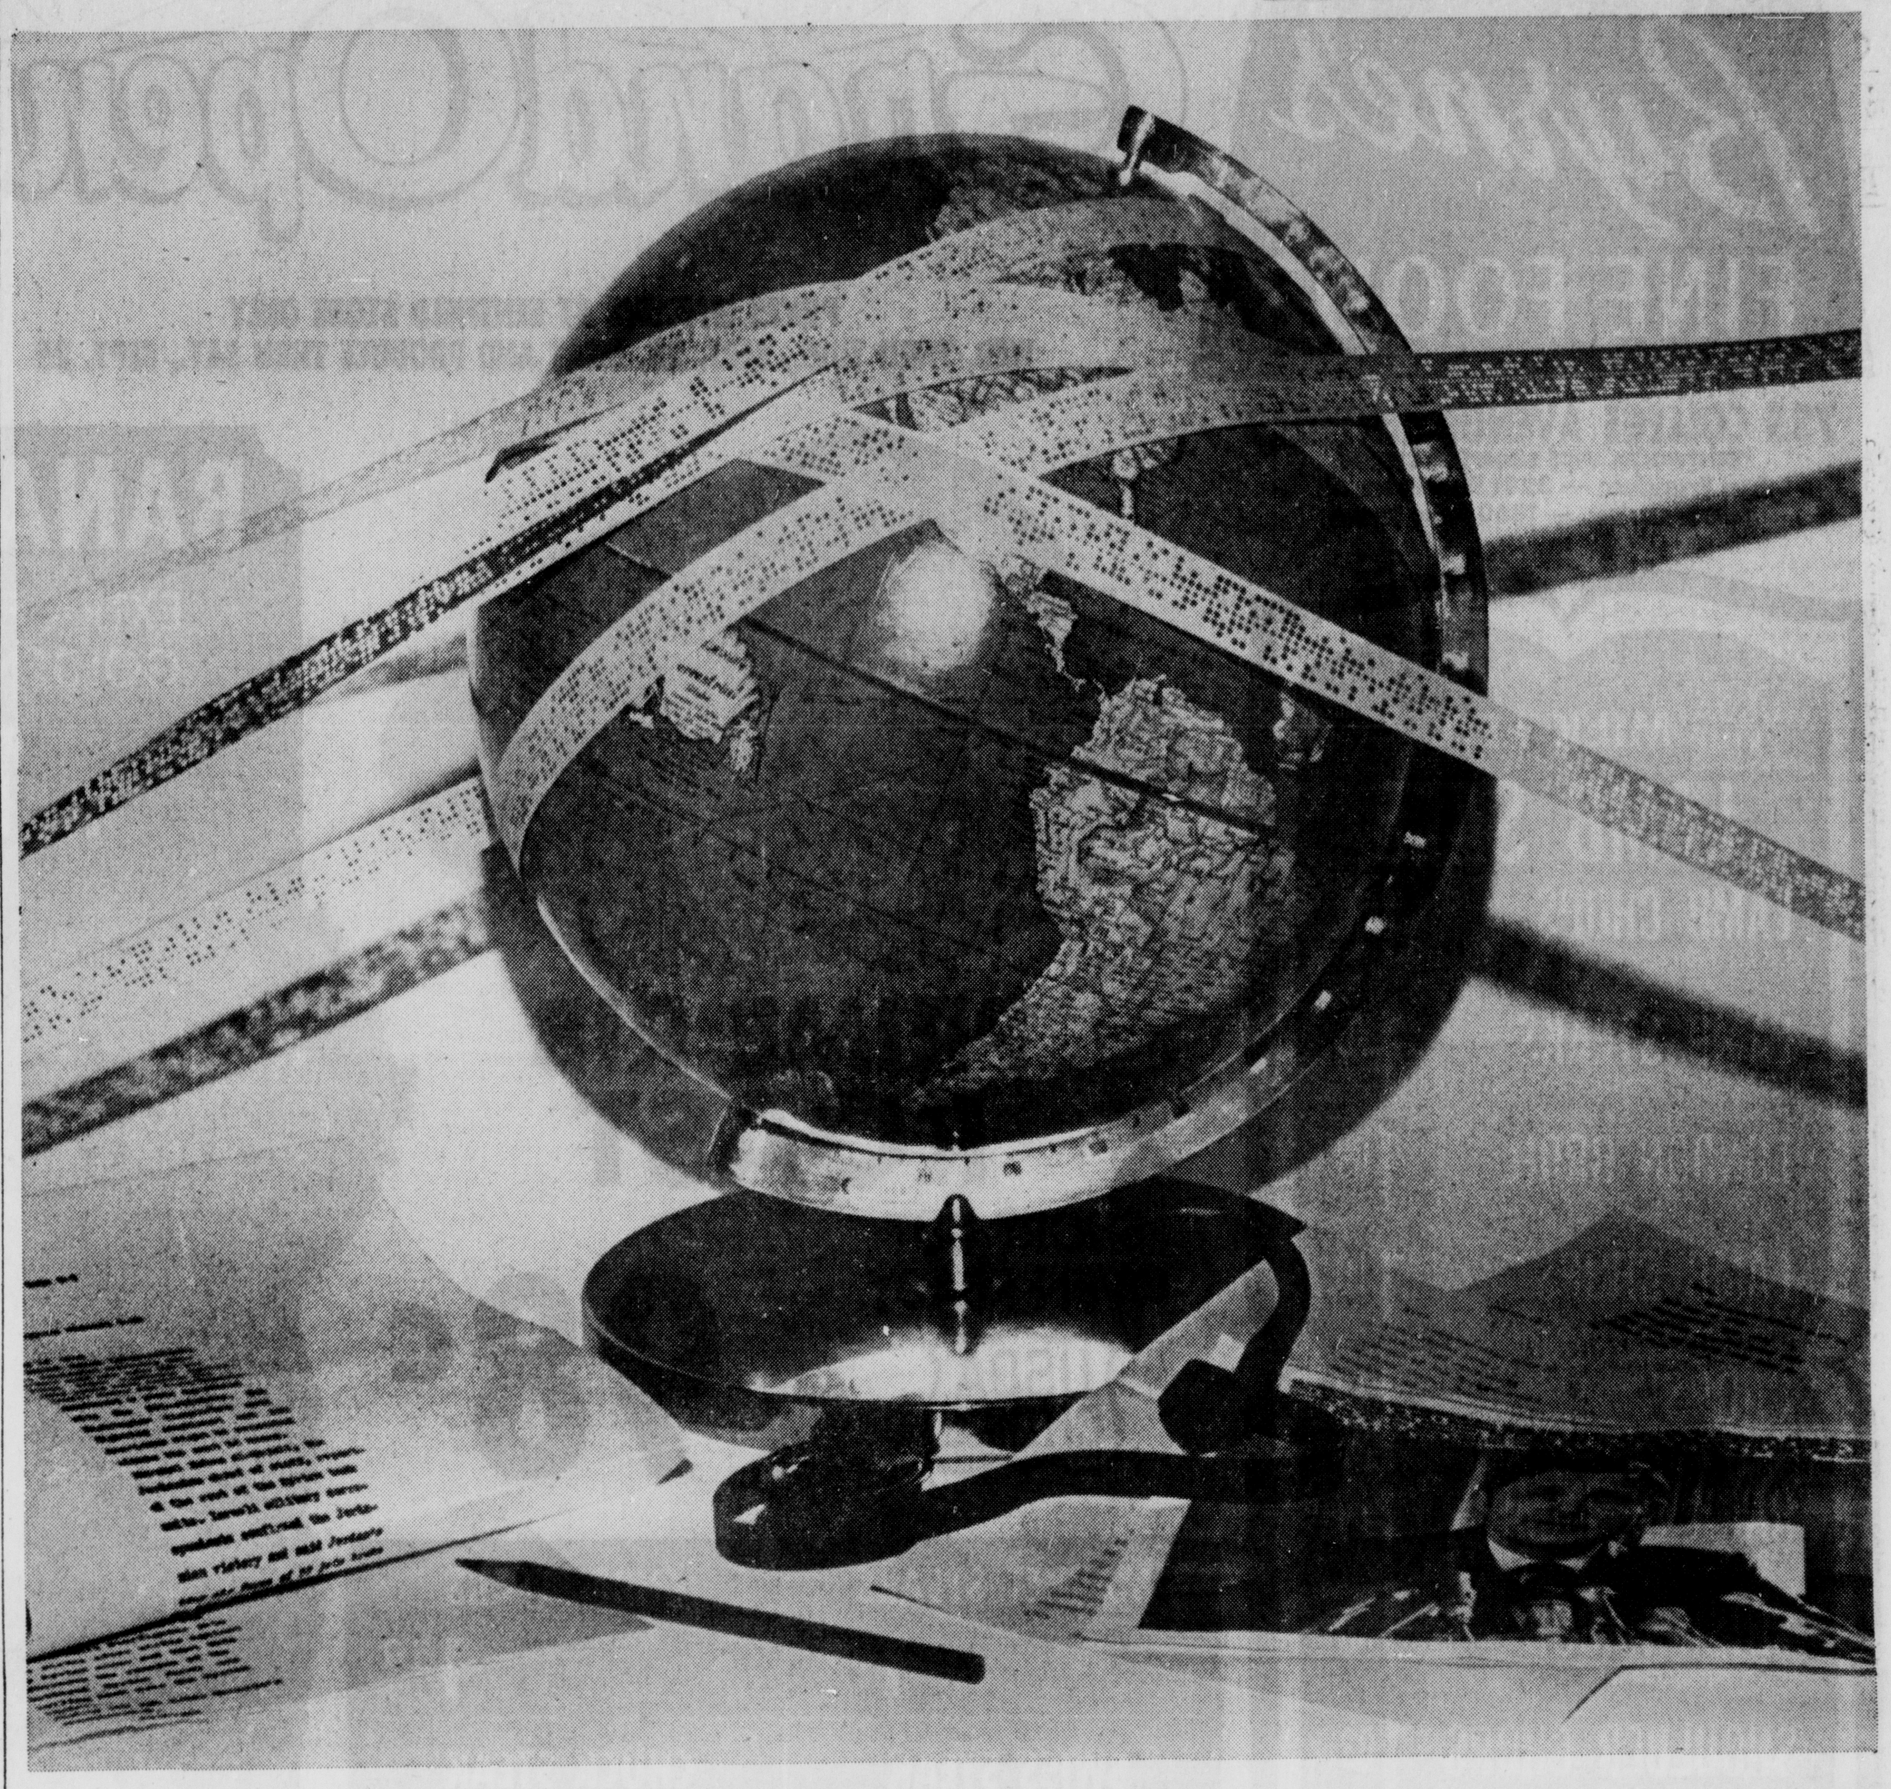

Both pleaded guilty to one count of selling it, and the other two counts against Miss Hovde were dismissed Aug. 30.

She is to be sentenced Oct. 25.

Perception Class Set In Mill Valley

Classes will discuss man's response to his environment with an opportunity to translate the response into various art media, according to Wendy Lilienthal, publicity chairman.

Consul-General Sang Yung Soh is unable to attend, because of a meeting of the Korean Chiefs of Mission in the United States in New York the end of this month.

Consul Kim will be introduced by Mrs. John Lesoine, acting president of the Marin Music Chest, prior to the opening of the performance at 3 o'clock.

A variety show with Jonathan Winters as master of ceremonies, an exhibit of paintings by Indian artists and Indian princesses modeling tribal costumes are other features of the benefit.

BACK FROM EUROPE

Ballerina Nancy Taverna Takes Well-Deserved Rest

BALLERINA NANCY Taverna says she crochets to earn a little extra money and to stay awake during rehearsals. She concentrated on crocheting while other dancers rehearsed in Aspen, Colo., where the company she dances with, Ballet West, began a six-week tour, which took them to six European countries.

By JOAN LISETOR

Taking it easy means resting at the San Rafael home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Caesar Taverna, and taking classes daily with her former teacher, Leona Norman.

After dancing in six countries, traveling by train, airplane, automobile, taxi and bus, just going to class every day is a rest, according to the 21-year-old dancer.

THE TOUR, which began in Aspen, Colo., in June took the company first to the Greek Arts Festival in Athens and then to Yugoslavia, Italy, France, Spain and Switzerland, where they danced in summer festivals held in resort towns.

Nancy says her first trip to Europe was a job, not a pleasure trip.

"It was different from the tours the company makes in the United States, where we follow a course across the country," she says. "In Europe we criss-crossed back and forth across borders because we had to work our schedules in with the festivals.

"The only free time we ever had was between 1 and 5 in the afternoon and on Sundays when everything is closed."

Ballet West, in its 10th year, is considered a new company. On its first European tour the company received all favorable reviews, Nancy says.

"WE WERE not sure what to expect because we had heard that the Europeans would throw tomatoes and walk out if they didn't like you, but we never had to duck from any flying vegetables. The audiences were responsive wherever we went," she says.

"Our impressario, who never said much on the tour, told us when it was completed that we went as an amateur group and after the tour we could be considered almost professional."

Most of the stages were out-of-doors, which was new to the dancers, as was the slant of European stages.

"After always dancing on a flat stage we had to adjust to a rake stage, where you really learn what the terms 'upstage' and 'down stage' mean," says Nancy. "After being conditioned to compensate for the slant, toward the end of the tour in Switzerland we found we were to dance in a skating rink where they had built a flat platform.

"IT WASN'T so bad that the stage was the other way, but Holiday on Ice was booked into the rink the following week, and they had already started freezing because it takes a week for the ice to be ready. Even though we were about 10 feet above it got very, very cold as the evening went on."

The group had no problems with money and was not aware that dollars were not being accepted part of the time they were in Europe. They had some amusing communication problems, and somehow language barrier kept them eating eggs when they didn't want to.

"We used alot of sign language," Nancy explains, "and in France one of the girls held up her fingers to indicate one five-minute egg. She got five one-minute eggs. One of the fellows wanted dessert in France and was delighted that the waiter understood him. The waiter came back shortly and started dishing out something that looked like eggs. It was eggs, and then we found out the French word for 'eggs' sounds like 'dessert'.

Nancy is proud of the fact that she was able to order breakfast in bed in France — and she didn't order eggs.

A native of Marin County, Nancy was graduated from San Rafael High School in 1968. Her decision to attend the University of Utah was made because the school offers a ballet major.

"I NEVER was one of those children who wanted to be 'a ballerina when I grow up'," says Nancy, who started ballet lessons when she was 7 years old. "My mother always said I could quit whenever I wanted.

"I did all of the regular things in high school, like cheerleader, and danced along with it. But when it came time for college I knew I wanted to concentrate on dancing, so my counselor suggested the University of Utah."

After two years of college she quit to dance full time with Ballet West. The company is not connected with the university but draws most of its talent from there.

The life of a dancer is a hard life, says Nancy, who doesn't like to plan ahead or worry about the future.

For the time being, she says, she will stay with Ballet West and continue her hobby of crocheting, which she does to earn a little extra money and stay awake during rehearsals.

She is due back in Salt Lake City Monday for classes and rehearsals for the company's next tour, "probably someplace in the United States."

The Back Is Bared For Night

Fashions for fall call for the womanly.

Another covers her up . . . in rich, supple fabrics, that come closer to the body, perhaps even more alluring. He uses velvet . . . Does it in dark brown sashed with brown moire. Beautiful foil: puritan collar and cuffs — white linen with crocheted lace.

Another couturier puts his woman in the most sophisticated sportswear look at night — a jumper or pajamas . . . a pulled-together shirt and skirt . . . casual suit in the richest fabric. Tossaway fashion lines, carefully plotted. He gives the young touch to brocade in his white-on-white satin brocade dinner suit . . . the colarless blazer jacket over a stem of a dress.

THE GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Don't Involve Joker's Wife In His Foolish Little Game

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

I wrote to this guy in Vietnam for five months, and though we never met (it was one of those pen-pal things) he got pretty amorous, saying we'd be together when he was discharged in late October. Call me dumb, but I kind of fell for him, after we exchanged pictures.

Then one day I got a letter from his "pal," saying he'd been killed. Being suspicious, I compared handwritings, and all the capital letters were the same, which means my "boy friend" and his "pal" were the same person, though he'd tried to camouflage.

I checked with some relatives in his home town and found out he's not only alive but married and has a two-year-old son. I was just somebody to string along and hand a bunch of bull, and now he's coming home, he has to lose me fast. I guess he was afraid my letters might be forwarded to the U.S.

Should I pay him back and send the letter on to his wife? Plus all the other lovey-dovey stuff he wrote me? — FURIOUSLY MAD AND HURT

DEAR MAD AND HURT:

What a creep! But don't take it out on his wife.

You never really knew the joker, so you haven't really been hurt. Why not send a sympathy card to him saying, "Better wed than dead — probably," and forget him? — SUE

DEAR M AND H:

DEAR H AND S:

When I wrote to HHU before Sue came in and you started your joint column, I always thought of you as "Dear Helen," but now I wonder if I should write, "Dear Mrs. B. and Sue," "Dear Sue and Her Mother," "Dear Mom and Daughter" or what? — UNSURE

DEAR UNSURE:

Whatever you call us — from "Dear Bottels" to "Hi, You Two, — we won't complain, so long as you keep calling on us. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

Please tell some of these males that they are making fools of themselves. They are not irresistible, either in school or on the way home. What kind of conceited dodos would honk, whistle and pull up to the curb, insinuating that girls should hop right in the car?

These sex fiend chauffeurs and wolf-whistlers should join the circus where they could make idiots of themselves and get paid for it. — UNIMPRESSED

DEAR UN:

Somehow, I've always thought that a wolf whistle, like the Italian pinch, was a form of compliment. You don't need to "hop in the car," naturally, but does a little good-natured banter among high school students really hurt? — HELEN

DEAR UNIMPRESSED:

There are whistlers and WHISTLERs. (Remember, Mom?) Some are junior "dirty old men" who can't make it on their looks or personalities, so they try pick-ups. If they notice you, it's a putdown, 'cause they're after all they can get — from girls who look like they'll give it.

Other whistlers are just friendly-type guys with an eye for cute chicks. It's a compliment if they notice you. When you learn the difference, "Un," you'll stop being so tough on all girl-watchers. — SUE

Any Fashion Is Correct This Season

This fall you can wear any fashion, as long as it's flattering to your own figure type. The first thing you need to know, therefore, is how to classify your shape. Do you have a model figure, almost straight up and down? Or an hourglass figure, with bust and hip measurements equal and the waist 10 to 12 inches smaller? Perhaps you are a showgirl type, formerly called the "Gibson Girl" — larger on top than on the bottom. Or perhaps you're among the women referred to as Victorian figures.

BASIC BONE structure plays a large part in your shape. Of course exercise and diet can modify your proportions, but for now let's deal in realities. What shape are you in for fall, really and truly? Pick your classification before you try to pick out any new clothes.

Probably you can wear some version of almost any current fashion. Take pantsuits, for example. All figure types can wear some sort of pantsuit. A brightly printed corduroy number is, however, more suitable to a model figure than to a Victorian figure. The latter will look better in a solid color and a fabric neither too bulky nor too clingy — something with a light, firm hand such as gabardine.

THE LENGTH and cut of the jacket are most important too. A well-belted waist will emphasize all the curves. Fine for model types; okay for Gibson Girls and hourglass types only if they wish to accentuate the positive; definitely unflattering for the more queenly figure.

A COMFORTABLE SOFA that is also functional has been designed by Milo Baughman for manufacturer Thayer Coggin. The high back and arms create a comfortable seat, and the sofa can serve as a room divider. The companion ottoman can be used for seating, storage, in place of a coffee table or just putting feet on.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

King-Size Sofas With Plump Look

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Something unusual is afoot in the field of upholstered sofas. It started a few years ago when designer Cleo Baldon developed an all-leather, king-size sofa for Pacific Furniture.

When you sat in Miss Baldon's version of the sofa, you were totally immersed. The back of your head could be supported; you could bury yourself within the cushiony comfort of the seat area; the longest legs found expansion room for a reading session or nap.

Then a New York designer, Angelo Donghia, introduced a group of sofas and chairs that had funky, super-plump upholstered look. The chairs and sofas were covered in small, calico-type printed fabrics and there was an appealing, '30s look to the line. While that line was originally created for the interior design wholesale trade, pieces of the group have been modified and are currently being offered for retail store sale. So that fun, funky look will be appearing at a price level most consumers will find acceptable.

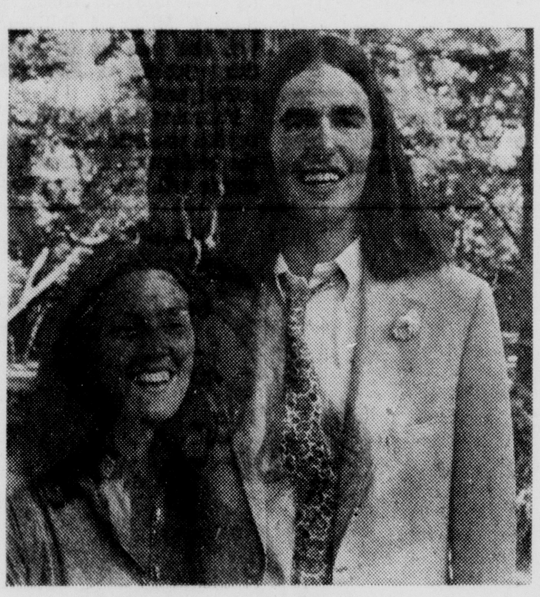

ANOTHER PROLIFIC designer, Milo Baughman, enters the scene now. He has been delineating original sofa concepts for many years. Many of them have been neat, soft-edge shapes, but he has done many versions of the U-shape and serpentine component for seating.

The high back and arms create a seating environment. Again, as with the Baldon design, you are enveloped in comfort. Part of the Baughman idea is to provide a sofa that can also function as a room divider. While other designers have pushed the sofa away from the wall by finishing the back in a handsome way or by providing sofa-back tables to help a sofa function as a divider, Baughman really takes a giant step with his design.

In addition, there's a companion storage ottoman that might easily replace the coffee table. The coffee table is a cliche, a solution used when nothing more reasonable or realistic can be found. I'd rather put my feet up on an ottoman and when necessary use that ottoman for seating and storage.

It's hard to tell if this high-back look will proliferate. But I predict there will be copies and knock-offs of this concept before the new 1972 merchandise hits the retail level.

Any Mother Can Have A 'Bad' Baby

Can good mothers have difficult, "bad" babies? They certainly can, says Dr. Louise Bates Ames, author of "Why Good Mothers have Bad Babies." She says there are inborn differences in babies. These differences, she continues, are apparent very early in infancy, some of them in the first few weeks of life.

Babies are very sensitive to the moods of the parents. Therefore, a relatively calm baby can turn into one who is irritable and cranky, if the mother is nervous and panicky.

A few suggestions from her current Family Circle article:

Don't have preconceived ideas about how your child should behave, about the kind of person you want him to be. He's almost bound to disappoint you.

Look at your child objectively, arriving at your own conclusions as to his personality. Ascertain whether he is calm or nervous, if life for him is easy or difficult, and how much he expects from you. He might expect perfect compliance with his wishes, or may compromise with you.

Evaluate your own personality and behavior patterns. Figure out what portions of your personality make it difficult for you and your baby to live in harmony. By doing this, it will be easier to modify your responses, so that you can get along better with your child.

HOW DO YOU SHAPE UP?

Knudsen, who also beat on a drum during his test, pronounced the acoustics "excellent" and "uniform throughout the auditorium" after looking at his instruments placed around the building. First performance in the new building will be by the Marin Symphony and Dorothy Kirsten in a gala opening.

Box Office Open At Veterans Memorial

The Marin Memorial Box Office, offering tickets for theatrical and athletic events in the Bay Area, is now open at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building, county officials have announced.

Building Executive Director Leon Kalimos said the county has leased space for the box office to Nancy and Richard Carter who submitted the best bid for the space. Tickets will be sold Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. There is a drive-in window at the box office.

Tickets are still available at the box office, Kalimos said, for opening night of the Marin Veterans' Memorial Building on Sept. 25 when there will be a concert by the Marin Symphony Orchestra conducted by Sandor Salgo and solos by Dorothy Kirsten who has sung 25 years with the San Francisco Opera.

The program will include: "Egmont" by Beethoven, "Suite in G" by Darius Milhaud, both performed by the orchestra; "De Puis Le Jour" from "Louise" by Charpentier, "Io Son L'Umile Ancella" from "Andriana Lecoudreur" by Cilea, "Tu, Tu Amore Tu" from "Madama Butterfly" by Puccini, and "Vissi D'Arte" from "Tosca" by Puccini, all sung by Miss Kirsten, and the orchestra will conclude with "Till Eulenspiegel" by R. Strauss.

Following the performance will be a champagne buffet supper including; eggs Indienne, poulette en alligator pear on French bread, crenshaw melon with Italian Parma ham, miniature shashlik en brochette, beef dore', petit voul au vent — shrimp tarragon, petit fours and coffee.

Recreation Program Funding Is Granted

The Corte Madera Town Council last night agreed to finance the community's $56,000 recreation program, but tightened the reins of what it considered a run-away program last year.

The decision, approved on a 4-to-1 vote with Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff dissenting, followed lengthy discussion in which councilmen split over the question of opening the program to residents of other communities.

At the heart of the controversy, which surfaced two weeks ago, was a question whether Corte Madera tax dollars were used last year to subsidize fee-supported programs used by nonresidents.

Last night, councilmen learned town dollars had been used, but split over the possibility of some impropriety.

All deplored the town's subsidizing recreation activities for nonresident users to the tune of $5,000, but Mayor Holmes S. Norville and Councilman Robert P. Simmons were quick to point out that that amount was for overhead costs such as staff time and rent.

"The overhead would have been paid anyway," Norville said. "You have to be very careful in talking about overhead costs."

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst differed, however, raising questions as to the legality of "giving away taxpayers' dollars," and urged the entire program be restricted to Corte Madera residents.

He was supported by Councilman Byron D. White, who called for putting the matter over for further investigation.

Norville responded that the program's success depended on outside participation in order to insure enough classes would be offered.

Compromise was reached, however, after several motions — one by Colthurst to disqualify outsiders — failed.

The final motion called for financing the program, limiting outside participation to 50 per cent of each class and a review of nonresident fees after the country's price freeze is lifted.

Councilman Wagstaff, the lone vote against the compromise motion, said he could not vote for a program which used tax dollars to duplicate recreational activities already provided by schools and private instructors.

Republican Governor Vetoes Lottery Bill

BOSTON (UPI)—Republican Gov. Francis Sargent had said that he could accept a lottery operation free of political influence.

Monday Sargent vetoed a lottery bill passed by the Democrat-controlled legislature. The bill would have had the state lottery operated by the State Treasurer, Robert Q. Crane, who also is the chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

State Prison Head Asks Hiring Of More Guards

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —State prisons chief Raymond Procunier, declaring that the "killings have got to stop," has proposed the emergency hiring of 403 more guards and technicians to end violence at troubled California penitentiaries.

Procunier, director of corrections, estimated the cost during the already fiscally tight year at $3.2 million but warned that without "adequate" security for both convicts and guards the "system will collapse."

Meanwhile, an association of guards warned of what it said was a threatened move by radicals and revolutionaries to infiltrate ranks of guards. It advocated considering the deportation of troublemakers to foreign countries.

Thirty-three persons have been slain in California state prisons since January 1970. Included in the toll are seven employes killed this year.

"The killings have got to stop," Procunier Monday told the state Board of Corrections, which will make a recommendation to Gov. Ronald Reagan, probably next month.

The governor has declared himself "adamantly" opposed to any new state spending this year based on new taxes but has vowed to make California the nation's leader in putting down prison violence.

Procunier recommended the hiring of 318 additional guards along with 85 more technicians for support functions. This would be an increase of 13 per cent in the ranks of guards, who now total about 2,300.

"I don't know of any way to make the killings stop other than improving the feelings of the staff and improving the feelings of the inmates," Procunier said.

"Some people feel that all you have to do is lock them up and throw the key away. But you can't do it that way."

For troubled San Quentin, where three guards and three inmates were slain last month, including Soledad brother George Jackson, the director called for hiring 38 more guards and five medical technicians.

The biggest single buildup would occur at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville where 73 more guards were recommended. Forty-six extra guards were proposed for Folsom Prison—site of a killing last week—while another 23 were suggested for Soledad, long a trouble spot.

The California State Employes Association Monday proposed the hiring of 441 new staff members, most of them guards. A CSEA spokesman said afterward, "We're very pleased with the department's approach."

Reed Program Report Is Due

Other items on the agenda are the district's music program and goals for 1971-72 and employment of personnel.

Halt To State's School Aid Voted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly today overrode appeals for delay and approved a bill proposing the elimination of basic state aid to local schools.

The legislation went to the Senate on a 44-16 vote. A companion measure to submit the question to the voters at next year's election is pending in the Senate.

The bill by Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, calls for the abolition of the guaranteed $125 the state each year contributes to the support of every public school student.

Under the proposal, an estimated $40 million would be shifted away from basic aid and funneled into equalization aid to further prop up low wealth school districts.

But opponents, citing the recent state Supreme Court decision which ruled the current school financing system illegal, called the Collier bill premature and urged that the issue of school finance be tackled next session.

Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, criticized the bill as a "piecemeal approach" because it directed itself at only one element of school finance.

He noted that in view of the court's ruling, the entire school finance system must be overhauled.

He argued, "We should not vote for this until we know exactly where we are going."

Under the constitution, each public school child is guaranteed at least $125 annually in basic state aid—regardless of whether he goes to a school in a wealthy or poor district. Critics argue the apportionment system is inequitable and that more state money should go to the poor districts.

Two Treated After Accident

John Strong, 30, and Karl Strong, 4, both of 45 Buena Vista, Fairfax, were treated for injuries Saturday afternoon at Marin General Hospital.

The hospital, which received them for treatment at 3:52 p.m., said they were injured in an automobile accident. The hospital said the California Highway Patrol and Fairfax police handled the accident, but neither agency had a record of the accident.

The older Strong was treated for bruises of his left chest, and the boy was treated for a bruised left shoulder.

Bill To Permit VD Instruction Passes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The assembly yesterday voted final passage to a bill making it easier for public schools to teach children about venereal disease.

The measure was sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan on a 45-3 vote. There was no debate.

Authored by Assemblywoman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, the bill eliminates the requirement that children must have parental consent/before they can be taught about venereal disease.

The Assembly concurred in amendments inserted by the Senate, which narrowly passed the bill last Wednesday.

Supporters of the bill had contended thatD among teenagers has become "almost as common as the common cold."

College Mapping Bond Vote Drive

The Marin Community College District board, meeting with its 30-member citizens' advisory panel, last night mapped campaign strategy for the district's Nov. 2 bond election.

According to Earlene Jones, district publicist, the campaign will use much the same techniques as used earlier this year when voters narrowly defeated a similar bond measure.

However, she said, the citizens' committee in charge of the campaign will make a special appeal to voters under 21 for support of the $16.7 million bond measure.

The committee is also charged with speaking engagements and fund raising to finance advertising and mailing costs, she said.

The appeal to younger voters probably will be carried by the College of Marin student body and will be held in conjunction with voter registration, she added.

The campaign will kick off tomorrow with the opening of campaign headquarters at the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad Depot in San Rafael. The ribbon cutting will be at 8:30 a.m. and will be sponsored by the Citizens' Committee for Proposition A.

Four Video Sets Stolen

At least four television sets were reported stolen during the weekend from McPhail's Inc. in San Rafael.

Clifford Francis Howard, manager for McPhail's, told police that McPhail's at 917 C Street was burglarized between closing Saturday and opening Monday and that at least four television sets were stolen, according to the police report.

Police said entry was gained by cutting a chain link fence in the rear of the firm and prying a sliding door.

Boy Hurt

James Montalvo, 12, of San Francisco, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for head cuts suffered in an accident Sunday at 8:45 p.m. on Highway 101 south of San Antonio Road at the Marin County line. Details of the accident were not available.

Crossroads Zone Plea Is Advanced

The Novato Planning Commission last night recommended planned commercial zoning for a 5.47-acre portion of the Crossroads area, northwest of South Novato Boulevard and Highway 101.

Commissioners also approved a tentative map of Crossroads Unit 1 by McKeon Construction Co. for 57 four-unit buildings, a total of 228 units on 21.8 acres in the Crossroads area.

McKeon plans a total of 528 units, including townhouses, on 10.5 acres.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

APARTMENTS — Granted Fred C. Mauroni a permit to construct an eight-unit apartment building on the east side of Railroad Avenue, north of Madrone Avenue.

DUPLEXES — Recommended approval of precise development plans by F and F Enterprises for three duplexes on the north side of San Marin Drive east of San Mateo way.

Mailliard Applauds Hub Mundialization

The congressman who represents San Anselmo not only does not plan a congressional investigation of the Hub City's mundialization activities but has even congratulated the city for its international outlook.

A spokesman in the San Francisco office of Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, said yesterday that the congressman "most definitely was not" going to carry out an investigation asked for by a Marin Republican leader.

Susan T. Tennler of Greenbrae, lieutenant governor of the rightist United Republicans of California, last week had sent a telegram to Mailliard asking the investigation, saying "dual citizenship is expressly prohibited by the United States Constitution."

San Anselmo and its council have been targets of such criticism from some quarters since councilmen voted last May to become the first California community to "mundialize" and embrace the concept of world citizenship.

As explained by Norman E. Leach, San Anselman who is executive director of the World Federalist Youth-USA, mundialization means acknowledging that one is a citizen of the world and allows member cities to fly the U.N. flag and to be paired with a sister city in another country.

Congressman Mailliard had written San Anselmo Mayor Kenneth Anderson in July commending the city for its mundialization and as a member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, said he decried isolationism.

Mrs. Tennler was successful in June in having the U.N. flag removed from the city flagpole but it was returned when a new flag pole was erected.

Satellite Launch Delayed Until Friday

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— The launch of an orbiting solar observatory (OSO) and a small hitchhiking satellite have been delayed until Friday because of trouble with an engine control unit in the delta rocket.

Launch director John J. Neilson said the problem was detected Monday in the velocity control system in the Delta second stage. The unit is designed to stop the engine when the rocket reaches the speed required for an orbit 345 miles above Earth.

Two Are Appointed Council Directors

Arthur Costamagna of San Rafael and Robert Simmons of Corte Madera have been appointed directors of the Marin Republican Council.

Costamagna, an attorney, is a commissioner with the state Workmen's Compensation Appeals Board. Simmons, a certified public accountant, has been a Corte Madera town councilman for the past three years.

Trustees Will Consider Administrator Exchange

The San Anselmo School District board, meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Red Hill School, will consider a proposal to exchange former Supt. Stephen L. Parodi for a curriculum coordinator from the county schools office.

Parodi, who stepped down as superintendent last year to become the district's business manager, will transfer his business-accounting supervision to the county office for an initial three-month period.

In return, the district will be assigned Kenneth Barnes who will run the district inservice training program and be an administrative assistant under the proposal.

Tonight's meeting will be devoted primarily to discussion with a panel of educators on the roles, rights, responsibilities and functions of public education.

Spokesmen from the California Teachers Association, the California School Boards Association and the state department of education will participate.

Seamanship Class Set At High School

An eight-week course in basic seamanship will be given by Flotilla 12 of the Coast Guard Auxiliary beginning at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at Tamalpais High School.

The course is open to both adults and teen-agers and is aimed at those interested in sailboats, cruisers or outboards.

Subjects to be covered include maneuvering, charts and piloting, use of the compass, rules of the road and marlinspike seamanship.

Petaluma Woman Treated For Cuts

A 25-year-old Petaluma woman was reported in good condition at Marin General Hospital today with multiple cuts, bruises and scrapes which hospital officials said were received in an auto accident Saturday.

Faye Sugrue, of 804 Victoria Drive, was admitted to the hospital at 9:09 a.m. Saturday. Details of the accident were not available.

Russian Violinist's Vienna Visit Uncertain

VIENNA (UPI)—The Vienna State Opera has no information yet whether controversial Russian musician Mstislav Rostropovich can perform with the Moscow Bolshoi Opera in Vienna next month, an opera spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the Russian cellist was scheduled to conduct a series of guest performances of the Bolshoi between Oct. 5 and 14. But he said that Soviet authorities have failed to inform the opera whether Rostropovich will get an exit permit.

Rock Thrown Into Window of Building

Someone tossed a rock through a large glass window at the vacant Lee Brothers Market building, 957 Seventh Street, Novato yesterday afternoon causing damage estimated at $300, Novato police reported.

A youth, seen running from the scene at 3:30 p.m., is suspected, police said.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON GREB

Guess who was born today and became famous.

1. Know what British novelist wrote "An Outline of History" and nearly outlined the future as well? At the 20 Century's start, and shortly thereafter, he dreamed up "The Invisible Man," predicted development of the atomic bomb, and was years ahead of everybody in foreseeing "The Shape of Things to Come": (A) H. G. Wells; (B) Jules Verne; (C) Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

2. Maybe you'll need to check your school books to name this 17th Century explorer. A French-Canadian governor sent him with Marquette, a Jesuit missionary, to lead a map-making expedition down the Mississippi River, but en route they lost everything in an overturned canoe: (A) Robert La Salle; (B) Marquis de Lafayette; (C) Louis Jolliet.

3. Today's the 41st birthday for what shapely British screen star? She studied acting at the Royal Academy, appeared with Charlie Chaplin in his 1956 film, "A King of New York," and won important parts in "Young Bess" and "The Robe": (A) Julie Harris; (B) Deborah Kerr; (C) Dawn Adams.

4. What famous Italian religious leader strove to stop the immorality of 15th Century Florence? His fiery oratory inspired followers to rid themselves of costly ornaments, excessive pleasures, and idle gambling, but when accused of heresy, he was tried, found guilty, and executed: (A) Machiavelli; (B) Girolamo Savonarola; (C) Lucius Seneca.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The Door To Victory Unlocked By Leading Diamonds Out Early

The other day I found myself locked out of my apartment. The key simply wouldn't turn in the lock. It was a bit after 3 a.m., so ringing the manager's doorbell was out of the question. No fire escape. No window that I could get to. But bridge experts are brainy types. I took another look and discovered I'd been using the wrong key. My training for this sort of emergency came from the kind of hand shown today.

SERIOUS RISK

If you look just at the South and North hands, you'll see that there's a serious risk of losing a trick in each suit. But if you find the winning play in trumps you don't have to lose a trump trick.

How do you guess the winning trumpplay? Should you lead out the ace and king of spades, or should you finesse through one of the opponents for the queen? If you decide to finesse, should you do so through East or through West?

If you'll pardon me for pointing, you're using the wrong key. Try the diamonds instead of the spades.

FAVORABLE ODDS

If you lead out the top diamonds and then give up a diamond, you will set up a diamond trick in dummy if the missing six diamonds break 3-3 or if either opponent has the doubleton queen or doubleton jack. The odds are almost 2 to 1 in your favor. But then you must find a way to get back to dummy for the established diamond.

The surest plan is to lead the ace of spades after winning the first trick with the ace of hearts. Then lead out three rounds of diamonds. If the diamonds break well enough to set up dummy's ten, you are home.

AT FOURTH DIAMOND

The defense cannot beat you by leading a fourth diamond. You discard the losing heart, and if the other defender can ruff you won't have to lose a trump trick. If the defenders lead anything but a fourth diamond, you can get to dummy with the king of spades to lead the ten of diamonds yourself, discarding a heart.

Remember ths hand the next time you're out for a night on the town.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one spade as dealer, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - Q 8 5
♥ - K 10 8
♦ - J 8 7 5
♣ - A J 10.

What do you say?

This sequence shows a hand too weak for an immediate jump to three spades but too strong for a simple raise to two spades.

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 21, the 264th day of 1971 with 101 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this date in history:

In 1792 France became a republic.

In 1893 the first successful American-made gasoline--operated motor car appeared on the streets of Springfield, Mass. It was designed and built by Charles and Frank Duryea.

A thought for the day: H. G. Wells said, "Human history becomes more and more a race between education and catastrophe."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Psychiatric Treatment Often Needed By Autistic Children

Mental disorders, such as schizophrenia, may develop in infants as young as four months of age. The parents sense that something is wrong and often consult the family physician because the baby does not respond to affection or lives in a shell. This condition, known as infantile autism, is difficult to treat.

THE AUTISTIC tyke displays a marked indifference to his parents, brothers, sisters and others. Dullness and lack of response to being cuddled may be the earliest symptoms.

Physical development may not be impaired, but late in the second year of life, he may lose the ability to speak, partially or entirely. These tykes fail to progress socially and become aloof. According to a report from the Mayo Clinic, withdrawal from reality is the most common manifestation followed by disturbances in thought and speech.

THE AUTISTIC child has trouble finishing a sentence and is incoherent or mute. He often repeats words in parrotlike fashion. Alterations in mobility may also occur. Some of these youngsters are overactive and others are completely immobile. They may also walk like a robot.

Some autistic children develop a precocious memory which is of little value because it consists of a constant repetition of lines, rhymes, lists of names or states, etc. Still others have phenomenal mechanical skills, but here again, the ability is of limited value.

THE CAUSE of the various childhood schizophrenic syndromes is not known but probably represents a combination of physical and psychogenic factors. There is little evidence that it is hereditary. Organic causes include inherited predispositions to disorders, such as phenylketonuria, infections, poisoning (lead and mercury), nutritional deficiencies and brain tumors.

Psychogenic factors center about the early relationship between mother and infant.

BUT IN MANY instances, there is no evidence that the mother has suffered from inadequate interpersonal relationships. Skilled psychiatric treatment (preferably in an institutional setting) is needed.

THE SKIN AT 80

Mrs. L. P. writes: I am an 80-year-old widow who keeps busy with a house and garden. My skin is not too wrinkled, but it seems to be getting quite dry. Is this to be expected, or can something be done to replenish the oils? I wear a wide-brimmed hat when working in the yard and put cream on my face every night before going to bed. Any suggestions would be welcome.

REPLY

As we grow older, the skin tends to become dry, scaly and inelastic. There is a decline in the activity of the sweat and oil glands, particularly in women. Senile skin is more delicate than that of a baby and must be treated with tender care. Ample rest, a proper diet, oily creams and the use of a mild soap should prove beneficial. Avoid too frequent bathing. For additional information on this subject, send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on the aging skin.

LIVER SPOTS

F. H. writes: Are liver spots on the face considered cancer of the skin?

REPLY

No. Somewhat similar raised and roughened spots may turn into cancer and should be removed or watched carefully.

Governors To Tour The Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Seven U.S. state governors and the governor of Puerto Rico will tour the Soviet Union and Rumania starting Oct. 8.

It will be the first trip of a group of American governors to the Soviet Union since 1959. The State Department said comparable groups of Soviet and Rumanian officials soon will visit the United States.

Give Into Demands

ROME, Ga. (UPI)—White students at two Rome high schools gave in to black demands Monday in a move school officials said eased racial tensions and ended a school boycott by blacks.

Cyclist, 18, Hurt In Police Chase

An 18-year-old motorcyclist who crashed into a Larkspur police car while being pursued was reported in good condition today in Marin General Hospital.

Gary Ray Schunk of 531 Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera, was arrested and hospitalized Saturday after suffering a broken leg in the crash ending an 80-mile-per hour chase through Greenbrae.

Larkspur police said yesterday the chase began at 12:30 a.m. Saturday after they attempted to stop Schunk for not having a rear license plate.

Instead of stopping, officers said, Schunk sped off along South Eliseo Drive.

During the course of the chase, which included running red lights and stop signs on several Greenbrae streets, officers said Schunk turned off his headlight and successfully evaded a police road block.

He was injured during a collision with a patrol car which was trying to stop him on Via La Cumbre.

When he is released from Marin General, officers said, he will be booked at Marin County Jail.

Contact Lenses Recalled

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Three California optical manufacturers are involved in the recall of more than 2,200 sets of new "soft" contact lenses sold in June and July and found to be contaminated with eye-endangering bacteria.

The bacteria, pseudomonas aeruginosa, can infect the eye, producing pus and irritation and even sight-threatening ulcers on the cornea, the state Public Health Department said Monday.

Doctors dealing with eye care have been warned of the potential problem with the new soft lenses and each purchaser has been told by telephone and letter of the possible danger. The lenses were sold only in California.

State health officials ordered the recall of lenses by two of the firms, Urocom of Los Angeles and Kontour Kontact of Richmond, Calif., after they failed to obtain a special state or federal new drug exemption. It permits the sale of new drugs or products to designated doctors for testing.

The third firm, Soft Lenses Inc., of San Diego, was found not to have contaminated soft contact lenses and did not have to recall its product. All three of the firms now possess the special exemption allowing proper drug investigation.

Extension To Cal Fong Alto Project

Mill Valley Planning Commission last night granted a one-year extension to the Cal Fong Investment Corp., for its plans for a 109-unit housing development in Alto Bowl.

The commission met in special session to take action on the extension request because the previous time restriction would have ended today, according to Tom W. Newton, director of community development.

The request was necessary, Newton said, because of the current ban on building in Southern Marin. The Regional Water Quality Control Board issued a cease-and-desist order June 24 to the Richardson Bay Sanitary District to halt granting sewer connection permits until it stops polluting the bay.

Floating Curtain To Fight Oil Spills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 1,000-foot long floating curtain will be used to combat the next major oil spill that threatens to pollute coastline beaches, the Coast Guard said today.

Designed to act as a barrier, the curtain will be deployed in the open sea to contain the spread of the oil.

The annual book drive at the Mill Valley Library has been set for Oct. 2 and 3, to raise money for the library.

Vandals Sever Television Cable

Cable television service to Mill Valley, Sausalito and Tiburon was interrupted for about three hours Sunday after the main cable to the three communities was cut, Ron George, plant manager for Televue Systems, Inc. of Marin said.

George said the Armour-covered cable was severed about 8 a.m. in the hills above the Corte Madera grade, probably by someone using a large pair of metal cutters. Service was not restored until 11 a.m., according to George, who said Mill Valley police were investigating the vandalism.

Unique Boat Race In Samoan Isles

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI)—One of the sports highlights of American Samoa is the annual race of the fautasis, 90-foot-long boats with 40 oarsmen, a boat captain and a drum beater to mark time.

Fautasi crews go into training one month before the two-mile race. They live together in a house near their boats, where they maintain strict diets and abstain from alcohol, tobacco and the company of their wives.

Eichler Gets Tentative Nod On Plan

Developer J. L. Eichler yesterday got conditional permission to build three model homes at 1251 Butterfield Road in Sleepy Hollow where he plans to develop 24 lots.

Ralph D. Cairns, deputy zoning administrator for Marin, approved the model homes on condition that Eichler execute a subdivision improvement agreement, deposit improvement bonds with the county, and get assurance from utility companies that utilities will be installed.

The property is located on the southwest side of Butterfield road across from its intersection with Van Tassel Court.

The deputy zoning administrator postponed action on a request for a use permit to continue a nursery school at 1030 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield, at the corner of Butterfly Lane. Marin Community Mental Health Services opened the school for retarded children in July of 1970 and wants a permit to continue.

Cairns gave community mental health services Until Oct. 18 to see if more parking spaces and an unloading zone can be provided.

Renaissance Students Due Free Admittance

After 1,400 students whose classes are studying the Renaissance period have been admitted free to the Renaissance Pleasure Faire, the offer has been withdrawn, according to fair operators.

Phyllis Paterson said yesterday that her staff had only planned on letting in 1,000 students free. When the 1,400 figure was reached, she said, it was decided to discontinue free entry for classes.

The offer had been limited to fifth through 12th grade classes which were engaged in a Renaissance project.

Mrs. Patterson said that teachers may still take their classes to the fair at Black Point which runs for the next two weekends, at reduced rates by making arrangements with the Renaissance Center office in San Francisco.

The black-footed ferret, a handsome masked member of the weasel family, is today tottering on the brink of extinction — and must be accounted as probably our rarest mammal.

Evidence would indicate that it was never over-abundant, although it was encountered more often at the turn of the century when prairie-dog towns or colonies were numerous. The black-footed ferret is closely associated with prairie dogs and depends entirely on them for its existence, by preying on them or using their burrows for shelter.

Black-Footed Ferret

Unfortunately, the prairie-dog towns which were formerly numerous were incompatible with agricultural interests. Destruction became indiscriminate, and in many areas complete. With the reduction of the prairie dogs by extensive poisoning campaigns and the elimination of the prairie grasslands, the numbers of ferrets which can live off the prairie dogs has become drastically reduced.

The black-footed ferret is largely nocturnal, which probably accounts for the fact that it was first described by Audubon and James Bachman as late as 1849. It was at least another 24 years afterwards that the next specimen was reported.

This species is the largest of the true weasels and has a very distinctive coloration. Its general ground color is a fawnish offset with contrasting areas of dark-brown or black. It has a black area around the face that forms a mask. The tip of its tail is black and its legs and feet are also black.

Its former distribution included southern Alberta and southern Saskatchewan in Canada. In the United States, it was found on the Great Plains from Montana to Texas and Arizona, to 10,500 feet in the Rockies.

The black-footed ferret's present status in Canada is doubtful, although it may still exist in Alberta. It appears to have fared a little better in the United States, where there have been recent confirmed sightings in South Dakota. There have also been single sightings in North Dakota, Texas, Wyoming, and Colorado.

The total population has probably not exceeded 100 individuals in decades. Throughout the continent, between 1946 and 1953 about 70 specimens were seen in 42 different locations. One-third of these specimens were dead. Since 1955, eleven road deaths have been reported.

Remains of black-footed ferrets have been found in coyote stomachs, but it seems doubtful that this small wolf is an important controlling factor. The drive to wipe out prairie dogs has undoubtedly been the key factor in the demise of the black-footed ferret.

Species living in restricted habitats like the black-footed ferret can be destroyed as much by damage or modification of their environment as by hunting.

Man's incredibly destructive and all-consuming population explosion is placing increasingly disastrous pressures on the environment of other animals. The management and preservation of the habitats in which they live is vital.

Two Hearings Set This Week On Point Reyes Master Plan

The National Park Service's proposed master plan and wilderness proposal for Point Reyes National Seashore will get a formal public hearing tomorrow and Thursday in the supervisors' chambers at the Marin Civic Center.

Tomorrow's hearing will be on the master plan for the 64,500-acre park, and Thursday's hearing will deal with the proposed 5,150-acre wilderness area. Both sessions will start at 9 a.m.

Marin organizations and individuals will have a chance to express their views on how the seashore should be developed, and whether the emphasis should be on structured recreation or on natural open areas with a minimum of automobile access.

Marin County's official position is that the seashore should be re-designated a national park to insure the preservation of natural assets. County policy calls for a citizens advisory committee to advise the park service in all phases of planning and development.

The county wants a public transit system to provide access to the park, and the eventual banning of private automobiles inside the park.

The county also wants the 5,150-acre wilderness area, between Mount Wittenberg and Bear Valley Gap, expanded considerably to include other areas like Double Point, Tomales Point, the Esteros, and the Lake Ranch.

Joseph C. Rumburg Jr., director of the western region, National Park Service, will attend both tomorrow and Thursday.

Written statements may be submitted at any time up to 30 days following the public hearings. Such statements should be addressed to the Hearing Office, C/O Superintendent, Point Reyes National Seashore, Point Reyes, Calif. 94956.

Petaluma Eyes Sewer Bond Issue

The Petaluma City Council last night agreed to work toward a January bond election to finance enlargement of the city's sewer plant.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said he believed the bond issue could be substantially lower than the $2 million sewer bond issue which was defeated at the polls in June.

He said exact figures will not be known until next month, but that the amount should be considerably lower since the city is assured of getting an 80 per cent grant for the project where as in June it expected only 50 per cent federal and state financing.

The council also agreed that a citizens committee should be formed soon after the election is formally set so that more discussion can be given to the issue. In June the issue received more than 50 per cent of the vote, but fell far short of the required two-thirds majority.

Meyer told the council the election must be held in January since the city must guarantee local funding by that month to satisfy the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The council has told the water board that if an election is called and fails again, revenue bonds will be sold to finance the state required project.

The Petaluma City Council also:

BURNING — Approved an ordinance banning outdoor burning on Oct. 1 as required by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District and heard Ferald Poznanovich, Sonoma County representative to the board, review pollution standards and district plans.

DREDGING — Heard City Engineer David A. Young report the Army Corps of Engineers has enlarged the scope of the Petaluma River dredging project and that the city must provide addition spoils area. He said he was concerned that more land might not be available. The council asked the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors to reconsider its denial of the city request that the county share in the cost and responsibility of providing spoils areas.

INTERCHANGE — Heard Mayor Helen Putnam report that she attended a meeting of the state Highway Commission in Ventura and that it looked promising that the widening of the East Washington Street overpass of Highway 101 might remain funded for the 1972-73 fiscal year.

AMBULANCE — Approved the purchase of an ambulance at an estimated cost of $16,000.

MERCURY — Agreed to replace dangerous mercury seals in trickling filters at the sewer plant and heard cost of materials might be $11,000, but that a state grant for 80 per cent of the cost is available.

HUD Approval Sought For Cutback

If the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development will approve a cutback in one phase of the project, San Rafael may be able to complete its entire $1.4 million sewer reconstruction project with available funds. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

That was the report given to the San Rafael City Council last night by Dominic J. Selmi of Dan Coleman Associates, consulting engineer for the project.

The federal approval is needed for the city to qualify for $275,000 in federal funds for the project.

Selmi proposed last night a cutback in plans for testing and sealing of existing sewer lines. He told the council that HUD requires a "significant amount" of testing and sealing. Original plans for the project called for $600,000 worth.

But in a revised financing schedule presented last night, Selmi said the entire project could be completed with available funds if HUD will accept a $120,000 expenditure for testing and sealing.

Failing HUD approval of that approach, Selmi offered two choices. If HUD will approve a $250,000 to $300,000 budget for testing and sealing, the entire project could be completed if $130,000 to $180,000 in additional funds can be raised.

No additional funds would be needed if HUD approves a $250,000 to $300,000 budget for sealing and testing, and five smaller construction projects, with an estimated cost of $228,980, are deleted from the overall project.

Selmi's new figures were required when bids for the first stage of the project came in higher than had been estimated. First bids, 40 per cent higher than estimates, were rejected in July.

New bids were opened Sept. 2 and were about 10 per cent higher than estimated. The council last night, however, awarded the $534,592 contract to Maggiora and Ghilotti Inc. of Corte Madera, pending approval by HUD.

Selmi blamed the high bids on "the same inflationary pressures and escalations" that all construction projects have experienced.

He cited a 25 to 35 per cent increase in construction costs in the last two and a half years; state division of highways requirements where sewers meet highways; a reduction in the proposed HUD grant and delays by HUD in approving the grant.

In addition to awarding a contract for the first phase of the project to Maggiora and Ghilotti, Selmi last night recommended the city revise the scope of its proposed testing and sealing project; delete the five smaller construction projects; apply to HUD for an increased grant, and advertise for bids for the remainder of the project in December.

The council awarded the bid and directed Selmi and city staff to proceed on his other recommendations.

San Rafael Takes Steps To Purchase Courthouse Square

The San Rafael City Council moved last night toward eventual acquisition by the city of the old Courthouse property.

The council directed City Mgr. James H. McCown to discuss the possibility with county officials and directed the city staff to begin developing possible use plans for the site in the heart of downtown San Rafael.

Acquisition was proposed last night by Mayor C. Paul Bettini who said that if the city didn't develop the property, "it is unlikely that it will be done by anyone for quite a number of years."

He said he was concerned about the appearance of the square and its effect on business in downtown San Rafael.

The 99-year-old courthouse was gutted by fire May 25 and is now being demolished.

Other councilmen supported Bettini's proposal. Fred E. Jensen said the plan would need public support and Lawrence F. Mulryan said the "concept is good," but warned that the city should proceed cautiously because the square is "such an important piece of property."

The council in 1969 offered the county $500,000 and half of any profit the city made on the property in 1969, but the county held fast for $750,000.

There have been several plans for private development of the square, but all have fallen through.

The San Rafael City Council also:

PARK — Officially accepted the deed to Schoen Park, a privately financed and constructed minipark on East Canal Street. The deed had been accepted by Councilman Mulryan at dedication ceremonies at the park Sunday. The park was developed by Project REC and named after its prime supporter and worker, San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commissioner Robert C. Schoen.

ZONING — Rezoned from planned commercial to multiple residential two parcels owned by Charles Bell on Marin Center Drive with the conditions that the parcels be combined into one and that an overall development plan be submitted to the planning commission before construction is started on the site.

COLUMNS — Authorized spending $600 for moving two columns which were part of the Fifth Avenue side of the old courthouse for use in an official city entrance being formulated by the city's beautification committee for the Irwin Street exit of Highway 101.

LEGISLATION — Directed McCown to notify State Sen. Peter H. Behr of the city's opposition to proposed legislation which would prevent cities from prohibiting and/or setting restrictions, such as for density or lot size requirements, on mobile home parks.

Proxmire Charges Plane Costs 'Covered'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force covered up a $300 million cost increase in production of the C5A cargo plane, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged Monday.

Proxmire said the Pentagon was asked as recently as May by the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee whether there were any problem areas which could increase the cost of the plane. He said the Pentagon replied there were not, although "it was known by the Air Force that the program had increased by $300 million from June of 1970."

Berrigan Back To Prison In Danbury

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI)—Antiwar priest Philip Berrigan and six other prisoners have been returned to the Danbury federal prison to serve out their sentences after recovering from a month-long hunger strike.

The seven prisoners were flown by chartered plane from the U.S. Medical Center at Springfield, Mo., Monday where they had been recovering from the strike that lasted from Aug. 9 through Sept. 8 in support of the Rev. Philip and Daniel Berrigan's appeal for parole.

Supervisors To Discuss Prison

Marin County supervisors plan at a trip to Sacramento next Monday afternoon to discuss the future of San Quentin Prison with Marin legislators and officials of the state Department of Corrections.

County Administrator John F. Barrows said the meeting is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. in the office of Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

As a long-range plan, Marin officials want the state prison moved out of the county. In the meantime, they will ask the state to make San Quentin a minimum security prison so that the most violent and hardened convicts will be sent to other institutions instead of being concentrated at San Quentin.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Some drug addicts may be joining the military to get shipped to Vietnam where heroin is cheap.

Non-League Tests Face Marin Prep Gridder

By RON LENT

Marin County Athletic League teams confront non-league competitors in the second of two tuneups this weekend.

It will be Marin versus Alameda County in three of the four football contests involving local prepsters Friday.

The lineup: Redwood at Encinal of Alameda, 3:30 p.m.; Tamalpais visits Skyline of Oakland, 3:30 p.m.; and Terra Linda hosts Harry Ells of Oakland, 8 p.m. at San Rafael High. San Marin takes on Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park on Petaluma High School's field, 8 o'clock.

On Saturday, Novato hosts Petaluma High, 1 p.m.; Marin Catholic takes on Piner of Santa Rosa, there, 7:30 p.m.; Drake plays at Vallejo High, 8 p.m.; and San Rafael plays invading Montgomery of Santa Rosa, 8 p.m.

Of the four local Marin County Athletic League delegations participating Friday Redwood faces possibly the most explosive enemy.

The Giants, fresh from a 28-7 win over tough Sacred Heart of San Francisco Friday night, hit the road for the second straight week to battle a swift Encinal aggregate. The Jets, a 27-6 conquerer of San Marin Saturday, have an awesome running attack centering around the Shelton brothers, Eric and John. The pair ripped through San Marin's line like gangbusters, according to losing coach Bob Martin.

Not to be outdone, the Larkspur team has the Bill and Daryl Edralin act. During their 48-minute performance in San Francisco last week, the pair chewed up 121 yards and split two touchdowns. The Giant gems also received ample rushing support from basketballer Mike Connor.

While Redwood seeks its second win in as many outings, Tamalpais battles to even its mark at 1-1. The Indians, who surrendered a 24-15 decision to visiting Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland Saturday, face a stronger Alameda County team in Skyline. The Titans, though generally conceded to be a step behind Encinal, are a tougher outfit than O'Dowd.

Thus, Indian coach Mike Davlin has a tough assignment this week, but his enthusiastic troops could surprise, providing the Red and Blue reduce what the mentor considered "mental errors."

With Tam and Redwood busing elsewhere for engagements, Terra Linda High will be the center of local attention when entertaining Harry Ells of Oakland that evening. The Trojans, an easy 21-12 victor over Santa Rosa High in their initial outing, drew mixed reactions from coach Don Lucas, despite displaying potent passing. The biggest plays were quarterback Kevin Donohoe touchdown aerials covering 71 and 31 yards to Sean Casey and Steve Miles, respectively.

Though such sequences impressed the ever enthusiastic Trojan audience, Lucas remained as collected as the game tickets, saying, "It was a typical first contest performance. We made some mistakes, but that was to be expected in this, the first game, particularly with all those juniors."

The veteran Trojan leader lauded Donohoe's effort by stating, "He did a good job. And Miles ran some nice patterns. But it will be better when (halfback John) Buckley returns next week. He should be able to help" against visiting Harry Ells of Oakland Friday night at 8 o'clock on the same field.

Thus, Lucas gains one but apparently loses another, namely junior Jon Loeberg, a 6-foot, 210-pound linmen; he reinjured a dislocated finger and will miss next Friday's Falcon tilt.

Unlike Terra Linda, San Marin has dropped both of its tilts — and by wide margins. After bowing 34-6 to Gunn of Palo Alto and 27-6 to Encinal, Mustang boss Bob Martin commented: "we've made enough errors to last the rest of the year."

It will be his job to rectify transgressions such as dropped passes and leaky pass blocking if the Novato-based gridders are to spoil Rancho Cotate's 1-0 mark. The Rohnert Park team trounced Marin Catholic 34-20 in the winner's opener. Coach Clyde Brock's Cougars exhibited a quick-striking attack behind quarterback Steve Wlodarczyk.

Through possessing sterling players at the scoring slots, Brock is aware that San Marin will be "up" for this game in view of the continued progress of Mustang field general Hoza Wright. The southpaw, erratic in the inaugural against Gunn, repeatedly hit his targets in the Encinal tilt, only to have several completions precluded by bobbles.

Twin Bill For A's Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland A's have clinched a spot in the American League playoffs but still have plenty of incentive remaining.

1. They would like to win at least 100 games. 2. They would like to help Vida Blue win a couple of more games and 3. They'd like to see Reggie Jackson win the American League home run championship.

The A's start towards these goals at 6 p.m. this evening at the coliseum when they entertain the Chicago White Sox in the twi-night doubleheader.

Chuck Dobson (15-4) and Blue (23-8) will hurl for the A's against Chicago's Tommy John (12-15) and Bart Johnson (11-10). The 22-year-old Blue is winless in his last four starts and most of the A's feel a couple of more victories for the ace lefthander would put him in a fine position for possibly a Cy Young Award.

Oakland now is 97-55 on the season with nine games remaining at home. Manager Dick Williams said he'd like to win 100 games.

Jackson is tied for the league home lead with Bill Melton of the White Sox and Norm Cash of Detroit. All have hit 30.

"A guy who doesn't fold under pressure is going to win it," said Jackson of the longball title chase he'lw be waging tonight and Wednesday with Melton.

JINXVILLE?

Giants To Visit The Astrodome

HOUSTON (UPI) —Jinxville, in the form of the Houston Astrodome, awaits the pennant-pushing San Francisco Giants tonight.

Manager Charlie Fox and his crew of light bats invade the home of the Houston Astros for a three-game series. This is the same indoor ballpark where the Giants have lost 19 of their last 24 games, including four out of six this year.

Lefty John Cumberland (9-5) of the Giants will go tonight against Jack Billingham (8-15).

Despite being in the throes of a horrendous batting slump since Sept. 3, the Giants still cling to a 1 1-2 game lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

Bobby Bonds, Dick Dietz, Willie Mays, Alan Gallagher, Ken Henderson, Tito Fuentes and Chris Speier—the heart of the Giants regulars—have gone 47-for-339 since Sept. 3. That's an aggregate .139 batting average.

Pennants are seldom born on .139 batting averages.

Following Cumberland in the Giants' rotation against the Astros will be Juan Marichal (15-11) versus rookie James Rodney Richard (2-1) and Gaylord Perry (14-12) against Don Wilson (16-8) Thursday night.

After Houston, the Giants play three games at Cincinnati and then finish up with three more at San Diego.

One Bright Note: No 49ers Injured

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— the team escaped the game without injury.

Nolan was also asked how come tight end Bob Windsor and halfback Doug Cunningham start when Ted Kwalick and Vic Washington appear more explosive.

He indicated Windsor and Cunningham were better blockers and had more experience, but also promised that Kwalick and Washington would get plenty of work this season.

The San Francisco 49ers outgained Atlanta 372 to 266, so how come the Falcons hung a 20-17 loss on the prospectors in a nightmarish NFL opener?

"I've only looked at part of the films," coach Dick Nolan said here Monday, but then he added what everybody knew was the story of the game. "We gave the ball away seven times (four interceptions and three fumbles) and it's pretty hard to win a game like that."

"Still, we nearly did it. Our defensive team played tough football."

The 49er defense knocked the ball out of Atlanta's hands seven times, too. But such were the bounces of the pigskin Sunday that four took Atlanta bounces, two were whistled dead in close calls and only one wound up in the arms of a 49er.

Coach Nolan reported that

A Long Wait For Lions

DETROIT (UPI) — They planned for it, pointed for it and prepared for it during the entire off-season. Now the Detroit Lions are going to have to wait 12 more weeks for another chance to beat the Minnesota Vikings.

Minnesota, master of the Central Division and perhaps the entire National Football League as well, defeated Detroit in the nationally televised Monday night game by a 16-13 score. It was the Vikings' seventh win over the Lions in a row.

The two reigning heavyweights in the so-called "Black-and-Blue Division" don't meet again until Dec. 11 in the by then frozen territory which houses the Vikings.

"We should have won," lamented Detroit Coach Joe Schmidt, which is exactly the same thing he said last year when his Lions blew a 10-point lead in the fourth quarter of the second game between them.

The Lions then schemed and dreamed all winter, spring and summer of the day the two teams would meet again. But the Vikings came out on top again and are one up on the Lions in their quest for their fourth straight division crown.

Detroit blew another lead in this one, a 13-0 advantage accomplished on its acumen and the rare misfortunes of Minnesota in the first half.

Fred Cox connected on a nine-yard field goal with 5:18 left in the game to win it after tying the contest with 9:40 to play by putting a three-pointer through the goal posts from 42 yards out.

Errol Mann, the second most effective kicker in pro football last season, suffered through a "nightmare" night in which he missed five of seven field goal attempts — including one of 33 yards which would have tied the game with seven seconds left.

"We dropped the football a couple of times," Coach Bud Grant of Minnesota said. "It took a quarter and a half for us to recover from that. Last year I think we fumbled once inside our 35 all year—and this time we do it twice and have one pass intercepted in the first half."

Mann had kicked a 20-yard field goal the first time Detroit touched the ball in the game and Detroit added another score when quarterback Greg Landry hit running back Mel Farr with a three-yard touchdown pass. This score came after rookie Jeff Wright of Minnesota had fumbled without being hit on the Detroit kickoff and Craig Cotton fell on the ball on the Vikings' 21.

Dave Osborn fumbled without any help from the other side the next time Minnesota got the ball but Mann's 39-yard field goal try hit the crossbar. Mann also missed twice from 53 yards, and once from 36 yards. However, he did connect on one of 36 yards.

Cox got Minnesota on the ucoreboard when he booted a 13-yarder with just six seconds left in the first half to cut the gap to 13-3.

Wide receiver Bob Grim caught seven passes for 126 yards but the most vital was the one of 45 yards which quarterback Gary Cuozzo threw for a touchdown the first time the Vikings got their hands on the football in the second half. Grim fell on the two but got up and stepped hesitantly into the end zone for the score when defender Lem Barney made no effort to hit him on the ground.

"We had better field position and we moved the ball in the second half," Grant said.

Cuozzo wound up with 232 yards passing on 19 completions in 32 attempts, without being thrown for a loss once. His rushers, held to nine yards in the first half, ended with 43 yards for the game.

Landry completed a bare seven of 25 passes for just 56 yards.

Lutz Wins Hardcourt Net Title

Lutz, 24, a former U.S. Davis Cupper, invariably got his first serve where he wanted it and lost only four points all afternoon while serving. He won two games at love while serving en route to a 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 victory.

Olmedo tried to anticipate Lutz' moves but was unable to cope with the speed of the younger player. Olmedo's big points came on accurate placements. Lutz also had an advantage in that he grew up playing on cement surfaces such as the one here.

Lutz won $6,000 and Olmedo, who returned to the pro tour this year after a six-year absence, picked up a check for $3,000.

Jim Osborne of Honolulu and Jim McManus of Berkeley beat Robert Maud and Frew McMillan of South Africa 7-6, 6-3 to win the U.S. Hardcourt doubles at the Sutter Lawn Tennis Club.

Devine Back In Hospital After Brief Office Visit

Devine had hoped to be back on the sidelines today—despite a broken leg suffered in Sunday's 42-40 loss to the New York Giants—but doctors told him he should not.

Devine instead met with his assistant coaches, watched films and then talked with newsmen before returning to St. Vincent's Hospital.

Devine held an unusual news conference in his hospital room Monday and promptly declared:

—"I'm feeling fine. Much better than I thought I would. I'm more worried about Mike Mc Coy than I am about myself. He's a heck of a lot more important to this team than I am. Mike has a sprained ankle and he'll probably be out about 10 days."

—"I honestly don't think the loss will have any effect on the team's morale. I'm proud of the way they came back and didn't give up. If—after we got behind 28-7—the score would have ballooned to 55-12, then I would have been concerned."

It's Official: Cal Ineligible For Rose Bowl

BURLINGAME (UPI) —The Pacific-8 Conference Council has officially ruled out any possibility of the University of California landing a Rose Bowl bid this year.

Meeting on the San Francisco peninsula Monday, the faculty athletic representatives and athletic directors from the eight conference schools voted to uphold the probationary status of the Bears invoked by the NCAA. It had placed the Bears on probation for failing to predict a 1.6 freshman grade average for track sprinter-football player Isaac Curtis.

If the Bears should ould win the Pac-8 football title, the secondplace team would represent the conference in the Rose Bowl at the end of this season.

Cal's probationary status will be further discussed at an Oct. 6 meeting of the Pac-8 Council.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Orioles' Dobson Wins His 19th

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Pat Dobson is a better-than 500 major league pitcher for the first time in his career today —by one game —and needs just "one more" to place him in that special class of 20 game winners.

The 29-year old right-hander, acquired by the Baltimore Orioles from the San Diego Padres last winter, started the 1971 season with a 25-35 career record. His 8-4 victory over the New York Yankees Monday night gave him a 19-8 season record and moved him to within one game of a 20-victory season —the goal of every major league pitcher.

The win also built the Orioles' first-place lead in the American League East to 6 1-2 games and reduced to five their magic number for clinching a third straight division title.

Dobson allowed eight hits and four runs in eight innings but trailed, 4-3, going into the ninth as a result of a homer by Roy White in the eighth and needed some of that famous Baltimore late-inning lightning to get the victory.

He got it when Boog Powell led off the ninth with a double and pinch-runner Chico Salmon scored the tying run on Don Buford's infield out. Then the Yankee bullpen fell apart and the Orioles scored four more runs with the big blow a two-run single by Bob Grich.

The Cleveland Indians beat the Washington Senators, 3-1, after losing a week-old suspended game, 8-6, in the 20th inning and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Minnesota Twins, 3-0, in Monday's only othr big league action. The Philadelphia Phillies' scheduled doubleheader in Montreal, the only National League activity, was postponed by rain.

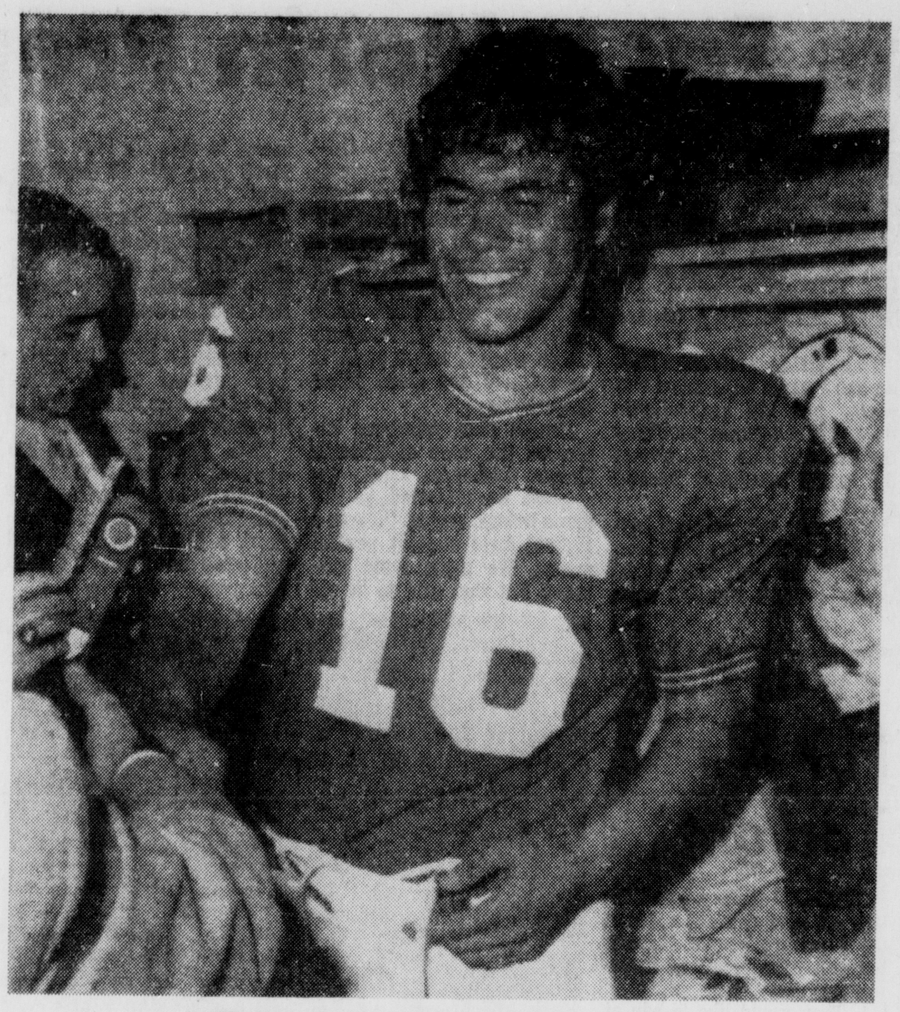

The Senators and Indians resumed their suspended game, started in Cleveland a week ago, with the score tied at 5-5 in the 17th inning. Denny McLain picked up his 10th victory of the year when the Senators scored three runs in the 20th inning with the help of three walks by Sam McDowell and a key error by Kurt Bevacqua on a double play grounder.

It may have been the most forgettable game of the season —there were 383 fans in the stands when it was resumed — as Cleveland set a record by issuing 19 walks and team records for most walks —30 — and most pitchers —18 —were set.

The players had mercy on the fans with a 2:04 second game in which McLain went eight innings and lost his 21st game. Alan Foster yielded three hits in 7 1-3 innings for his eighth win and Fred Stanley homered for the Indians.

Skip Lockwood pitched a fourhitter and drove in a run with a swinging bunt to win his 10th game for the Brewers. Andy Kosco accounted for the Brewers' third run with a homer off Ray Corbin, who suffered his 11th loss.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, needing one victory to clinch the National League East title, send 19-game winner Dock Ellis against Jerry Reuss (14-14) and the St. Louis Cardinals tonight, while the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers continue their run to the wire in the West.

THE SMILE OF A WINNER

A happy Jim Plunkett received congratulations in the New England Patriots dressing room Sunday after leading a 20-6 win over the heavily favored Oakland Raiders in Foxboro, Mass. The Stanford University product threw two touchdown passes.

Ex-Raider Blasts QB Lamonica

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI)— Don't try to tell Ike Lassiter the New England Patriots' win over the Oakland Raiders was a fluke.

Lassiter, no stranger to the way Oakland plays, predicted it. He didn't say the score would be anything like the 20-6 shellacking Oakland got from the Pats, but he predicted New England would win.

"I know what it takes to beat Oakland," he said last Thursday. "You gotta put presure on (Daryle) Lamonica."

That's exactly what Lassiter said and that is exactly what the big defensive e n d acquired from the Raiders last year, did. Lamonica got the ball and directed the first 10 plays. But instead of going on to a touchdown, he was on the Pats' 43 and had to punt.

"They wanted to take it to us," Lassiter said. "They wanted to establish their running game, but they had to go off-tackle because none of their backs can run outside. So we made a few adjustments and stopped them, not cold, but we stopped them."

Lassiter had that grin he had last week when he said, "The big thing to do is to lay a lick on the side of Lamonica's head." He kept talking about the game and how he kept encouraging the defensive line to keep charging and not give up.

"Then the Mad Bomber had to go to the air," Lassiter said, "and when you keep the pressure on Lamonica, when you get close to him, he throws the ball away. Even if his receiver is wide open, if he sees a little rush coming at him, he unloads the ball too quick. So we put a little rush on him. "Yaa-hooo!" Lassiter's yell echoed through Schaefer Stadium.

The business for this week is the Detroit Lions, who ought to be smarting after their 16-13 loss to Minnesota Monday night. Three members of the Patriot defensive secondary, Clarence Scott, Don Webb and Larry Carwell, are injured, but fullback Jim Nance says he'll be ready to go Sunday.

"I have to play Sunday," Nance said. "I've been out of action too long. If I'm out much longer, I'll be out of shape." Nance was grinning almost as broadly as the players who were actually in the game. His dislocated toe kept him out of action.

"They thought they'd roll over us 50-0," Nance said. "That's what it was.

"We didn't have to play catchup for a change, and we could play a normal offense."

SPORTS SHORTS

Monzon 'Ready' For Griffith

With just five days to go, both fighters eased up Monday on heavy workouts, turning to reflex sharpening and light sparring sessions for the Sept. 25 fight in the downtown Luna Park closed stadium.

Both also worked out on the bags late Monday afternoon, the Argentine first and Griffith later, but they still have not met since Griffith's arrival last week.

Football

CLEVELAND — A federal grand jury was to convene for the second consecutive day today to investigate possible anti-trust violations of the National Football League — including alleged blacklisting of players.

Scheduled to testify was Rommie Loudd, personnel director for the New England Patriots.

Loudd, along with John Danahy, director of security for the NFL and Paul Brown, coach and general manager of the Cincinnati Bengals, testified behind closed doors Monday.

NEW YORK — National Football League teams set an opening day attendance record, it was announced Tuesday by the office of commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The two largest crowds attended games between Houston and Cleveland and Los Angeles and New Orleans. A crowd of 73,387 showed up at Municipal Stadium while 70,915 poured through the turnstiles at Tulane Stadium in New Orleans.

Baseball

BOSTON — The future of the Washington Senators was expected to be settled today when American League club owners meet with baseball commissioners Bowie Kuh and one or two prospective pu chasers.

The special session called by league president Joe Cronin was believed facing two major decisions, whether to keep the financially-ailing Senators in Washington and how to make up an estimated $3.5 million difference between the supply and the demand.

Tennis

NEW YORK — Gladys Heldman, coordinator of the Virginia Slims tennis tournaments, today denied Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong was offered $56,000 to play on the American indoor circuit.

Two Cagers Arrested For Pot

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) —Two North Carolina State basketball players were arrested Monday on charges of possessing marijuana and their fate as athletes may hang on a court's decision.

Paul Coder, a 6-9 center and the captain, was arrested with substitute forward Bob Huets in a park adjacent to the university campus.

Police took Coder and Huets into custody about noon when they approached a car that had been under surveillance. The 1964 Ford is registered to Norman Bruce Coder.

Police said they found about five ounces of marijuana on the students and in the car. Coder and Huets each were charged with one count of illegal possession of marijuana.

Willis Casey, the university's athletic director, said action would be taken against the two if they are found guilty, but he was unable to say what the measures would be.

The school scholarship committee would have jurisdiction over their athletic grants while their status as students would be reviewed by the university.

The school said in a statement that "depending upon the decision of the court, the university may refer the students' cases to the student judical board.

Nebraska Remains In Top Spot

NEW YORK (UPI) —In a week that saw nearly every team in the top 20 win by a rout, even a 43-point victory wasn't enough to topple Nebraska from the top spot in the United Press International ratings.

That's what happened to Notre Dame as the Fighting Irish drubbed Northwestern 507, but the Cornhuskers held on to their No. 1 ranking with a lesser rout of Minnesota, 35-7.

With 33 of the 35 coaches in UPI's ratings board participating, Nebraska got 25 first-place votes and a total of 307 points, while Notre Dame received the remaining eight first-place votes and a total of 292.

Texas, with 226 points, held onto the No. 3 spot, but Michigan, which clobbered Virginia 56-0, sneaked past idle Ohio State for fourth place. Following the Buckeyes was Alabama, No. 6 for the second week.

Auburn, which opened its season with a 60-7 rout of Chattanooga, leaped from No. 10 into seventh place while Tennessee slipped back a notch into eighth despite trouncing the U.of California at Santa Barbara, 48-6. Arkansas and Colorado, which both won big over the weekend finished out the top 10 in ninth and tenth place respectively.

Oklahoma, 12th last week, moved up one spot to No. 11 after opening its season with a 30-0 whitewashing of Southern Methodist while Stanford, last week's No. 11 switched places with the Sooners, dropping to 12th.

A three-way tie between Penn State, Washington and Georgia settled No. 13. The Nittany Lions opened their season crushing Navy, 56-3, while Georgia and Washington won their second games of the season.

Arizona State, Southern California and Louisiana State finished 16th, 17th and 18th, but the final top 20 berth resulted in a tie between North Carolina, a newcomer to the football ratings, and Georgia Tech.

Minnesota coach Murray Warmath, a member of UPI's ratings board, summed up Nebraska's strength after Saturday's game. When asked what the turning point was, Warmath replied, "when they blew the opening whistle to start the game."

But Northwestern coach Alex Agase, also a member of the ratings board, was equally impressed with Notre Dame after his Northwestern team suffered its worst defeat of his tenure there.

Said Agase: "Now I know how David would've felt if he'd missed Goliath with that rock."

COLLEGE NOTEBOOK

'Real' Home Game For Sonoma State

By RALPH CHATOIAN

There will be another first in Sonoma State College's young football program Saturday — the first varsity grid game on the college campus.

The Cossacks will take on Oregon Tech at 1:30 p.m. on the Rohnert Park school's new football field. Last year's home games were played at Bailey Field in Santa Rosa.

New scoreboard, new field and new seating facilities to handle about 1,500 persons will be unveiled for the inaugural. Coach Carl Peterson would like nothing better than to break in the field with a victory.

The Cossacks lost their season opener Saturday in Whittier, 10-7, in a defensive show. It was 3-0 at half, Whittier in front, with both teams scoring their lone touchdowns in the second half.

"I was pleased with our defense," said Peterson yesterday, "but we're goin g to have to go some on offense. Dropped passes, holding penalties which stopped drives, these will have to be corrected."

Sonoma State got out in front in the third quarter, 7-3, on a touchdown set up by the defense. Bob Sears, defensive back who played his high school ball at Novato High, intercepted a pass and returned it 40 yards to the Whittier 20. Eventually quarterback Ernie Simon threw a one-yard toss to fullback John Buckey on a play-action pass, and Sonoma lit the scoreboard. The kick by Ray Rivers was good. But the lead lasted only until the fourth quarter when Whittier scored the winner.

But it's a new ball game this week, and Peterson can remember back a year ago when the Cossacks made the trip to Klamath Falls, Ore., to take on Oregon Tech. It was snowing and before long, his cold Cossacks were behind 20-0. But when the game ended, Sonoma State was on top, 21-20.

"I expect another tough game Saturday," said Peterson.

THINGS DON'T look all that good for the water polo program at College of Marin. Coach Bob Justice has only five eligible boys out for the team and "I need at least 10 players," he said yesterday.

"We had 10 out last year, but it seems so many of the good swimmers from the local high schools have gone off to four-year colleges."

THE WOMEN are getting into the act in Sonoma State volleyball, leaving Saturday for a clinic at Cal State Hayward. Sonoma State will be competing in the Northern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (NCIAC). First match for the Sonoma State gals will be Oct. 5, a home date with Santa Rosa Junior College.

Pop Warner Scores

The Redwood Junior Giants dumped San Marin 21-0 but Redwood Gremlin edition dropped a 5-0 decision to the Novato-based Colts in Pop Warner play Saturday in Larkspur.

North Carolina Gridder Dies Of Heat Stroke

The 6-2, 224-pound sophomore from Staten Island, N.Y., had been in a coma since collapsing during wind sprints in 90-degree weather Sept. 6.

After Arnold collapsed, a Raleigh newspaper, the News and Observer, reported that Coach Bill Dooley had not given his team a water break in pregame practice drills.

The paper later reported Dooley was advised by university doctors to start giving water breaks to prevent future heat strokes.

Marin Baseballers Drop Doubleheader

Big G Super of San Francisco hosts the Marin A's Sunday on the Big Rec diamond in S.F. after drubbing the local baseballers 10-8 and 14-7 last weekend in a practice doubleheader.

The 1971 Summer League AAA Champs' timely hitting proved to be the difference, though the vanquished outhit the visitors 22 to 11. Dan Caventy belted a solo home run for Marin in the sixth inning of the first game.

New Ram Mentor

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Tommy Prothro, new head coach of the Los Angeles Rams, starred as a blocking back under Wallace Wade at Duke University.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Giants announced Monday they now are accepting ticket orders for the National League Championship Playoff series.

Should the Giants win the N.L. West they will host the first two games of the best-of-five series on Saturday-Sunday, Oct. 2-3.

Ticket prices for the Playoff have been set at $7.50 for box seats and $5.50 for reserved. All orders will be handled by mail with an additional cost of $1.00. Cashier's checks or money orders should be made out to the San Francisco Giants and mailed to Championship Series, P.O. Box 24308, San Francisco, Calif., 94124.

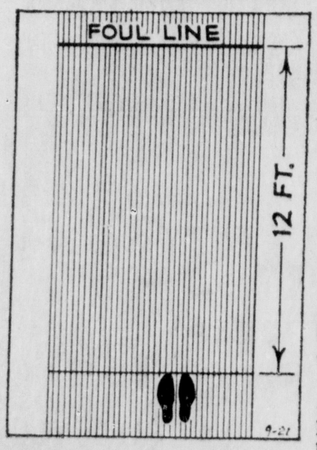

Under no circumstances will the Giants accept personal checks.

Timmer Triumphs

William Timmer topped Hillers Mens Wear, 5-2, behind the timely hitting of John Leaird and Randy Mason in San Rafael Recreation Department softball last night at Albert Field.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

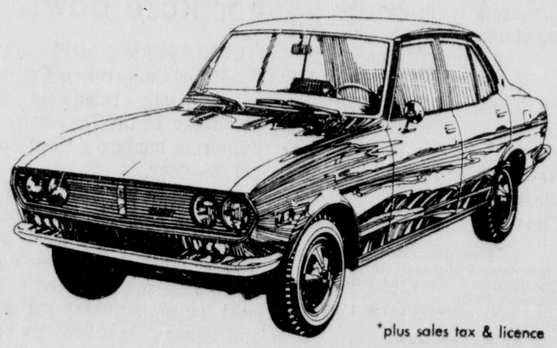

Most beginning women bowlers should start the approach from a point about 12 feet behind the foul line. This is about 18 inches in front of markers usually placed on the lanes, which men use as a guide. Move back if you feel you are crowding your approach, or closer if you're finishing too far behind the foul line.

Hunting Trips Can Be Costly

By AL GIDDINGS

I just received a letter addressed to Jack Schaub of Sacramento from Howard Leach of Sacramento that came to me by mistake. The envelope was addressed to me Howard, as you remember, is my hunting friend from Sacramento who charged (or attempted to) Mary and me for the spirits which he brought along on our sagehen hunt.

Now you can judge for yourself his fraudulent claims. You might wonder how he could possibly send me such a telltale letter by mistake. Well, he's sort of a professor type — the absent minded kind that you read so much about. In fact he recently took his wife and two daughters on a trip to British Columbia. They drove, pulling a trailer all the way.

About the second day, Barbara — Leach's wife — and the two girls noticed that their dad was so absorbed in thought that he wasn't answering them for hours at a time. They decided to play a game. Every time they discussed "Daddy" they used the name "Hubert." At the end of three days, one evening Howard asked them who this fellow "Hubert" was that was so prominent in their talks.

HERE'S HOWARD'S letter:

"Dear Brother Schaub:

"As you well know, our recent year's hunting expeditions have become more costly. This is due in part to the attrition in the hunting party. Both H. Leach, Sr. and Army Armstrong no longer accompany us and contribute financially. In addition, several of our 'close' friends no longer care to hunt with us; others have found happier hunting grounds. The result has been that we have had to rely heavily on Al and Mary Giddings to help us finance our costly trips. Recently Al has been questioning the costs and how we go about assessing him and Mary! He has now discovered that it is more costly for him to campout with us than enjoy the luxury of a motel and cafe.

"Unfortunately, I let the cat out of the bag on the last trip, found out that one-half the grocery bill at the Mayfair in Reno was for the 'booze' I bought. I let this slip out in a conversation with Bob Wise at Webber Lake when I laughingly said,'Have a drink of free liquor!' Giddings overheard this, made a fast calculation and discovered that my $23 grocery bill for the sage hen shoot included one quart of whiskey, one gallon of wine and two six-packs of beer. This 'overhead' cost I explained was standard and was exacted for my labor in guiding him and Mary to their limits of grouse. I explained that you and I customarily charge them, but it's always been in the form of an alcoholic beverage which of course we consume around the campfire after the hunt. But to put it mildly, he is raising hell!

"Frankly, he wants to be provided the luxury of a guided and well tendered hunt, but on his terms. He and Mary have indicated that they plan to participate in our coming deer hunt, but that they may reside in a motel ten miles from camp! Be this the case, it becomes urgent that some other arrangement be in order so that we can be compensated for this loss of revenue.

"I BELIEVE WE will have to prevail upon them to share in the total cost of the hunt with some of the enclosed itemized costs for services. However, we should indicate to them that we would be willing to let them furnish the transportation in their recently acquired Suburban with its 4-wheel drive, air conditioner, six seats. I suggest we offer him one cent per mile. He would have to buy the gas, and pay other such costs as breakdowns. You should particularly note our car labor charges if he should have a car breakdown. Even a minor breakdown should serve to provide us a beverage supply for five years of future hunting.

Please make whatever changes or additions in the following itemized costs, and I will convey our schedule to Al along with an invitation to join us at our happy hunting camp!"

"Sincerely,
Howard Leach"

Raiders Unhurt, San Diego Next

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders were stunned but unhurt after falling 20-6 to New England in their National Football League opener.

Oakland apparently got through its opener without injury so they'll be in good shape for next Sunday's battle at San Diego, where the Chargers are flying high after upsetting Kansas City 21-14 last Sunday.

Defensive end Ben Davidson said the Raiders "were flat" during their collapse against the Jim Plunket-led Patriots.

The 6-2, 212-pound senior from Tacoma, Wash., also caught three passes, including a 34-yarder for a touchdown, and had a 35-yard touchdown run nullified on a penalty.

"We'll do all right once we cut down on these mistakes," Martin concluded.

Mental blocks, not errors, are troubling Novato coach Al Scott as he prepares his troops for Petaluma. The Trojans, the victor over Drake 12-7 in the first contest this year for both squads, hope to compound the Hornets' non physical difficulties. "We just can't seem to put more than one score on the board," Scott claimed.

The strong willed coach is working this week on the offense. "It seems we always have a good defense," he noted.

The Black and Gold will need a stout defense in stopping the ball control-oriented visitors. Coach Howard Cadenhead's offense features quarterback Ken Griffith, a good leader with an adequate arm. The running of Bob Gillis presents the most immediate threat to Hornet defensive security.

Scott expressed confidence that when the offense comes around, so will Hornet victories.

Conversely, when the Marin Catholic defense blossoms, Wildcat coach Bruno Banducci will probably earn his initial triumph. For now, the one-time Stanford University guard relies on the running of fullback Pat Parnow plus the passing of alternate quarterbacks Steve Sherry or Steve Schaumleffel.

Despite the quarterback question mark and the 0-2 slate to date, Banducci is not outwardly troubled by early season developments. "Two games don't make the whole year. Anyway, I'd gladly settle for 7-2, and I'm sure the kids feel the same way. We've just got to pick ourselves up and start winning."

These words also apply to the Drake (0-1) situation. Coach Bob Franceschini's footballers succumbed to a Petaluma rally Friday night, 12-7 but the San Anselmo group served notice that possesses hard-hitting defense, if the play of tackle Don Seward and linebacker Rick Bozzio is any indication.

Drake has its stars, but, off its showing against a strong Lincoln of San Francisco unit, the San Rafael High defense may be the best around. With a special emphasis on crisp tackling and pursuit, the Red and White are capable of stifling even powerful offenses, as the Lincoln Mustangs readily conceded after the 33-0 pasting Saturday morning on losers field.

Lanky lineman Duke Bessee triggered the team's pyroantics with a five yard fumble recovery jaunt into the end zone. This opened the blood gates for an offensive splurge led by quarterback Dirk Gansloser and running backs Scott Duncan and Mark Farrar.

The Trio's ability to convert the defense-induced turnovers into touchdowns gives coach Bob Muster a good chance of ending Terra Linda's long standing dominance in the MCAL, assuming the Bulldogs continue winning.

Montgomery, the third Sonoma County team to play against MCAL members Saturday, will offer San Rafael a stern test.

PLAYER AGENT STEVE ARNOLD

He Makes Pro Owners Jumpy

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Professional football should take a look at pro baseball and change its draft system, says Steve Arnold, a man who makes owners of professional teams jumpy every time he comes around.

Arnold, one of the co-founders of Pro Sports, Inc., a firm which represents players in owner-player dealings, has moved west to open Steve Arnold Enterprises in Corte Madera.

He and Marty Blackman founded Pro Sports, Inc., seven years ago, the first firm to deal solely with professional athletics. Among the players under contract with Pro Sports are Jim Brown, John Unitas, Bubba Smith, Lance Alworth, Jim Maloney. There are more than 100 players, mostly football and basketball men, under contract with Pro Sports, Inc.

Blackman has remained in New York to start his own business.

Arnold, a handsome, curly haired man of 33, finds it objectionable the way players are signed in the National Football League.

"When a player is drafted by a team," says Arnold, "he has to play for that team or not in the league at all." Citing the recent San Francisco 49ers — Tim Anderson case, Arnold said, "Anderson and his agent couldn't get together with the 49ers, so he decided to play in the Canadian League. If he ever wanted to play in the NFL he would have to play for the 49ers."

Baseball has a better plan, said Arnold. If a player drafted by a team doesn't want to sign with that team, his name goes on a list and he's eligible for a secondary draft later. "Football should do the same thing," he said.

Arnold and Blackman are both Columbia Law School graduates who went into practice as regular lawyers before forming Pro Sports, Inc. It was the first of the companies to represent athletes but now there are about 50 such businesses, according to Arnold's estimation.

Pro Sports, Inc., set up an intricate network scouting system, with Blackman and Arnold searching out the best collegiate talent, signing contracts for their services, and then waiting for the player draft. They handled all negotiations for the athlete and earned usually 10 per cent of the agreed upon contract between player and team.

Here's a rich example:

One of Arnold's clients was LaSalle's basketball star Larry Cannon who eventually signed a four-year contract reportedly calling for an excess of $250,000 with the Miami Floridians of the American Basketball Association. On that deal, Arnold came out with about $25,000. Not bad, eh?

Arnold recalled how coldly player agents were greeted by the late Vince Lombardi who preferred to talk to the players himself when he was coach-general manager of the Green Bay Packers.

"One thing about Lombardi," said Arnold, "was his ability to change with the times. At first he wouldn't even talk to an agent, but later he realized player representatives were here to stay. It got to the point, eventually, when he needed a representative himself, and I wound up representing him on endorsements and television commercials.

"He was quite a guy, and what a negotiator. Wow!" declared Arnold.

Arnold said he thinks prices are coming down yearly on what rookies are receiving to sign pro football contracts, but admits that basketball players are highly overpaid for their services. But, like football, prices will come down after the eventual merger of the ABA and National Basketball Association, he feels.

Arnold is representing five members of the Oakland Raiders team — tight end Ray Chester, defensive tackle Art Thoms, guard George Buehler, linebacker Gerald Irons, defensive end Tony Klein. He isn't currently representing any of the 49ers.

There can be some problems when contingencies are written into player contracts, where players earn more pay for running or passing more than a certain figure, or win NFL honors. Arnold laughed when he recalled an early situation when contingencies caused some quick negotiations in a huddle between players of one team in the early stages of the American Football League.

The player needed 1,000 yards to earn himself an additional $5,000 and going into the last game of the season he had 930, said Arnold. He kept trying to get the quarterback to give him the ball more and finally the quarterback told him they had to win the game, the heck with yardage. In desperation, he told the quarterback he would give him $1,000 if he passed the mark. The quarterback fed him the ball more and they both got the extra money.

Jittery Investors Send Market Down

Robert B. Johnson, a general partner of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, said some institutions are concerned about what Phase Two of President Nixon's economic policies will entail and organized labor's attack on the program in general.

Labor leaders have complained that Nixon's economic reforms are lopsided in favor of big business, and that more should be done for the average working man.

Brown-Forman Distillers "B," by far the most active Amex issues, was ahead fractionally on about 50,000 shares.

RCA, the most active NYSE stock, gained 7-8 after climbing more than 2 points Monday in the wake of an announcement that it was discarding most of the computer business. Analysts said the move was likely to benefit RCA over the long run.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Easier Mortgages Benefit Builders

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold City Investing at a considerable loss. It has come back about 10 points. Should I sell now or continue to hold? — B.P.

A. The recent move by the Federal Home Loan Bank authorizing savings and loan to grant conventional loans with 5 per cent down payments could be an important factor for companies such as City Investing. Other recent moves by the government to hold mortgage rates down should help maintain the current high rate of building. City Investing's real estate subsidiaries, General Development and Guerdon Industries, should contribute importantly to expected earnings improvement this year. Shares should be held for continued recovery.

Q. I am a recent widow with a 6-month-old child. Insurance worth $100,000 and Social Security are my total resources. American General Bond Fund has been suggested as a safe tax-free income investment. Do you think this would be a wise move? — M.E.

A. This closed-end bond fund trades on the NYSE at about a 10 per cent premium over the asset value of its portfolio. And although its indicated dividend return is one of the more generous within this group it is not tax free. A bond fund can in no way guarantee that your capital will be intact when you decide to sell your shares. Nor is the current high rate of return a certainty. However, by investing in good quality bonds you are relatively assured that at maturity your capital will be repaid at par value and in the intervening years a known interest income will be received.

In your case, I would suggest older discount bonds paying somewhat lower current income but giving you a capital gain at maturity. Approximately $20,000 in each of the following: Alcoa 6s of 1992, GMAC 6¼s of 1988, International Nickel 6.85s of 1993 and Sears Roe. Accept. 5s of 1982 would have a face value of $95,000 at maturities, 11 to 22 years hence. Current return on the investment would be $5,675.

Firm Reports Earnings Up

PACIFIC GROVE (BW) — Flagg Industries Inc. (ASE, PCSE), formerly California Health Care Inc., reported revenues of $3,275,000 and net income of $334,000 for the fiscal first quarter ended July 31.

Primary earnings per share were 26 cents based on 1,281,602 shares outstanding.

These results reflect a slight increase over the first quarter of 1970, which results have been restated to reflect adjustments reported in the fourth quarter of the past fiscal year.

Marcucci Gets Fire Chief Badge

Robert E. Marcucci, an 11-year veteran with the San Rafael Fire Department and son of a former San Anselmo fire chief, was named San Rafael fire chief last night. (Other San Rafael city council stories, page 28.)

The San Rafael City Council voted unanimously to accept the recommendation of its fire commission that Marcucci be appointed to succeed Vance Trivett who resigned last month after 11 years as chief.

Marcucci, not present at the council meeting said later he was "apprehensive" about taking over for Trivett. "He was a big man with big shoes. It's going to be tough to fill them," he said.

Marcucci's appointment was effective immediately at a salary of $1,511 a month.

ROBERT E. MARCUCCI

Marcucci, 33, of 259 Center Street, has been one of three battalion chiefs with the San Rafael department. His brother, Marty, is a lieutenant with the San Anselmo Fire Department.

Their father, Nello E. Marcucci, served as San Anselmo fire chief for 33 years, retiring in 1963. He died in 1967.

The new chief's mother, Helen Y. Marcucci, lives in San Anselmo and is manager of the Corte Madera office of Golden West Savings and Loan Association.

Marcucci was born in Ross and graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School in 1956. He received a diploma in fire science from the College of Marin in 1969 and has served as an instructor in the college's fire science program.

He started his career early, working summers during high school as a helper for the Marin County Fire Department. After working two years for the Marin Municipal Water District, Marcucci joined the San Rafael Fire Department Sept. 1, 1960. He was named battalion chief in October 1967.

Plea For School Is Rejected

By PAT ANGLE

The Sausalito School District Board took sweeping action against the Marin City Learning Center and its sympathizers last night and drew an angry response from most of the approximately 50 persons who attended the special meeting.

By a 3-0 vote, with trustees Nathaniel Johnson and Jerry L. Whitcomb absent, the board voted to deny "unequivocally" the center's request to use the Manzanita School in Marin City for classes.

On the recommendation of Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg, the trustees also agreed to fire two teachers' aides, declaring them in "conflict of interest" because they are members of the learning center's board of directors. The center, with approximately 55 students (kindergarten through eighth grade) was established by Marin City parents who were dissatisfied with the education their children were receiving in Sausalito schools.

The board also accepted "with gratitude" the resignation of another educational aide, Susanna Lowry, who said she was "fed up with (the board's) political games" and its penchant "for backing people up against the wall."

And trustee Robert A. Thompson threatened to bring legal action against Special Assistant James T. Toliver Jr., charging that as president of the learning center board, Toliver "may well be" interfering with his contractual relations with the district and guilty of "unprofessional conduct." (Although Toliver was dismissed by the board in May, he has appealed the firing to superior court and remains an employee of the district until the case is decided in the courts).

In voting to dismiss title one aide Jackie Harris and educational aide Hazel Curry, Thompson said the learning center was a private school, practicing de facto segregation, "formed in protest and in direct conflict with the Sausalito School District."

Thompson and Lindberg questioned whether the aides could be loyal to both the district and the center. "Their loyalties may be so divided that we may not be able to trust them," Thompson said.

"Have you personally informed Mrs. Curry and Mrs. Harris that you feel their activities at the center are in conflict with their employment in the district?" asked Martha Freebairn-Smith, a former Sausalito District trustee who resigned in May 1970 in the face of a recall election that June which subsequently went against her. Mrs. Freebairn-Smith now teaches at the Learning Center.

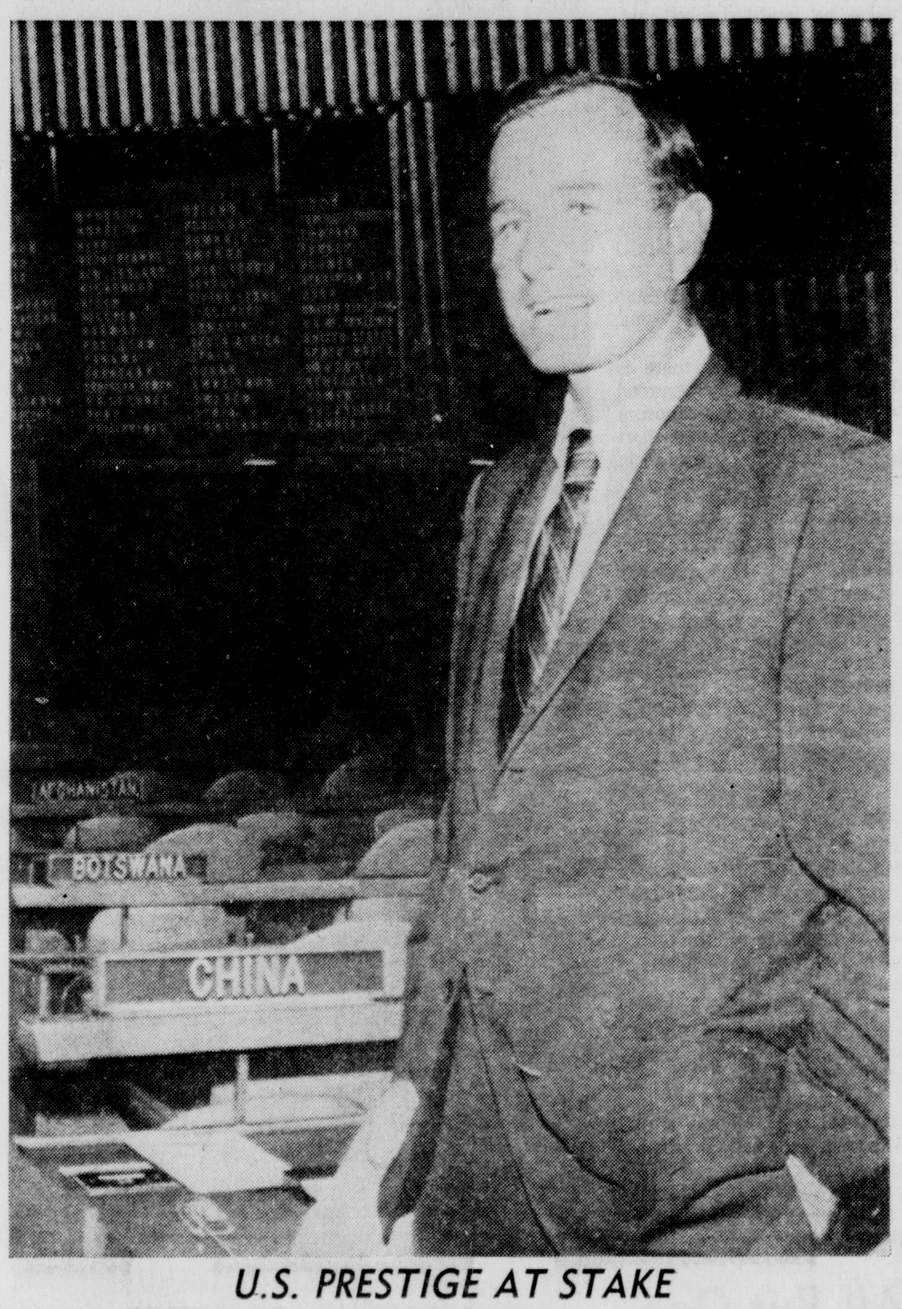

Lindberg replied the matter had not been discussed with the two aides. "I am the first to admit that Mrs. Curry has been a great help at Martin Luther King School," the superintendent said. "I have complimented her and am indebted to her for her services, but I think she would be placed in an extremely awkward position, being responsible to both the district and the learning center."

Mrs. Freebairn-Smith said the board and the superintendent were calling the aides "guilty before they have committed one guilty act, accusing them of being disloyal before they have committed one act of disloyalty." She asked how the board could vote to fire the two women before informing them it considered them to be involved in a conflict on interest situation.

Robert H. Prather, former principal of Tamalpais High School, told the trustees they were "on really shaky ground legally" and said it was his understanding a person could not legally be dismissed because of race, poltiical activities or creed of any kind.

U.S. PRESTIGE AT STAKE

George Bush, American ambassador to the United Nations, stands in front of the board on which votes on admitting Red China to the UN will be tallied. Bush said he's "working my heart out" promoting the American policy of admitting Red China while retaining Taiwan. The outcome of the effort will be in doubt, observers feel, up until the vote is taken in mid-October. The U.S. is staking its prestige on the two-China policy. (UPI Telephoto)

Nixon Gets Passage Of Draft Bill

Measure Abolishes College Deferments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, after a seven month struggle, passed and sent to President Nixon today a draft extension bill that abolishes deferments for college students and gives the military a record high pay raise. The vote on final passage has 55 to 30.

Passage of the measure—which will restore draft calls that have been suspended since June 30—followed a close 61 to 30 vote which barred a threatened filibuster.

The bill is expected to be signed by Nixon soon. Inductions probably will be resumed immediately afterwards.

The bill carries the strongest statement yet written by Congress on the Vietnam war—urging the President to withdraw all U.S. troops from Indochina as soon as possible.

But, to the disappointment of war critics, the measure sets no deadline for an end to U.S. involvement.

Since the existing draft authority expired, a series of controversies had held up a final Senate vote on the new legislation to extending the selective service system until June 30, 1973.

Supporters of the extension succeeded in convincing two-thirds of their colleagues that a continuation of no inductions was a hazard to national security. No one has been drafted into the Army since

In addition to a two year extension of the draft, the legislation includes a $2.4 billion military pay raise and a compromise version of an end-the-war amendment.

The Senate originally passed an end-the-war amendment calling for the withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Indochina in nine months. The language was weakened and the specific withdrawal timetable deleted in a Senate-House conference.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who introduced the Vietnam amendment, promised his colleagues they would have another opportunity to vote for it later in the session.

"We must bring this war to an end," Mansfield said. "It is within our power, if we will act."

Mansfield failed last week to table the conference report and send it back to Senate-House negotiation in an effort to restore his amendment.

Joining Mansfield in voting against stopping the filibuster, Sen. Charles McC Mathias, R-Md., said "the time to end the war is now. The place is here."

Prior to today's vote, John Stennis, R-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, once again warned his colleagues that a prolonged filibuster would weaken the nation's security.

He circulated a fresh batch of letters from Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and the Joint Chiefs of Staff warning of an impending manpower crisis. In the nearly three months without the draft, Stennis said half the enlistees were drawn from "the lowest possible category" of qualification.

Without the motivation of the draft, he contended "you don't get many men that are worth half their keep."

Gravel, however, pleaded for more time to make his case that draft calls were not needed now and in the future. He contended that conscription was inimical to freedom and served notice that "it will take a cloture vote as long as I am a member of this body to initiate the draft."

Angela Evidence Is Revealed In Motion

By MARY LEYDECKER

A motion filed yesterday by attorneys for Angela Davis asking that certain evidence in her case be suppressed gave several hints as to the large amount of evidence the state apparently intends to present against her.

Only a skeleton of the case against her has been made public so far — mainly the testimony of witnesses before the grand jury which indicted her.

Asst. Atty Gen. Albert W. Harris, who is prosecuting the case, has reportedly preferred to retain the bulk of evidence for the trial itself.

In the motion made yesterday, however, Miss Davis's attorney referred to several searches and seizures not made public before.

Revealed was an incident on July 30, 1970 (a little more than a month before the Marin Civic Center shoot-out) in which Miss Davis and Jonathan Jackson were stopped at the California-Mexico border.

A customs inspector who stopped them at the San Ysidro border station said he questioned them "because of the unusualness of blacks crossing the border at such a late hour," according to the motion. (It was 11:30 p.m. and the agent said they were returning from Mexico.)

According to the motion, Miss Davis was taken to the San Diego Police department, where she was questioned about "transporting a juvenile across the border" and statements were taken from her illegally, according to her attorneys.

Another heretofore unknown incident revealed in the motion was a search of an apartment in Miami, Fla. on Oct. 9, 1970, where Miss Davis was appar-

Police Gas Saigon Students

SAIGON (UPI)—A bomb wrecked the Vietnamese Confederation of Labor building tonight following outbreaks of antigovernment rioting in which police fired teargas to disperse 300 students protesting the compulsory draft.

The explosion, across the street from the headquarters of the U.S. aid mission, tore apart several rooms, left a gaping hole in the outer wall and set fire to several cars parked in the compound. No casualties were reported.

The students today complained there was no point in taking university examinations if they were going to be drafted anyway and poured into the streets to express their feelings. Police met them with a barrage of teargas that forced them back inside.

Nelson Blames Revolutionaries

By FRANK FARRARA

Warden Nelson described current attacks against the prison system as the work of those who have disrupted college campuses, castigated police and delayed court procedure.

Speaking before the San Rafael Rotary Club, which gave him a standing ovation, Warden Nelson said prison officials have seen "clouds on the horizon" for several years.

"By no stretch of the imagination did we believe that savage butchery would be the end result, butchery without rhyme or reason, slaughter of men both personnel and inmates, who were only going about their daily tasks," he said.

Six men died at the prison in an attempted escape Aug. 21, three guards, two nonparticipating inmates and George Jackson, one of the Soledad Brothers awaiting murder trial in San Francisco.

"The primary responsibility must be laid at the feet of those same people who are responsible for bringing our institutions of learning into such ill repute with many persons in the land," Nelson said.

"They are the same persons who are dedicated to bringing our police departments down to the level of the secret police of foreign countries and who are dedicated to proving that our judicial system will not work by constant delay and disruptions," he said.

"In short, they are attempting to prove that prisons are unmanageable and that the system of banishing men from the midst of the larger community is not a workable method."

In recent years, revolutionary forces outside prisons have played a role in prison disturbances, Nelson said. For the revolutionaries and some of the inmate leaders "the prison becomes one more tool of the system that must be overthrown," the warden said.

Fatal Shot Entered Jackson From Back

The bullet that killed San Quentin inmate George Jackson Aug. 21 entered his back — not the top of his head as previously reported.

The information came in a final autopsy report filed by Dr. John Manwaring, Marin pathologist, yesterday at the Marin County Coroner's Office.

Neither prison officials nor Coroner Donovan O. Cooke would speculate today on the implications of Manwaring's report.

Dr. Cooke had told reporters Aug. 23 that Jackson died of a bullet wound that apparently entered the top of his head and exited from his lower back.

Manwaring's preliminary report, based on his examination of Jackson's body early Aug. 22, noted bullet wounds in the scalp and back, but said that "it was impossible to be certain of the direction of this bullet pending consultation with ballistics experts and opportunities to see the clothing."

Dr. Cooke said today that he had said earlier the bullet entered the head because he "just thought it looked that way."

Manwaring was reported to be out of town today, but his final report says that "ballistics consultation confirms that the

Supervisors Vote Courtroom Shield

Marin County Board of Supervisors voted to install the protective device this morning by 3-to-2 vote on a motion by John F. McInnis.

Michael Wornum and Louis H. Baar joined McInnis in voting for shield, which will cost a minimum of $15,000.

Baar said he thinks the shield, to be erected between the spectators and the front area where the jury and court attaches sit, would save the county money by reducing the number of bailiffs needed in the courtroom. Wornum said he would vote for the shield only if there were such a saving.

Arnold M. Baptiste and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. voted against the shield, arguing that they see no offsetting saving if present security measures are continued. They contended that present security measures are adequate, and if the judges and court attaches are to get bullet-proof protection, the other people at the Civic Center should

Job Funds To Marin Cities

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — San Rafael has been awarded $48,400 and San Anselmo $31,600 in emergency public service job funding, the Department of Labor announced yesterday.

The $80,000 allocated to Marin and another $459,800 to Sonoma County is part of $30,863,900 statewide funding for California under the Public Service Employment Act program for areas of high unemployment.

Yesterday's allocations, totaling $200 million nationwide, are part of a $1 billion appropriation by Congress for this fiscal year. Earlier, some $600 million was distributed in the program, the first general act of its kind since the Works Progress Administration of the 1930s.

Branson Officials Vote Boys' Campus

Officials of Katharine Branson School in Ross, frustrated last year in attempts to set up a boys' campus in Kentfield, today announced that a boys' school will open next year on the Ross campus.

The 50-year-old private boarding school will open its doors to boys in the daytime only, however, according to an announcement by H. Leonard Richardson, headmaster.

The boys' school will be called Mount Tamalpais School, a name chosen by trustees two years ago.

During the past three years trustees have sought a site in which to open a boys' school, according to Richardson. The search went as far as obtaining conditions for purchase or lease from owners of five parcels, but none of the sites worked out.

(Marin County planning commissions deadlocked in July 1970 over a permit for a site in the Del Mesa area of Kentfield and trustees decided not to make further attempts to use that property for a boys' campus.)

Richardson said that although the opening date for Mount Tamalpais is set for September 1972, applications will be accepted immediately. If a minimum of 15 students apply for ninth, 10th and 11th grades for January 1972, the school will open then.

One dormitory, "The Residence," will be turned over to

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backers of a constitutional amendment to put prayer back in the schools claimed all but three of the 218 signatures they needed today on a petition to force a House vote on the issue.

Managers of the move to dislodge the amendment from the judiciary committee said the three needed members were lined up and waiting to add their names within moments after the opening gavel at noon.

Opponents of the controversial prayer amendment conceded there was no way now to block the discharge petition. Generally they agreed with proponents that there was no prospect either that the House would reject the amendment.

Rep. Chalmers P.Wylie, R-Ohio, sponsor of the petition and of the constitutional amendment to which it was directed, stood ready to call up the issue at the earliest available date.

Police Fired Upon

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Gunmen fired about 20 shots at a five-man police and army patrol in the Roman Catholic Andersonstown district of Belfast today, but failed to hit anyone, the British army said.

The patrol returned fire from its Landrover and reinforcements were rushed to the scene of the incident at the intersection of Glen and Shaws Roads where a soldier was wounded last week, an army spokesman said.

Mail Favors Action

ATTICA, N.Y. (UPI) — A spokesman for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said yesterday roughly 60 per cent of the letters and telegrams coming to his office supported the governor's decision to storm the Attica state prison.

The spokesman said as of last night, the governor's office had received 3,176 letters and telegrams on the Attica situation and 1,986 supported Rockefeller's decision. There were 1,190 communications opposing it, the spokesman said.

The announcement came one week after nine hostages and 30 prisoners were killed when troops stormed the prison. The inmates had held the prison and 38 hostages for five days before the attack.

Leader Stabbed

Takeiri, 45, head of the Buddhist-oriented Komeito Party, was rushed to the hospital, where doctors said his condition was critical. His assailant, identified as Takeo Yajima, a day laborer from Osaka, was arrested on the spot.

Takeiri was taken to Keio Hospital near his party headquarters where his physician said "there is no danger to Mr. Takeiri's life."

Yajima told police that he wanted to "crush Sokagakkai," the powerful Buddhist religious organization with origin created Komeito as its political arm in 1963.

Witnesses said Yajima plunged an eight-inch knife into Takeiri's stomach as he stepped out of his automobile near his party headquarters. Takeiri had been attending a party convention.

Muskie On Busing

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — Sen. Edmund Muskie, swinging through Dixie in a possible quest for the Democratic presidential nomination, said yesterday that busing is an uncomfortable means of righting a social wrong.

The Maine Democrat had said earlier in Columbia, S.C., that President Nixon's selection of a new Supreme Court justice should not be limited to the South. He praised the "great influence" that retiring Justice Hugo Black, an Alabama native, had on the Supreme Court.

South Carolina Gov. John West told newsmen later that his state's national convention delegation is uncommitted, but he praised Muskie as a "great American . . .and if he is the Democratic nominee, I can support him."

Muskie's remarks on busing of school children to achieve a racial balance were made to newsmen before he addressed a Democratic fund raising box supper in Chattanooga.

"The chief objective of busing," he said, "is the breakdown of social inequality. To right the wrong, we must use means which might not be comfortable."

Export Tax Hinted

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan is considering a plan to levy a 10 per cent tax on selected exports if the United States agrees to lift its 10 per cent surcharge on imports, a government official said today.

"This would be quite a sacrifice for Japan," said Eimei Hamashita, a high-ranking official in the ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI). "But the U.S. surcharge is having such an effect."

Yamashita said export contracts signed by Japanese traders have declined by 90 per cent in the past 10 days because of confusion surrounding both the American import surcharge and the flotation of the yen.

Maximum Alert

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Cairo newspapers said today Egyptian troops along the Suez Canal had been put on maximum alert for possible renewal of the conflict with Israel, but UPI dispatches from Qantara on the east bank of the canal reported there was no evidence of unusual activity.

It appeared Egypt would concentrate on political rather than military means at the present to ease the Middle East situation. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad left Cairo today for New York and said he would try to isolate Israel further in the United Nations.

"The scheduling of the Middle East crisis at the United Nations and securing world condemnation of Israel also places the United States in an awkward position," Riad said in an airport statement. He did not elaborate but Egypt has accused the United States of encouraging Israel.

A 'Brain Drain'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Communist party officials have told Soviet Jews there can be no unrestricted emigration to Israel because it would lead to "a brain-drain," Jewish sources said.

They were reporting on a meeting at Communist party headquarters yesterday between a delegation of Jews petitioning for the right to emigrate and Albert Ivanov, head of the administrative section of the governing central committee.

"Ivanov said Jews have no special national right to emigrate to Israel," one source said. "He said each person who wants to emigrate is considered as an individual case.

"He said there would be a brain-drain if all the Jews who wanted to go to Israel were allowed to go," the source said. He said Ivanov had used a Russian phrase which translates literally as "brain-drain."

German Shepherd Kills An Infant

HEMET, Calif. (UPI) — A 21-month-old girl died of bites and gashes received when she was attacked by a large German shepherd, the county coroner's office reported Monday.

Scientists Ask DDT Phaseout

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A panel of scientists has recommended that the use of DDT be phased out except for public health emergencies.

The panel did not specifically recommend that use of the pesticide be totally banned ultimately as environmentalists have asked. It is still used on some crops such as cotton and peanuts and the scientists said this did not create a human health hazard.

The panel said however that DDT and its derivatives are "serious environmental pollutants and present a substantial threat to the quality of the human environment through widespread damage to some nontarget organisms."

The scientists said there is danger in continued widespread use of DDT, although exposure to even high doses for a short period of time apparently causcg no irreversible damage.

Therefore, the panel said that the present reported usage, DDT "does not present an imminent hazard to human health in terms of individual bodily functions and safety."

The panel said that there is so much DDT in the environment now that "either immediate suspension or rapid and continuous decrease in the use of DDT will achieve essentially the same result."

The administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, William D. Ruckelshaus, in March began a process of cancellation that could lead to DDT being removed from the market, although he refused to ban it outright as an "imminent health hazard."

Ruckelshaus acted under a court order that grew out of a suit brought by environmentalists asking the ban of DDT.

The panel of scientists was formed at the request of the Montrose Chemical Co., the nation's only producer of DDT, a procedure authorized under the cancellation process used by Ruckelshaus.

All But One Coastal Bill Are Killed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three rival measures clamping regulations on development of California's 1,100-mile coastline have been killed by the Senate Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee.

The action leaves one remaining bill designed to curb unrestricted development of this scenic coastline. It is pending on the Assembly floor.

In successive action Monday, the Senate committee killed the three rival proposals, when none of them could muster sufficient votes for approval.

Ironically, opposition by conservationists and a group against stringent governmental regulation of the coast combined to defeat a so-called compromise measure sponsored by Sens. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, and Donald L. Grunsky, R-Watsonville.

It would have created a state commission and six regional planning commissions to regulate development by permit. The commission's jurisdiction would have extended 1,001 feet seaward.

But a group called California Coastal Alliance, a group of various conservation organizations, opposed the bill contending local governments would be given too great a voice in the commissions.

The Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce also opposed it because certain development moratoriums would work hardships on landowners.

Two other rival bills, by Sens. Ralph C. Dills, D-Gardena, and James Q. Wedworth, D-Hawthorne, also were defeated when they could only get the votes on their sponsors.

The one remaining coastal measure out of six introduced this session is one which would set up a state commission and six local agencies with powers to regulate development by permits. The commission's jurisdiction would extend five miles out to sea and include islands. Its author is Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills.

Selection Of Alioto Jury Going Slowly

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) —The $2.3 million civil lawsuit against San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto in a fee splitting case almost got bogged down yesterday because "everybody in Clark County knows" Elwood Caples, a prospective witness in the trial.

Selection of a jury already had been delayed into the afternoon because Judge Donald L. Gaines heard arguments challenging the jury panel and for delaying testimony in the case.

Gaines rejected the formal motion for delay and no formal mention was made of the challenge to the panel. It had been trimmed to 39 from 120 before court opened Monday morning by eliminating those obviously ineligible and those who asked to be excused for cause.

Paul Cressman, of Seattle, attorney for Alioto, argued that entry of two more candidates into the mayor's race in San Francisco just before the filing deadline Friday would make it impossible for Alioto to be at the trial as frequently as he should. Cressman asked a delay in testimony until Nov. 3, after the election. Alioto is seeking a second term.

After the first 12 prospective jurors had been seated, Gaines began asking a series of general questions. When he asked whether any panel members knew anyone involved in the case, two women raised their hands.

Both said they were friends of Caples, former attorney for the Clark County Public Utility District here. The PUD is one of the plaintiffs in the suit.

Both women were excused and two more were called. The first said her daughter had "gone with" Caples' grandson. She was allowed to remain.

The second said she knew Caples only slightly and added, "everyone in Clark County knows Mr. Caples." She too remained.

By the time attorneys began questioning the prospective jurors it was after 3 p.m.

A list of 130 prospective witnesses, including Washington Gov. Dan Evans and Attorney General Slade Gorton, was read in court.

Roaming Moose Pays A Visit

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — The officer on the police switchboard had just gotten a call about a moose walking around in a residential neighborhood. Then he looked out the window.

There was the young moose, 800 pounds and inquisitive, standing in the parking lot behind police headquarters.

Wary police officers kept him there for awhile but when game wardens arrived on the scene it was apparently too much for the moose, who took off again. He frightened a group of children when he trotted through their schoolyard and sent a number of amazed housewives scurring for their phones.

He was never rounded up.

Thieves Take Jewels From Body Of Saint

FLORENCE, Italy (IPU)—Thieves broke into a church Monday and stole jewels taken from the embalmed body of a saint, police said.

The theft in St. Mark's church was the latest in a long series of underworld raids on unguarded Italian churches, many of them containing art treasures. A Titian, a Tintoretto and other paintings estimated at more than $4.8 million were stolen over the past weeks from churches in the Venice region. The Titian and other paintings have since been recovered.

New Program Launched To Determine GI Drug Use

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command announced today a new program for testing the urine of all U.S. servicemen in Vietnam every three months to find out whether they are using heroin or other narcotics.

A statement issued by the command said the program was expected to have "an impressive deterrent effect" on growing heroin usage here that turns an estimated one GI in 10 into heroin addicts during their one-year Vietnam tours.

One of the major difficulties in dealing with the heroin problem here has been the difficulty of detecting users. Many GIs who use heroin rather than softer drugs, say they do so because it is odorless and almost impossible to detect.

The command statement said the program had been in effect since Aug. 25, but spokesmen said they had no figures on the number of GIs tested so far, or the number of drug users uncovered. They conceded that one of three central facilities needed to conduct the testing was still under construction.

The statement said, "This program will cover all units of all services and the ultimate objective will be to test each unit on an unannounced date once each quarter (of the year).

"Individuals determined as users are immediately sent to treatment centers for detoxification and counselling and then returned to their units for a close and continuous followup program.

"This expansion of the drug counteroffensive is progressing satisfactorily and it is anticipated that this program will have an impressive deterrent effect" on GI drug addiction, the statement said.

Spokesmen said the new program is conducted like a series of snap inspections, with the units selected on a more or less random basis, and the men in them ordered to line up and give samples immediately.

The samples are shipped to one of three centers where machines that electronically detect the presence of heroin or other opium derivatives are located.

Men found to be on drugs are sent to drug treatment centers, put through withdrawal, given counseling and then sent back to their units, the spokesman said.

FTC Studying Plan To Halt Payments On Defective Goods

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission has taken under advisement testimony calling for an end to a credit practice that requires consumers to continue paying for defective goods.

Witnesses urging abolition at Monday's opening round of hearings included Virginia H. Knauer, the White House consumer adviser; Dean W. Determan, vice president of the Council of Better Business bureaus, and Fairfax Leary Jr., a Temple University law professor representing Ralph Nader.

The FTC has proposed a ban on "holder in due course" credit contracts.

"Holder in due course" works like this: you buy a car or appliance on a monthly payment plan. The dealer sells your installment sales contract to a bank or finance company. The product goes bad, and the store refuses to fix or replace it. You stop paying to force action, but the bank or finance company makes you resume payments on grounds it has nothing to do with the product but does have a contract requiring you to pay.

"The consumer caught in the 'holder in due course' game feels he is batted back and forth like a tennis ball, never turning up on the winning side," said Mrs. Knauer.

The FTC's proposed rule would make the finance firm just as liable for the product as was the seller. Leary urged that the rule be broadened to also covrcredit card sales, many of which are financed by banks.

Determan testified that the rule would not only protect consumers but also prompt banks and finance firms to stop buying installment contracts from "fly by night operators and dishonest businessmen."

Olson questioned the FTC's authority to issue such a rule and said unscrupulous businessmen would dodge it anyway.

Papers Of Ellsberg Are Seized

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In a series of legal maneuvers, the federal government gained access yesterday to a large collection of papers and personal possessions stashed in a storage warehouse by Dr. Daniel Ellsberg.

Ellsberg, principal figure in the Pentagon papers' controversy, failed in an attempt to quash an FBI search warrant involving his belongings held by Bekins Moving and Storage Co. in Beverly Hills.

Justice Department attorney David. R. Nissen said last week that many of the stored documents were classified government records but Ellsberg's attorneys have insisted they are personal papers of their client.

U.S. District Court Judge William M. Byrne Jr. made a conditional ruling Monday morning prohibiting the government from examining the belongings. The judge gave the government until noon to file notice of appeal on his ruling.

Meanwhile, FBI agents served a warrant on operators of the Bekins' warehouse where Ellsberg's goods are stored. In an afternoon court session, Byrne said Ellsberg had no legal recourse to prevent the FBI's move and he could not overrule issuance of the warrant by a U.S. magistrate.

Two men who identified themselves as agents for Ellsberg said they were at the warehouse attempting to claim the goods when the warrant was served.

One of Ellsberg's defense attorneys, Morse Taylor, asked Byrne to "freeze" the property, saying the government was "on a blanket fishing expedition" hoping to turn up evidence to be used in Ellsberg's trial.

Selection Of Woman To Bench Is A Possibility

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On July 10, 1969, President Nixon told a group of women congressmen he wanted to appoint the first female U.S. Supreme Court justice.

The conversation, reported by Rep. Florence P. Dwyer, R-N.J., helped fuel speculation today that a woman might be given consideration when Nixon picks a successor for Justice Hugo L. Black, 85, who resigned Friday because of ill health.

Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House press secretary, said Monday Nixon's list of possibilities could grow to 10 to 12. He said Nixon "favors strict construction of the Constitution" and would "look for someone who shares that philosophy." Ziegler said the President would "move as quickly as possible."

Nixon has been urged to appoint a woman. One formal appeal was made yesterday by the National Women's Political Caucus. Another plea was made by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment to guarantee equal rights to women.

Such a move is just the kind of surprise that Nixon likes best —the kind of stunning decision like his plan to visit Mainland China or his wage-price freeze and moves to devaluate the dollar.

The name mentioned most frequently as a possible female successor to Black is that of Rita Hauser of New York City, Nixon's delegate to the U.N. Commission on Human Rights and a long-time Nixon campaign worker.

Once employed by the Justice Department, Mrs. Hauser is with the law firm of Moldover, Hauser and Strauss in Manhattan. She specializes in international law and has a branch office in Paris. She is the wife of Gustav M. Hauser, a vice president of General Telephone and Electronics International Co.

Thefts from two vehicles, one in Terra Linda and the other in Los Ranchitos, were reported yesterday by the Marin County sheriff's office.

Deputies said a $250 radio was stolen from a Jeep owned by Norman A. Coggins of 409 Hickory Lane, Terra Linda, Sept. 10. The jeep was parked near Coggins's residence, deputies said.

Clothing valued at $385 was stolen from the car of Herbert W. Clark of La Quinta, Riverside County, Sept. 10 or 11, deputies said. The car was parked near 3725 Redwood Highway, Los Ranchitos, they said.

Famous European Chef names Dominic's America's finest restaurant.

Not long ago we decided to ask the world's most renowned chefs and restaurateurs to judge the quality of our fine restaurant and its continental cuisine. But the trouble was that most of these people were in Paris and Bologna and other strange places. So we settled the whole thing by asking the famous Pierre Giavinna to make an honest and objective appraisal. "America's finest," he said. That was good enough for us. After all, he's not only our chef, but he owns part of the place. So who should know better than he?

Fight For Marin Suicide Center Finally Won

By MARY LEYDECKER

The naming yesterday of a Los Angeles man as executive director of the Marin Suicide Prevention Center climaxed a drive of more than two years by a group of Marin residents, including a coroner's investigator, to get such a center functioning.

The new director, who will start Oct. 1, is Richard H. Reuben, 25, who has worked for the Los Angeles Suicide Prevention Center, the University of California at Los Angeles's "Help Line" and the University of Hawaii's "Life Line."

Although the Marin center has been operating in a room in a San Anselmo church since July 1 with volunteers taking phone calls at 454-4524 from distraught persons, the center's board has eagerly anticipated a full-time director.

Reuben will take full charge of the center, screening and reevaluating volunteers as well as supervising them in the delicate task of counseling persons who are contemplating suicide, according to Coroner's Investigator Keith C. Craig.

Craig, who was the primary moving force behind the crisis center, began a crusade toward trying to stop Marin's high rate of suicide during four and a half years in the coroner's office.

Craig pointed out that Marin currently has the second highest suicide rate in the state — topped only by San Francisco.

So far this year in Marin there have been 49 suicides (compared to 47 for all of last year), and the rate of children who kill themselves is rising at an alarming rate.

"Seven children under 17 years of age have hanged themselves in Marin so far this year," Craig said.

"Children kill themselves for the same reasons adults do — but they don't understand the finality of death," Craig said.

He went on to give an example. "An 11-year-old boy found hanging in his garage — was he playing — was he getting even with his family?" he asked. "Maybe he was saying, 'My mommy and daddy will be sorry when they find me.' "

In addition to taking calls from distressed adults, Craig wants to see teacher and parents educated through the center to "recognize cries for help" from children.

It was working with the families of suicide victims which led Craig to the hours of work he has put into creating a center.

"Suicide is never forgotten — nor forgiven," he said, describing it as the type of death most difficult for survivors to face.

"What did I do wrong?" the survivors ask," Craig said.

Describing suicide as the most selfish act a person can perform, Craig said that sometimes he tells families, "You must say to yourself, 'that was a dirty lousy trick this guy did to me,' " (by committing suicide.)

As to cold statistics about suicide in Marin, Craig said that gunshots are the most common method along with overdoses of drugs. For the last five years, suicide has topped traffic accidents as a cause of death in marvelous Marin.

The motives vary from the loss of a loved one to trying to punish someone else, Craig said, but surprisingly seldom include two reasons generally believed to be responsible for suicides.

"There are very few disease-oriented suicides," he said, adding that in most of the ones which he has investigated in which a person took his own life because he thought he had a dread disease, it turned out he didn't.

In four and a half years, Craig said that he had only investigated one suicide case that seemed to have any drug connection — and that one was rather tenuous. Finally, most people are sober when they kill themselves, he said.

Will the suicide prevention center (which Craig prefers to call 'intervention center'), help tide the rising suicide rate?

"That's tough to find out," Craig said, because it's impossible to find out whether the persons who call the center would have actually committed suicide or not.

He said, however, that San Francisco's center reports that only 1 per cent of the persons who call there for help actually end up as suicides.

"All of the persons who have survived jumping off the Golden Gate Bridge have said afterwards they changed their minds on the way down," according to Jamshid A. H. Bakhtiar, president of the center's board.

The phone counselors, as they are called, first try to deal with the caller as fellow human being, finding out what his problems are and how serious he is about suicide.

The next step is to try to arrange for him to get outside help for his problems. A "rather sophisticated" file of resources ranging through such subjects as abortion, adoption, aged, alcoholism and on through the alphabet of human problems is at the counselor's fingertips.

About 100 volunteers are now working at the center, which is housed in a peaceful little room which is equipped with a narrow bed for late night hours. More are needed, however, according to both Bakhtiar, a psychiatrist and Craig.

"There are still bugs to work out," Craig concluded, saying that the center board will have to give a full accounting to the Marin Board of Supervisors in six months.

The new director, Reuben, who will receive a $12,000 a year salary, will be paid for the first six months with county money appropriated earlier this year.

Four Reshuffled At San Quentin

Four men have been reassigned or promoted in a staff shuffle at San Quentin which Warden Louis S. Nelson said yesterday had been planned for some time.

Last week he had announced that Associate Warden James W. L. Park, 49, had been relieved of duties as public information officer but would retain responsibility for Death Row. Park was also assigned the new task of working with prisoner self-help groups.

Joseph R. O'Brien, 62, was named to deal with news media.

Yesterday Nelson said that John Apostol, 47, has been appointed associate warden for classification and treatment. He will be responsible for education, vocational, religious and counseling programs, Nelson said.

He replaces Wayne Bartels, 44, who is recuperating from a serious heart ailment. Apostol has been in prison work for 23 years. Since 1966 he has been a program administrator at San Quentin.

Robert Coates, 48, has been appointed correctional industries manager. He was transferred from the Department of Corrections Headquarters in Sacramento, where he was assistant general manager of the statewide prison industries system. San Quentin has a furniture factory, clothing factory, mattress factory and a detergent blending plant.

Paul Lemon, 59, has been named an assistant to Coates and will have responsibility for upgrading manpower skills and availability for the industries program. Lemon's prison experience goes back 29 years. Before becoming a correctional officer he worked on the last of the giant gold dredges working streams in the Gold Rush country near Sacramento.

William A. Drummond Jr., 54, will assume the duties of the classification and parole representative, a job formerly held by O'Brien. Drummond has been a prison clinical psychologist at San Quentin since 1950.

Flood Victims Rescue Under Way In Spain

BARCELONA (UPI)—Army units today joined fire brigades and rescue teams trying to rescue villagers marooned on roof tops and high land in northeastern Spain's worst floods in 10 years.

Police reported at least 10 persons died and hundreds were driven from their homes when up to 7.2 inches of rain fell on Barcelona and Gerona provinces during a series of violent rainstorms Monday.

County Is Given Land For Park

The federal government announced today it has given 5.3 acres of the old Tiburon Net Depot to Marin County for expansion of the county's Tiburon Uplands Nature Preserve.

Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, said the land would be kept undeveloped, except for eventually building a nature trail to tie in with proposed nature trails along the Tiburon Ridge.

Frank E. Sylvester, regional director for the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, said in San Francisco that the federal land gift was part of President Richard M. Nixon's "Legacy of Parks" program to make surplus land available to nearby city dwellers for recreational use.

The land lies uphill from Paradise Drive, immediately adjacent to the county's existing nature preserve. Joske said today he and conservation leader Elizabeth Terwilliger of Mill Valley had inspected the parcel to begin making long-range plans for its use.

AMERICAN MOTORS INTRODUCES THE GUARANTEED CAR.

AMERICAN MOTORS 1972 BUYER PROTECTION PLAN.

For years, car buyers in this country have been saying that instead of shiny new chrome every year, what they really want is a good car they can count on.

A STRONG GUARANTEE IN PLAIN ENGLISH.

When you buy a new 1972 car from an American Motors dealer, American Motors Corporation guarantees to you that, except for tires, it will pay for the repair or replacement of any part it supplies that is defective in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is good for 12 months from the date the car is first used or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.

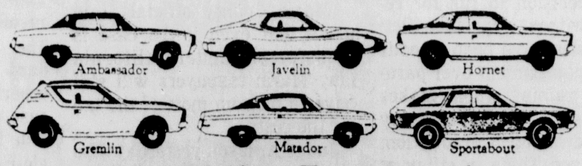

All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for under normal use and service in the fifty United States or Canada and that guaranteed repairs or replacements be made by an American Motors dealer.

This guarantee gives you 12-month or 12,000-mile coverage on a lot of things most car warranties don't. It covers air conditioning, battery, radio, wiper blades, front end alignment, light bulbs—literally everything we put on the car except tires.

In other words, if something we did goes wrong with one of our '72's, you won't have to pay for the parts or the labor. We will.

A MORE THOROUGHLY-CHECKED CAR. FROM THE FACTORY AND THE DEALER.

Naturally, we wouldn't be backing our cars like this if we weren't more sure of them than we've ever been before. For 1972, we've put in more quality control steps, more tests and more people to see that every car leaving our factory is as perfect as man and machine can make it.

At the dealer's, it's checked over again.

Every car (not one of 50, one of 5, every one) is road-tested for starting, handling, braking and overall performance. When the serviceman completes the test, he signs his report and slides it over the sun visor, where you can see it.

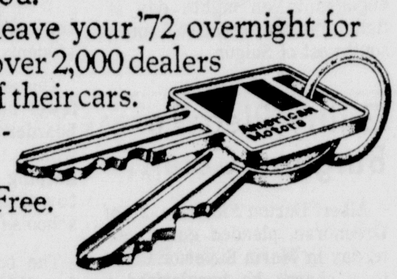

And, when a man signs his name to something, you can be sure he's done his job. And done it right.

A LOANER CAR WHEN YOU NEED IT. FREE.

Not only do we offer you a strong guarantee, we've set up a system to back it up without inconveniencing you.

If you have to leave your '72 overnight for guarantee repairs, over 2,000 dealers will loan you one of their cars. A nice, clean, well-equipped car in good condition. Free.

A DIRECT LINE TO DETROIT. TOLL-FREE.

We're making some big promises, and we fully intend to keep them. But, just in case you have a problem, we have a way of handling it. When you buy a '72, you get the name and toll-free number of a person in Detroit.

If you call, we promise you you'll get results. And fast.

These aren't just fancy words. We mean it.

Nobody in the business does as much for you after you buy a car, and it takes a lot of time, men and money to do all these things.

But we think it's worth it.

Since we're giving American car-buyers exactly what they say they want, we should sell more cars than we've ever sold before.

American Motors

STARTING TODAY, THESE AMERICAN MOTORS DEALERS WILL DO MORE FOR YOU AFTER YOU BUY A CAR THAN ANY OTHER DEALER IN TOWN.

U.S. Planes Strike Into North Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers carried out more than 200 strikes against North Vietnam today, hitting military targets as far as 35 miles above the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in one of the heaviest air raids since the bombing halt of Nov. 1, 1968.

The U.S. command said the strikes were carried out because recent North Vietnamese attacks on unarmed reconnaissance planes and U.S. aircraft bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail in neighboring Laos had posed "a threat to the safety of U.S. forces" in the war zone.

Military sources said the raids almost certainly concentrated on Communist supplies and vehicles being assembled for the southbound shipping season along the Ho Chi Minh Trail, expected to open in a few weeks with easing of monsoon rains. Many B52 strikes recently have been directed against this buildup.

The announcement said the planes encountered light to moderate antiaircraft fire but that none of the American planes was hit. The command said the North Vietnamese did not fire any surface-to-air (SAM) missiles during the raid.

The attacks began at dawn and lasted until early afternoon. They were the 60th against North Vietnam this year.

Spokesmen would not report on how many Air Force jets participated in the attacks but said more than 200 sorties were flown (a sortie is one strike by one plane). It did not pinpoint targets, but the port of Dong Hoi, which has a major military airfield, is within the 35-mile raid limit.

Today's raids were the heaviest "protective reaction" strikes over the North since last March 20-21 when about 250 fighter-bombers and escorts hit targets across the border. Those raids brought charges by Hanoi that the Americans had bombed civilian targets.

The raids were announced in a special communique.

"In response to recently increased evidence of North Vietnamese aitiaircraft and missile activity against our unarmed reconnaissance aircraft flying over North Vietnamese territory and U.S. attack aircraft flying in Laos near North Vietnamese territory, U.S. Air Force tectical aircraft today conducted protective reaction strikes against military targets in North Vietnam constituting a threat to the safety of U.S. forces," the command said.

The North Vietnamese responded with "light to moderate" antiaircraft fire but hit no American planes, the spokesmen said.

Spokesmen said the missions were confined to an area within 35 miles of the DMZ which divides North and South Vietnam. The command declined to say how exactly many American planes took part or give the precise target areas.

The command said no surface-to-air (SAM) missiles were fired at the U.S. warplanes.

It was the 60th in the series of what the U.S. command calls "protective reaction" strikes into North Vietnam this year and the heaviest raids since the unsuccessful attempt to free U.S. war prisoners from Son Tay, North Vietnam Nov. 21, 1970.

U.S. 7th Air Force spokesmen said they were under orders not to report any details of the raids and the U.S. command declined to elaborate on its communique which said "all strikes were confined to an area within 35 miles of the DMZ."

As the U.S. warplanes struck inside North Vietnam, a U.S. Navy destroyer's five-inch guns saturated a U Minh forest battleground with heavy fire and helped South Vietnamese troops halt a major Viet Cong assault in nearby swamps.

One of the three missions by the guided missile destroyer USS Epperson was in answer to an emergency call for support from South Vietnamese troops engaged in an eighth day of fighting in the forest, 145 miles southwest of Saigon.

Investment Tax Credit Plan Backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Ways and Means Committee decided today on a flat 7 per cent investment tax credit for business equipment purchases to spur the economy in place of a two-stage plan proposed by President Nixon.

The committee action followed its decision Monday to substitute Nixon's plan for a credit rate of 10 per cent now, with a 5 per cent rate starting Aug. 15, 1972.

A 7 per cent credit would allow businessmen to subtract $7 out of every $100 for purchase of new machinery made in the United States as a way of stimulating production. A similar credit was repealed in 1969.

Consumer representatives meantime urged President Nixon in a White House meeting to push for price rollbacks and to make sure manufacturers did not skirt the purpose of frozen prices by reducing product quality.

Dr. Colston E. Warne, president of the nonprofit Consumers Union, said he told Nixon "there are a good many ways to skin a consumer." He said an effective price freeze must include policing of product quality, packaging and assurances that manufacturers don't simply stop making lower priced products in favor of premium lines.

Don S. Wilner, president of the Consumer Federation of America (CFA), urged Nixon to regulate profits, interest rates and dividends as well as prices.

"Unless there is equality of sacrifice there will be no consumer confidence in Phase 2" —economic controls that follow the freeze —Wilner told a news conference after the one-hour, 45 minute White House meeting.

In addition to Warne and Wilner, consumer representatives at the meeting included five members of Nixon's Advisory Council on Consumer Affairs, private citizens who meet periodically to advise the administration.

Ralph Nader was not invited and Wilner said there was no discussion of Nader's absence.

The CFA, a coalition of more than 200 local, state and national organizations, gave Nixon a statement saying that Phase 2 controls must be fair to convince consumers they "will not be left holding the bag."

The CFA urged strict policing of prices, consumer participation in forming and carrying out government economic policies, ceilings on profits and dividends, stricter antitrust enforcement, lower interest rates and utility rates, and a looser wage policy so low income people can get pay raises.

The White House said the consumer spokesmen unanimously endorsed Nixon's economic initiatives, including the 90-day freeze.

Ziegler said the group generally urged the President to take steps to prevent deterioration of product quality when prices are controlled and to keep a reign on prices of foods and other necessities.

Guilty Plea To Burglary Count

Albert Burton Fierstine, 27, of Greenbrae, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge he burglarized a Mill Valley residence March 27.

He is to be sentenced Oct. 18.

Fierstine was arrested when police said they found him inside the home of Thomas J. Zilka of 15 Escalon Drive.

Copper Basin Area Turning Green Again

COPPERHILL, Tenn. (UPI) —The 50-square mile copper basin in southeastern Tennessee is turning green again. For more than 30 years Cities Service Company's Copperhill Operations has been restoring 22,000 acres of lands that were denuded of vegetation as a result of copper mining during the 19th century.

Since the mid-1930s more than 7 million pine tree seedlings and countless number of seedlings or root starts for an "ivy-type" ground cover have been planted. A new 10-year program of planting 500,000 seedlings a year was begun in 1970 and by 1980 it is hoped that all but the badly eroded land should be restored.

Extra Funding For Panel Is Advanced

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation providing an additional $160,000 for operation of the state Fair Employment Practices Commission was approved 27-1 Monday by the Senate and sent to the Assembly.

Author of the bill, Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, said the sum restores the amount vetoed from the agency's budget by Gov. Ronald Reagan. Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale, cast the sole dissenting vote.

Mineral Exploration In Britain?

By DENNIS EISENBERG
Toronto Telegram News Service

LONDON — For decades past, Britons have been reading about the exciting tales of prospectors seeking out precious metals in far-off lands such as Africa, Australia, Canada, and the Unites States.

Now, with a bit of a shock, Britons are realizing that the hunt for mineral wealth is being switched to their own back gardens — and the prospect is one which fills them with alarm.

It is one thing having an open copper mine, miles long and one mile deep gashed out of the earth in a desert region of Australia. After all, it is so vast that hardly anyone would even notice the ugly scar left behind. It is another matter, however, to do the same in overcrowded Britain where open space is one of the most precious qualities of life.

Thus the idea of digging for mineral wealth here is meeting with fierce opposition. Even so, the government is going ahead with its plan to subsidize the search for gold, tin, copper, lead, zinc, tungsten, uranium, potash, barium and fluorspar to the tune of $62 million.

Already, 100 mining companies have expressed interest in mineral exploration and the financial aid offered to them to undertake the costly and risky work. And digging around for the stuff is acting as a powerful spur.

Gold and tin were mined in Britain even before the Romans set foot on these shores. But because the world was so large in the past century or two, Britain had neglected its own resources to concentrate on getting minerals from other lands.

Although it is known that there is a lot of underground wealth lying around, nobody has ever bothered to even draw a comprehensive map of such resources.

Today, however, with the country spending $1.5 million a year in valuable foreign currency buying minerals, there is a strong temptation to dig the metal out of British soil and so save money.

One major snag, however, is that the precious metals are to be found in the parts of Britain which are national parks and areas of outstanding natural beauty. Despite promised safeguards, many Britons fear that huge earth-movers and dragline excavators will completely wreck the peace and quiet of the countryside.

This will, of course, result in fewer number of girls taken as boarders at Branson, a change which trustees believe is in keeping with nationwide trend toward coeducational day schools for teen-agers.

The boys' school will be under the Branson's board of trustees and the same headmaster, according to Richardson.

Although the boys will study mainly in their own classes, taught by some of the Branson faculty members and augmented by newcomers, they will use such facilities as dining hall, library, laboratories and the computer math terminal with the girls.

Trustees made the decision to set up the boys' school on the Ross campus because of "sustained requests of parents of boys in the area," according to an official announcement.

"The real need for such a school is, if anything, clearer now than at any time in the immediate past," the announcement said.

Innocent Plea To Credit Card Fraud

Patricia Jean Morris, 32, of Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior court to two felony counts of credit card fraud. Jury trial was set for the week of Nov. 1.

She was arrested Aug. 27 when she attempted to use a stolen credit card at two Sausalito shops, Sausalito police said.

Traffic Up

Traffic on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge totaled 604,939 vehicles in May, up from 567,012 in May, 1970. Revenue totaled $440,643, down from $465,173 the preceding May because of toll reductions.

SCHOOL

tive director of the Marin County Housing Authority and Marin County Redevelopment Agency, said the teaching aides need only be loyal to "the children they are supposed to serve."

In response to Thompson's statement that he was involved in a conflict of interest, Toliver called the trustee's remarks "a breach of ethics. If an employee is doing something contrary to district policy or the education code, the employee should be informed of this fact in a private session, not at a public meeting," Toliver said. "The employee should be given a chance to change the behavior in question, if it is indeed detrimental to the welfare of the district," he added.

Board Chairman Delta Christ said no charge had been made against Toliver. "What was stated tonight was strictly factual," she said.

Norman Tilbury, who claimed to be attorney for the learning center, said people at the center were "sincere people who are trying to do a good job for the children. Just because their ideas of how to go about it are different from yours, you shouldn't despise them or stop them from oeprating," he told the board.

Tilbury said he would like to see a new era of cooperation between the board and the center and would do all he could to see that if came about. He was seconded by Royce McLemore, director of the learning center.

When the matter of use of Manzanita School came up, Lindberg said the center, now located temporarily in the Village Baptist Church in Marin City, has asked for full-time use of the school. The district is not using the facility this year, having placed all students in Martin Luther King and Bayside Schools. He said the College of Marin had also asked to use Manzanita part-time for adult education classes, but indicated the college had said it did not "want to be put in the position of block use of the building by other groups."

The property on which the school is located was donated to the district, along with other land in Marin City, by the Housing Authority and the Redevelopment Agency to build an elementary school. The district received the land at no cost.

In order to lease, rent or sell the Manzanita Building or property, Lindberg said the board must first decide to declare the land surplus.

The board directed the superintendent to look in the procedures for declaring the property surplus and the consequences of such a move. Then, on a move by Thompson and with almost no comment, the board denied the learning center's request to use Manzanita.

Shepherd said the redevelopment agency and housing authority were interested in "building a viable community in Marin City" and, to that end, were in the process "of reacquiring the (redevelopment) land we gave away."

He promised the authority and agency would do everything in our power to see the property, including the Manzanita School, is put back in the hands of the Marin City community" and take legal action, if necessary, to retrieve the land.

STUDENTS

Once inside, the students burned Thieu in effigy.

Thieu, after denying charges by Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that recent events had made him afraid to sleep in the presidential palace, announced he would fly Wednesday to Pleiku for the first campaign rally of his solo race for the presidency.

The students have been agitated for several weeks over Thieu's decision to run for re-election without opposition Oct. 3. They also have been at odds with the government over paramilitary training which makes them eligible for compulsory military draft upon graduation. They burned Thieu in effigy at the demonstration and waved banners reading "Peace in Vietnam Now."

The demonstration opposite the heavily-fortified national police headquarters was held more than a mile from the university housing complex which police occupied Monday to stop further rioting. Saigon and Buddhist Van Hanh University buildings are scattered all over central Saigon and provide gathering places for the universitys' 25,000 students. Only a minority are considered militant, however.

Thieu, in the second of three campaign speeches delivered on government radio, said, "the only guarantee for our future freedom is to deal the Communists a positive defeat."

De Gaulle Escaped Many Death Plots

By HAROLD KING
Toronto Telegram News Service

Many more carefully planned attempts to assassinate him were made between 1961 and 1965 than have been officially recorded.

Information on some of these attempts now is leaking out under the stimulation of the publication in London and Paris of a best-seller novel called "The Day of the Jackal."

The book, constructed by British journalist Frederick Forsyth, is based on an imagined attempt by a hired professional killer to pick off the General with a long-sight rifle as happened to President Kennedy in Dallas.

Quite aside from the book, all but one of the real attempts to kill the General were conceived and organized by determined and bitter men grouped in what they themselves called "the secret army organization."

It was recruited mostly from officers and foreign legionnaires who had fought long wars in Indochina and Algeria and who considered that De Gaulle had sold them down the river by giving Algeria national independence.

At first, the plotters concentrated on plans for killing de Gaulle on his way to his country home in Colombey, his retreat almost every weekend while in office.

The case of "petit clamart," a road crossing a few miles outside the capital, made the headlines, with four machine-guns firing bullets into his fast-driven car and missing him and his wife by only inches.

On this occasion, the General was only saved by the coolness of his driver who drove on at 100 m.p.h. with flattened tires. "They can't shoot straight," was all De Gaulle said on this occasion.

The secret army men also tried to get him on the Colombey road by a long-distance rifle fired from a rented roadside house, but the potential killer fired at the wrong car, the timing of de Gaulle's journey having been altered at the last minute, and a bullet-proof car similar to his having been sent 10 minutes ahead.

The most complicated plot was to shoot de Gaulle from one of the top-floor flats of a building overlooking the forecourt of the Elysee Palace when de Gaulle was scheduled to accompany a state guest to his waiting car in front of the palace entrance steps.

But the police got wind of the plot and arrested four heavily armed men as they were driving to their murder rendezvous.

De Gaulle's security men got really worried when one of their undercover men introduced into the ranks of the secret army rebels reported that a former foreign legionnaire of Swiss nationality had perfected a short-wave system capable of exploding a bomb 50 yards away.

The ex-legionnaire manufactured seven of these bombs, and I was sitting on one of them one sunny afternoon in the South of France.

I was covering de Gaulle for Reuter when he visited the naval port of Toulon. In the afternoon, the official motorcade of 17 sleek black cars went to visit a war memorial at Mont Farron, a tiny village surrounded by woods.

While the General was inside the memorial chapel, I was waiting for him to emerge and was leaning against the first of three earthenware jars on the path leading to the chapel.

In the surrounding woods prowled a man with a short-wave wireless apparatus whose job it was to set off the bomb buried a few days earlier in this particular jar.

The bomb never went off, and in due course the official motorcade with de Gaulle, officials and reporters roared off again in the Riviera sunshine, everybody quite unaware of the narrow escape.

It was only a few days afterwards that a gardener unearthed the bomb in the jar when changing the flowers and reported his find to the local police.

The secret army organization was at one stage patronized by some prominent political figures, one-time Gaullist supporters, such as Jacques Soustelle and Georges Bidault, but none of these approved of the extremists who wanted to kill de Gaulle at all costs.

The security services said they were often informed about the latest plot by some of the political leaders of the secret army organization who wanted to keep their opposition to legitimate political methods.

The trouble with these de Gaulle haters was that they all had political ambitions and wanted to live.

If they could have found a man willing himself to die in the attempt to kill de Gaulle, we would have been hard put to prevent the attempt," the security service men fully agree today.

There was one plan to kill de Gaulle which had nothing to do with the secret army organization. That was when de Gaulle was preparing his famous journey to Quebec.

A time-bomb was to be planted in his plane. The police authorities said this plot was "linked to the General's foreign policy," but gave no indication of who may have been involved.

Information about the plan to kill de Gaulle en route to Quebec was received, said the authorities from several different sources.

It was decided that de Gaulle should travel to Canada in a cruiser.

In the early 1960s, a young Frenchwoman of aristocratic origin established herself in London as a student of English. She was a go-between and fund-raiser for the secret army.

Both the British and French authorities knew of her existence, and both secret services decided to let her be while watching her activities closely. This was the time when Anglo-French relations were at their lowest, with the British infuriated by de Gaulle's first veto on British entry into the Common Market.

An entire school of wartime psychological warfare "experts" turned-diplomats began a campaign of reckless mendacity about de Gaulle. The London Evening Standard columnist, Sam White, reported "There was even the case of a member of the British Embassy telling an Anglo-French dinner party that he considered it a tragedy that a recent attempt on the General's life had failed."

However, de Gaulle now is dead and buried, Britain is virtually inside the Common Market, and Paris and London are basking in the sunshine of a new honeymoon.

ently staying after she fled California following the shootout.

The lawyers want papers and property taken from the Florida apartment stricken from the case as they said FBI agent who made the search did not have a warrant.

The lawyers also want suppressed a wig, credit cards and other things seized by agents when they found Miss Davis on Oct. 13 in a New York City motel.

They further want removed from the case items that were taken from Miss Davis's car which was found parked in Los Angeles 12 days after the shootout.

The judge in the case, Richard E. Arnason, yesterday said he would set a date for hearing the motion regarding the evidence as well as one made yesterday asking the case be tried in San Francisco at a hearing next Monday.

(Marin County officials said today that even if the case is transferred, under California law, Marin taxpayers will still have to pick up most of the tab for the costs.)

Judge Arnason yesterday also signed an order telling the attorney general's office to give to the defense statements made by George Jackson's mother and his attorney to the grand jury.

Public Drunkenness Debate Is Scheduled

BOSTON (UPI)—The Massachusetts House begins debate today on legislation to repeal the crime of public intoxication.

The bill, given a favorable report Monday by the House Ways and Means Committee, would also establish a statewide network of centers to treat alcoholics.

bands and speakers that can be heard inside, have given inmates the impression that they have support on the outside, he said.

The fact that in the California Prison System today there has been more meaningful change in the past four years than ever before has been lost on the people who are crying for prison reform," he said.

But reforms that have been made have not satisfied the militants because that isn't their true goal, he said. "They have indicated that prisons are the breeding ground for true revolutionaries and intend to make the most of it."

"The militants who cry for prison reform present no positive programs for prison reform except, 'free all political prisoners.'"

"We are learning that within our institution there is an increasing number of people who consider themselves victims of the system," Nelson said. "They are being told this by people who are involved in the militant movement that because of the rottenness of the system they are required to steal, to kill, to take dope, to escape or do many other things in order to survive and that since it is the system that makes them do these things, they should not be punished for the acts of the system."

These people "totally disregard the fact that most of our inmates are the only persons in their family who have violated the law and who presumably were raised in the same environment as the balance of the family."

Nelson spoke bitterly of "a new breed of attorneys, who demanded concession after concession ... attorneys brought with them assorted characters under the guise of potential witnesses or investigators. One attorney wanted to have 50 persons named investigators in his particular case, thus allowing each of them access to the institution during regular working hours."

Criticism of the prisons isn't lost on the inmates and they believe the "great bulk of people on the outside are in their corner and none in ours," Nelson said.

He said the attempts by persons on the outside to influence the inmates into violent acts "is succeeding aided by what seems to be an overly sympathetic press, except during times of great stress such as we have recently experienced," and by the fact that for some time court decisions "have tended to concern themselves less with the rights of groups but rather with the rights of individuals."

There must be some solution to the problem, Nelson said. "It is not readily apparent, however, to me as long as society tolerates the same sort of shenanigans that build up tensions within our institutions."

get equal consideration.

Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court urged that the shield be installed. He said he visited the San Francisco Hall of Justice where there is such a shield and said Judge Walter al Icagno found it invaluable during a Soledad Brothers hearing last month.

"We must maintain a feeling of security," said Judge Broderick. "Jurors must be able to serve without fear of mob action."

"If someone gets a weapon into the audience section, it seems to me they should be protected too," said Baptiste.

Which of the courtrooms will get the protective shield will be decided later.

In another motion by Wornum and a second by Baptiste, supervisors asked the county administrator to make a thorough review of present security measures to see if any relaxation is possible.

entry wound was located in the midback and the exit is through the top of the skull."

Jackson's mother, Georgia Jackson, claimed after the prison violence that her son had been shot in cold blood and his body thrown out into the prison yard.

Prison officials said Jackson was shot when he fled from the Adjustment Center after pulling out a smuggled gun when he returned from a visit with an attorney.

Two other inmates and three guards were killed in the violence.

Joseph R. O'Brien, public information officer at the prison, declined to discuss Manwaring's report today. He said he had not seen it and was not an expert on trajectory.

He said the tower from which Jackson was shot as he fled across a prison court yard was 15 to 18 feet high and was 80 or 90 yards from Jackson when he was shot.

Dr. Cooke also said he was not qualified to speculate on whether a bullet fired at that angle could have hit Jackson in the back.

It would depend on Jackson's position when he was hit, Cooke said, and he didn't know the position.

Keith C. Craig, coroner's investigator, said that since Jackson was also wounded in the ankle, he could have been falling when struck by the fatal bullet. In that case, he said, "it's feasible" that a bullet fired from the tower could have gone in Jackson's back and exited at the top of his head.

More Pay Hikes In Mill Valley

With raises averaging 7.5 per cent for many Mill Valley city employees already approved, the Mill Valley City Council last night passed out salary increases ranging from 5 to 9.5 per cent to department heads and supervisors.

The council took the action even though the raises can't be paid until the current wage freeze expires and even though increases for police and firemen haven't yet been settled.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham said he proposed the raises because a survey of 23 California cities showed Mill Valley's salaries are low for department heads.

The council also approved creation of three new posts — police captain, accounting supervisor and deputy director of public works. Public works director Ross H. Benson will be promoted to the public works post and Lt. William Walsh to the police position while retaining their present duties with only a change in title.

The council handed out the raises even though the issue of pay increases for police and firemen remains unsettled. The city's negotiator and representatives from those two departments have signed a "memorandum of agreement" calling for wage increases, but the city council has yet to ratify the document because it cannot take effect until the freeze expires. Terms of the memorandum have not been disclosed, but the city previously had promised to grant raises at least equal to those given other non-supervisory employees.

Thirty-nine employees, excluding police and firemen, walked off their jobs July 1 in a dispute over recognition of their union, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

They returned to work Aug. 3 after the city council approved $50 across-the-board raises which averaged 7.5 per cent for most workers.

The monthly salaries set by the council for the three new posts are: accounting supervisor, $964; deputy director of public works, $1,377 and police captain, $1,260.

Raises granted other supervisory personnel, with the maximum each could earn (based on experience), were: 5 per cent to the recreation supervisor, bringing him to $923 per month; 7 per cent to secretary to the city manager ($685), librarian ($1,116), parks and recreation director ($1,377), park supervisor ($1,037), finance director ($1,391), director of community development, ($1,391), and city manager ($1,757).

Given to the fire and police chiefs were 8 per cent raises, bringing their salaries to $1,400 and $1,425 respectively. The assistant fire chief's salary was raised 9.5 per cent to $1,230 per month.

Restaurant Loses Plea On Expansion

A parking variance to allow expansion of Pat and Joe's restaurant in Mill Valley was denied last night for the second time.

The Mill Valley City Council voted 4-1 to overturn a planning commission decision granting a variance from offstreet parking requirements. The appeal was filed by the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce, long a foe of such variances in the downtown area.

Richard C. Conrad, speaking for the chamber, said the well patronized Lytton Square restaurant, closed since last month for alleged health code violations, already adds to congestion in the downtown area and the expansion would increase that congestion.

A variance from the required 54 parking spaces to allow expansion from 85 to 135 seats was approved by the planning commission Aug. 23. The chamber appealed three days later.

A similar variance, granted by the planning commission was overturned May 18 by the city council.

The Mill Valley City Council Also:

OPEN SPACE — Was told the North Ridge Open Space Committee, made up of persons from Larkspur, Corte Madera and Mill Valley, will meet at 8 p.m. Oct. 14 at Mill Valley City Hall.

COMMISSIONS — Referred to the planning commission and architectural advisory committee a proposal that the two seven-member bodies be reduced to five members.

PARKING — Told Jordan to prepare an ordinance requiring merchants unable to provide required offstreet parking to pay $1,500 for each space not provided. The money would be used to buy land for offstreet parking.

CLAIMS — Denied two claims: the first, for $5,809, was filed by Marie S. Graham of Ross, for damage to her auto when it allegedly was struck in front of 24 Hillcrest Street June 30 by a Mill Valley Refuse Service truck; the other, for $25,000, was filed by Mrs. Louis Freeman, San Francisco, for injuries allegedly suffered in a fall on a city sidewalk July 2.

GROUNDSMAN — Reinstated the position of groundsman II to the parks and recreation budget. The post had been eliminated during budget sessions.

LEASE — Told Cunningham and City Atty. Leland H. Jordan to proceed with collection of $540 in back rent and utility bills the city claims is owed it by Janice Aranoff, leasee of the city-owned Lytton Square bus depot property.

TAX — Officially set the 1971-72 tax rate at $2.76 per $100 assessed valuation, down from last year's $2.929.

Pollution Deaths In New York City

NEW YORK (UPI) —The death rate in New York City rose as much as 10 per cent during periods of dense air pollution on 1970, according to Funk & Wagnall's 1970 yearbook.

"Most of the excess deaths were among the elderly and sufferers from cardiac and respiratory diseases, but some occurred among younger people and healthy newborn infants," the annual reference books says.

Glass Recycling On Old Bottles

NEW YORK (UPI)—The technology of glass recycling may make it possible for old bottles to provide glass for new bottles even after they have passed through the fiery heat of a modern refuse incinerator.

The Glass Container Manufacturers Institute reports ways have been discovered to extract glass fragments —and the metal residue left from cans as well —from the unburned ash that stays behind after the other refuse has been consumed by high-temperature incineration.

After removal, the salvaged bits of glass are scanned by light beams, which automatically sort them according to color. The material is then considered suitable for being melted down with sand and other substances to make glass for new containers.

Consultants For Sewage Study Hired

Two consultants, who will study both the $8.1 million sewage treatment system proposed for Bolinas and Stinson Beach and alternate solutions to the sewage problems of the two communities were hired last night by directors of the Stinson Beach County Water District.

Board president Hugh Dougherty said the board voted to employ Frank M. Stead, retired state director of environmental health and Dr. George Tchobanoglous, professor of sanitary engineering at the University of California at Davis.

The men will be paid a fee not to exceed $2,500, according to Dougherty, who said the report is to be completed within 60 days.

In addition to studying the proposed system and alternative methods of waste disposal, he said the consultants have been asked to determine to what extent it is possible to control population growth by controlling the availability of sewage treatment facilities.

Both long-range and interim solutions to the communities' sewage problems will be explored, according to Dougherty, who said the study will also focus on public health considerations involved in the various sewage treatment methods.

City Offices For Rohnert Park Backed

The Rohnert Park City Council last night tentatively approved construction of a new city office building.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the council reviewed rough sketches prepared by Architect Lawrence Simons and directed him to go ahead with more detailed drawings for the building to be located on Commerce Boulevard near Hinebaugh Creek.

Mrs. Logue said the council will hold a formal public hearing on the plans at the Oct. 4 meeting. Under the plan, the city will use one wing of the building for offices and will rent the other wing to the Cotati School District for office space.

The building currently used as the city hall will be turned over entirely to police and fire department use.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

DUPLEXES — Expressed reservations on the request of Sonoma Campus Co. to rezone 16 single residential lots for duplexes on Southwest Boulevard. A public hearing was set for Oct. 4.

SNYDER — Heard Sonoma Campus Co. protest the planned widening of Snyder Lane, calling it too expensive and premature. The council delayed action on the plan until Oct. 4.

GOLF — Heard City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan report he is working out an agreement with Sonoma State College for its use of the Rohnert Park Golf Course.

Camera Equipment Reported Stolen

About $500 worth of cameras and camera equipment were stolen Sunday from the auto of a South Hanover Park man who stopped at Denny's Restaurant for a cup of coffee, Corte Madera police said yesterday.

Officers said Reinaldo Miguel Jimenez reported the items missing shortly after he stopped at the restaurant at 3:40 a.m.

Ecology Curriculum Reviewed In Ross

The Ross School District board reviewed but took no action last night on a 150-page ecology curriculum guide for teachers.

According to Supt. Thomas A. Anderson, the guide will come up for adoption at the October meeting.

Basically the guide outlines the ecological assets of areas ranging from the Ross Common to Point Reyes National Seashore.

It was developed by consultant Dan Campbell and will be used by teachers wishing to conduct their own ecology trips.

Campbell, who has been employed as a consultant for the last two years, was instrumental in bringing outdoor study courses to the Ross district.

It was on one such field trip, that he and students discovered the pollution of Phoenix Lake by the Marin Municipal Water District.

The Ross School District board also:

PERSONNEL — Approved the hiring of Beverly Davis as a four-fifths time art teacher at a salary of $7,241 per year.

OBJECTIVES — Reviewed mandatory educational objectives developed by teachers and based on previously approved goals drafted by a special committee. The objectives were returned to staff for additional study.

COMPLAINT — Heard complaints from John Clow of Ross that students taking beginning algebra at Ross School are not being accepted in advanced classes at other schools and that the fourth grade spelling list during the first week of school was too easy. Supt. Anderson said the first week is devoted to spelling review and that students are being accepted in advanced classes.

Water Board To Study Foreaker Replacement

Marin Municipal Water District board will decide whether to appoint or elect a successor to director Raymond W. Foreaker Jr. when it meets at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at the district office.

Foreaker will resign at the meeting in order to become county public works director. When he announced his intention to resign two weeks ago, he told directors he felt his replacement should be elected rather than appointed.

Discussion at that time was cut off by chairman Robert G. Anderson who declared that a director (Foreaker) who had only been in office eight months should not "presume to suggest or dictate to the board" the manner in which his successor is to be selected.

Other directors did not comment at that time about their preference in selecting Foreaker's replacement.

Consumer Protection Is Really Old Stuff

CHICAGO (UPI)—Consumer protection for at least one group of buyers came to England 262 years ago.

The 1709 English copyright act, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, provided that if a customer considered the published price of a book to be unreasonably high a complaint could be filed with the Archbishop of Canterbury and others.

If these authorities agreed with the customer, a lower price was put on the book and the merchant was fined 5 pounds for every copy he sold in excess of that amount.

The Local Elections Adding Voting Fuel

NEW YORK (UPI) —When Ohio became the 38th state to ratify the 26th amendment to the Constitution enabling 18-year-olds to vote in all elections, a controversy over registration procedures began.

Students at Kent State University (Ohio) and at the Universities of Alabama and Kentucky are bringing suit to force officials to register them to vote in local elections. The issue: Should college students be allowed to vote in their college towns or the location of previous residence? Local officials see large student populations having unwarranted power in local elections.

Philippines Has New Government Award

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippines has instituted a new governmental award called "Presidential Citation for Outstanding Humanitarian Services."

A palace announcement says President Ferdinand E. Marcos ordered the award to give official recognition of those "who have rendered spontaneous, exemplary service in social welfare, education, health, and national defense undertaken by the government in times or urgent national need."

Next To Final SALT Working Round Held

HELSINKI (UPI)—American and Soviet negotiators today held their next to last working session during the fifth round of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) and decided to adjourn on Friday after a meeting with President Urho Kekkonen, conference sources said.

Today's meeting, the 91st since SALT began in the Finnish capital in late 1969 and the 22nd since the talks resumed in Helsinki on July 8, was held in a "more intensive atmosphere" than ever before, the sources said.

A FIND — William M. Harnett's "Ease", a masterpiece of 19th Century "trompe l'oeil" American painting, has come onto the market after being lost in San Francisco for nearly 70 years. The four-by-five foot painting is valued at $350,000.

A 'Lost' Harnett Masterpiece Found

NEW YORK (UPI)—A masterpiece of 19th century American painting, William M. Harnett's "Ease," came onto the market Monday after being "lost" in San Francisco for nearly 70 years.

The four by five foot canvas, valued at $350,000 by the Kennedy Galleries, had been in the possession of a California family for three generations and had been stored UNTIL RECENTLY IN a basement, according to gallery director Lawrence A. Fleischman. IT depicts Victorian bric-a-brac on a table in a realist style known as trompe l'oeil (trick-the-eye).

Fleischman said the owner, a woman whose name is being withheld, knew the identity of the artist but did not know of Harnett's importance in the booming American art market. Lesser works of the New York still life specialist who died in 1892 have brought as much as $75,000 at auction in recent years.

"She showed it to an art historian who recommended that she write to me," said Fleischman, a former Detroit cultural leader who is a leading authority on American art. "When I opened the letter, a snapshot of the picture fell out, and I knew what it was immediately."

The dealer recognized the picture because he was familiar with a photograph published in a book about Harnett in 1953 and a detailed description of the painting published in the Springfield (Mass.) Republican in 1887. "Ease" was commissioned from Harnett in that year by paper manufacturer James T. Abbe of Holyoke, Mass., near Springfield.

Abbe is known to have sold the painting to West Coast railroad tycoon Collis P. Huntington before 1900. It is not known how the canvas made its way from Huntington's extensive art collection into the possession of a San Francisco picture framer whose granddaughter will share the proceeeds of its sale with the gallery. A price of $350,000 would set a record for an American art work.

All objects in the painting belonged to Abbe—a Bible, volume of American history, flute, violin, sheet music, palmetto fan, oil study lamp, silver vase, and library scissors. A lighted cigar rests on a newspaper and has begun to burn a hole in it.

2 Cited In Theft At Larkspur School

Two Corte Madera boys, 9 and 10, were cited Sunday to juvenile authorities on suspicion of burglarizing the Larkspur-Corte Madera School in Larkspur.

Officers said yesterday they found the boys at the school after a silent alamr had been trpped.

Chicago's Mayor Denies Pressure In Booting Book

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley has denied that his wife pressured a supermarket chain into removing the bestselling controversial book "Boss —oichard J. Daley of Chicago" from its shelves.

Daley told a news conference Monday that Mrs. Eleanor Daley had told some neighbors and friends that the book, by Chicago Daily News columnist Mike Royko, was "trash and hogwash."

"It was some of the neighbors and friends of ours" who actually made the protests to the National Tea Co. stores, Daley said.

Special Session For Rec Board

The Strawberry Recreation District board will discuss management and operation of district property when it meets in special session at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The special meeting was called because of the lack of a quorum at the regularly scheduled meeting last night, according to Jeanne Heick, District clerk.

Planning Firm Hiring Delayed

The Tiburon City Council last night postponed hiring a San Francisco planning firm when one councilman asked to review other applicants and said there was "considerable dissatisfaction" with the firm's previous work for the city.

Councilman Branwell D. Fanning said he wanted to look at the other applications before making a decision whether to hire Mocine and Williams, the firm the city staff had recommended.

Mayor Denis T. Rice said Fanning's request was reasonable and council would put off deciding whether to hire the firm until the other applicants could be reviewed.

Richard Arjo, planning director, said Mocine and Williams was picked from among several firms which applied when they heard "through the grapevine" that the city was interested in a consultant for its general plan. The job had not been advertised, he said.

Arjo said Mocine and Williams was recommended because it had done planning work for the city in 1966 and the council indicated to him that it wanted to hire a firm as soon as possible.

Fanning said there was "considerable dissatisfaction" with the firm's work for the city in 1966.

Councilwoman Anne L. Ellinwood disagreed with Fanning saying that the firm was justified in quitting work for the city because the city staff did not cooperate with the firm.

Sidney Williams, representing the firm, said he was shocked at the accusation of bad work. "I didn't think our work was being criticized," he said. "We left voluntarily."

The Tiburon City Council Also:

STRAWBERRY — Went into closed session and announced on emerging it would put off condemning a 6.7 acre parcel in Strawberry Cove and accepting participation with the Strawberry Recreation District to buy the land pending a meeting on price with the owner, Leonard B. Fleischman. Tiburon wants the land for a park while Fleischman is attempting to develop the property into a 72-unit apartment complex.

HIGHWAY — Passed a resolution opposing the state Highway Division plan making highway 131 a four-lane road partially running along the shoreline and requiring bay fill. The council stressed that safety, lighting and other road improvements should be made.

HOLDING — Requested the city staff to zone certain parts of tha city holding areas preventing development until proper use could be determined. Balmer said the ridgelands would be one area that might be zoned a holding area because the city may want to keep the land in open space.

DESIGN — Asked the Tiburon Planning Commission to express its views on how broad the scope of the Tiburon Board of Design should be. Mayor Denis T. Rice suggested the board might review single-story family residences (it now reviews two-story residences, apartments and commercial developments), but Miss Ellinwood said this might result in duplicate housing designs and less creativity.

PEACE — Decided to put on a future agenda Miss Ellinwood's request that the city endorse a peace expression on Oct. 13. She said several people have been working on plans for a short-lived and simple expression of peace such as a march along the Richardson Bay bike trail. She added the motto would be "joining hands for peace."

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to Sept. 27.

Panel To Eye Mobile Homes

The San Rafael Planning Commission will consider whether to permit a mobile home park with facilities for 400 mobile homes off Smith Ranch Road at its adjourned meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

The commission will hear from the city attorney on the legality of imposing an access road to the Smith Ranch Airport through the property of the mobile home park owned by Jordan Smith. This held up commission approval at its last meeting.

The commission will also consider how far the planning staff should go in approving building permits for additions to houses. At issue is whether the staff should approve an additional bedroom that may be illegally used later for a rented room.

Auditions Set In Goldsmith Play

The Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts will hold auditions for Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m. at the theater on Buena Vista Avenue.

Edgar Weinstock will direct the play which is to be done in modern dress.

GOP Leader Says Drive Improper

Telephone solicitations to Marin County Republicans to donate to their party, by a publication calling itself The Republican, were branded as unauthorized today.

The chairman of the Marin County Republican Central Committee, Rodgers Broomhead of Ross, told the Independent-Journal that any fund drive in Marin would require his approval, "and I have not given it."

The San Diego-based publication started its telephone campaign in Marin some time last week, he said. Party members reported to Broomhead that they were told "this is an opportunity to donate to the Republican Party," and were asked to give $10 to the publication.

Broomhead stressed that the publication has no official party sanction to raise funds. He noted that "anybody can buy a list of voters."

Terra Linda CSD Will Seek Director

Even though a consolidation election may put the district board out of business by January, Terra Linda Community Services District directors last night decided they wanted to recruit applications for the directorship vacated by the resignation of Nicholas E. Toussaint last month.

On Nov. 2, Terra Linda voters will decide whether to consolidate the community services district and the Terra Linda Parks and Recreation District. If the merger is approved, the new Terra Linda CSD director would serve only the remainder of 1971. Otherwise the term will be for two years, according to Robert N. Bennett, chairman of the board.

Dedication Set

Rohnert Park will dedicate its new sewage disposal plant in a ceremony Thursday at 10:45 a.m. The dedication will be followed by an inspection tour and conclude with a luncheon at the Carriage House.

Board Asks Control Over Development

The Marinwood Community Services District board last night adopted requirements it will recommend to the county planning commission for a planned 20-acre subdivision at the end of Kernberry Drive.

Genevieve Bolding, business manager and secretary for the district, said the board wants design review for the parcel, owned by Aubrey Holman, in addition to street, drainage, fire hydrant and a fire trail easement requirements.

She said that Holman plans to divide the land into four parcels, building a home for himself on one, selling two others and setting aside the fourth as a park.

Because the land is very hilly and a geological study showed some soil instability, Mrs. Bolding said, the board wants to review plans so that draining onto existing homes below will be controlled.

The board also will recommend to the planning commission that the park parcel be dedicated either to the community services district or to the county.

In other action last night the community services district board decided to submit a bid of $1,200 a month for maintenance at the Roundtree condominium development.

Mrs. Bolding said that the development is seeking someone to maintain planting there.

Youths Held In Burglary Of House

Robert Elton Yates, 86 Forest Lane, San Rafael, and Michael James DeMello of no known address were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary and held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

The youths were arrested in connection with a residential burglary at 108 Coleman Drive at about noon yesterday. The house is owned by Richard W. Wolk, M.D., of Houston, Tex., and is rented by Theodore N. Brown, Daniel Garrett and Robert Trost.

Two witnesses said they saw Yates leaving the scene in a car, according to the police report. A police officer spotted Yates' car at Lea Drive near Surry Lane and stopped him. Police said they found a watch, field glasses, boots and sunglasses the residents reported missing.

At 5 p.m., DeMello called the police station asking if he could see Yates. Police said they told DeMello they wanted to see him and went out and picked him up.

Trial Set In Robbery Case

Trial was set for the week of Nov. 1.

Nivens was arrested Aug. 25 after a San Anselmo woman was attacked in her car in San Rafael. She fended off the attacker and got the license number of his car, which was traced to Nivens, according to San Rafael police.

ABAG Issues Warning On Dumping Sewage In Ocean

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

BERKELEY — Proposals to dump sewage into the Pacific Ocean instead of San Francisco Bay merely shift pollution from the bay to the ocean, ignoring the need to upgrade treatment and reuse of wastewater.

This warning has been issued by the Association of Bay Area Governments in an initial plan for water, sewerage and drainage in the nine-county region.

The plan also suggested a slowdown in the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct.

The ocean long has been eyed by Southern Marin sewerage agencies as the likely dumping ground for a joint system going out Tennessee Valley to the coastline, and there may be no alternative for them, the report conceded.

The ABAG plan, approved Thursday night by the association's executive committee and distributed yesterday, cautioned, however, that the ocean will prove much more difficult than the bay to control and monitor the effects of sewage discharge.

"Much more investigative study is necessary before the ocean can be considered as the recipient of the region's wastewaters," it said. "Unless this is done, future generations may find themselves with the same problems in the ocean as exist in the bay today."

The plan, done by ABAG engineering consultants Metcalf and Eddy of Palo Alto, also criticized local agencies for failing to keep drainage facilities in tune with the demands of growing development.

Criticizing drainage systems in Marin, the plan said the county's flood control and water conservation district has "no overall plan." The district is run by the county supervisors.

In San Anselmo, it said, the storm drain system was installed 40 to 50 years ago and "has begun to fail and is inadequate for current development." The plan said "a complete master plan for storm drainage is badly needed."

In San Rafael, it found that the city "does not have adequate drainage facilities." The city has a tentative 10-year program to correct the problems, but "no specific plans at this time for funding the program have been made," it said.

In Novato, it noted the "northwest area of the city is presently exposed to local flooding, and improvements are badly needed."

A slowdown in development of the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct from the Russian River may even be called for, the plan suggested. It noted that population growth had fallen below previous projections for the two counties, thus "project scheduling should be modified accordingly."

(Marin Municipal Water District directors have noted the lower population prediction, but scheduling of the project has not been modified.)

The 217-page plan which cost $35,000 is designed to provide ABAG with a guide to review applications by local agencies for state and federal funds.

It also stressed the need to develop a method to give at least cursory treatment to stormwater runoff. This runoff, the consultants said, "is so highly contaminated that, for short periods, it often discharges more pollution than the primary effluent of a wastewater (sewage) treatment plant."

The plan, however, gave high marks to water planning in the region, concluding that the "Bay Area as a whole can depend on an adequate supply for the next 20 years or longer."

An ABAG spokesman told the Independent-Journal that the final plan on water, sewerage and drainage would be done jointly by ABAG and the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

In other recommendations, the plan urged creation of a new regional agency to build a regional sewerage system discharging into deep bay waters.

Legislation to create such an agency in the Bay Area is awaiting final passage in Sacramento.

Large pipes discharging treated sewage into deep bay water will be needed regardless of future recycling of wastewater, the plan said. There always will be a need for moving "unused and unusable" wastewater to the bay, it said — the same conclusion reached by the regional board in June.

In Southern Marin, only the Tiburon and the Sausalito-Marin City sanitary district may overcome their pollution problems without joining a subregional system discharging into the ocean, the plan said. These two agencies discharge outside the confines of Richardson Bay, a constricted arm of the bay with poor circulation.

Hopes for total reclamation of wastewater "may never be feasible," the plan acknowledged, but it stressed that the goal still must be "maximum reuse." Major use for reclaimed wastewater probably will be limited to industrial cooling water, agricultural and recreational irrigation, and recharge of underground water supplies.

Abolishing Chain Gangs To Governor

Man, 24, Mends After Accident

A 24-year-old Bolinas man was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital following a two-car accident Sunday on Shoreline Highway near Olema.

Daniel A. O'Sullivan of Elm Street was admitted to the intensive care unit of the hospital with broken bones in all parts of his body, hospital officials said. His condition first was listed as critical.

California Highway Patrol said O'Sullivan was injured at 5:15 p.m. when he crossed from the northbound lane of the highway to the southbound lane and collided with a vehicle driven by Elizabeth R. Williams, 31, of San Francisco. She was not reported injured.

Series Of Hearings Set On County Master Plan

Marin's preliminary countywide plan will get a series of public hearings from Sept. 30 through Oct. 30 in various localities throughout the county.

The preliminary plan calls for future urban growth to be concentrated in present city areas in the eastern one-third of the county, with the remaining two-thirds predominantly open and rural.

The plan also encourages social and economic diversity and visitor enterprise as a means toward more economic self-sufficiency.

The City-County Planning Council, headed by Anne L. Ellinwood of Tiburon, will sponsor the public hearings as follows:

Thursday, Sept. 30 — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. auditorium, Third and Brooks streets, San Rafael, 8 p.m.

Creek Walk Set Tomorrow

The annual inspection of San Anselmo and Sleepy Hollow creeks in San Anselmo will begin tomorrow at 9 a.m., Charles R. Letizell, director of public works, has announced.

The inspection is made, he said, to locate trees, debris and other obstructions which may interfere with the free flow of water during the winter rainy season.

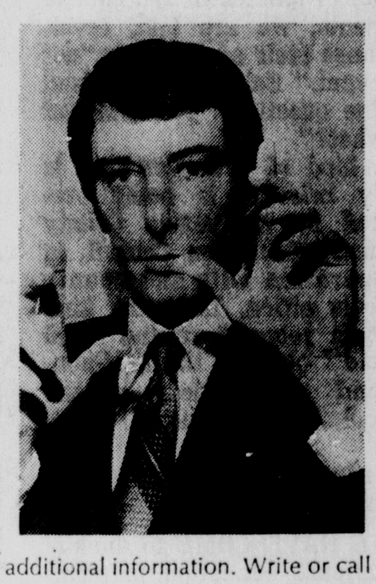

Because of the interest in the creeks, he said, the inspection has been turned into a "public creek walk" with everyone interested in attending to meet at the parking lot at Lansdale and Forest avenues.

He advised wearing either hip boots or shorts and tennis shoes.

Vocational Education Gets A New Look

We hear much talk these days about "relevance" in education. High school and college students, we are told, revolt because their education is "not relevant." Seldom even raised is the question, "Not relevant to what?"

A kind of education that is truly relevant is being promoted by the Marin County Industry-Education Council, in cooperation with the county schools office. It is the kind that is relevant to the "real world" outside the self-contained mini-society of the school. It is vocational education.

Unfortunately, the name turns people off.

WE HAVE COME to think of vocational education in terms of the woodshop or auto shop course taught in the high school basement or an adjacent sheet-metal shack that spoils the appearance of the campus. And increasingly in recent years, we have come to think of it as a place for "dropouts," for those who "can't cut it" in the academic studies. Carolyn Horan, career counselor for the county schools, says that "at least three times every day, some one asks me if we're running a school for dropouts."

It's not like that — not as promoted and practiced by the Marin County schools office and the Marin County Industry-Education Council. And so, recognizing the importance of labels, they're calling it "career education."

LAST WEEK at the Pacific Gas and Electric Building in San Rafael, they showed a film prepared by the California Department of Education to illustrate what career education is and can be. The turnout of about 60 people included (unfortunately, we thought) a minority of industry and business representatives, with the majority being teachers.

This new type of vocational education, as it has been started here, utilizes those schools that have up-to-date equipment for teaching such things as auto repair, electronics, vocational nursing, office practices, etc. The student, who can be anyone who has passed his 16th birthday, is bused to his class. The program may include work experience training in addition to the classwork.

The young man or woman who completes a course is qualified for entry-level employment. The county schools office tries to place each graduate in a job.

The career education program does not necessarily end there, however. The employed graduate may return for more advanced training to help him climb the "real world" ladder on which he has attained the bottom rung.

THIS PROGRAM has advantages which we feel should commend it to both schools and employers: It need not interfere with the academic program in the schools (and should not, for no vocational advancement is open to the young man or woman who failed to get the basics of academic instruction). Its application to actual employment is much more practical than was that of the old-style "shop course." And it involves leaders of industry and business in the educational process.

The Marin County career education program is still in its infancy. We hope it will grow, and will not depart from the approach it has taken so far.

CAPITOL REPORT

Can't Satisfy Democrats, Even With All The Breaks

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Some folks just can't stand prosperity. They're never satisfied. Give them the biggest slice and they want the whole pie.

Take our Democratic friends in the state Assembly. When it comes to dividing up the 80 Assembly districts, they want it all. One-man, one-vote, one-party.

Republican assemblymen went to a lot of trouble to work out a reapportionment proposal. They used computer wizardry to figure out boundaries which would permit a community of interest within the districts. They provided for an increase in legislators from the minority groups. They worked things out so that each of the 80 new districts reflected population shifts and no district's population would be more than one per cent over or under 249,414 — the magic number for the "ideal" district.

And what happens? The Democratics called it "a joke," "a stunt." Said it was unfair. And, it is. To Republicans.

FOR EXAMPLE: the statewide partisan registration as of November, 1970, was 55 per cent Democratic and 40 per cent Republican. Yet, the GOP plan would give Democrats the registration edge in 75 per cent of the 80 Assembly districts.

That's a pretty fair shake for the Democrats. But they don't think it's good enough. One reason is they just can't stand competition. And, when you look at the vital statistics of recent Assembly elections, you understand why.

Of the 37 incumbent Republican assemblymen, 28 (75 per cent) were elected from districts where the GOP registration was less than 50 per cent. About 40 per cent were elected from districts where the GOP registration was less than 45 per cent.

Let's face it. Democrats gotta have a stacked deck or they can't win.

THAT'S NOT ALL that's bugging them about the GOP plan. For years, left-wing Democrats have been whispering sweet nothings to minority groups. Kept telling the Negros and the Mexican Americans they deserved better representation. Which they do.

So, the GOP comes up with a plan to give the minorities the opportunity to pick up four or five Assembly seats and what happens? The left-wingers pop their corks. Why? Because the plan would carve up some of their private plantations; open those districts to minority group representation! Ho-ho-ho!

Take Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park. Walter's a wheel, Speaker Bob Moretti's strong left hand. He's majority floor leader in the Assembly. Under the GOP plan, the ethnic make-up of about 5/6 of the area in Karabian's new 45th district would be 50 per cent or more Mexican-American. That means the Mexican-Americans could elect their own man to represent them.

Same thing with Jack Fenton, D-Montebello, another wheel, member of Moretti's power guard, chairman of the Assembly's Finance and Insurance Committee (which is a handy place from which to raise campaign funds for the party). Fenton's proposed new 51st district would also provide Mexican-Americans with a real opportunity to elect one of their own.

And Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco, a lib of whom there is no libber, he who is chairman of the Assembly Rules Committee? His new 20th district would be drawn to include a large number of Negroes. Enough, perhaps, to send a Negro to the Assembly.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Schools' Appointment Methods Questioned

At the Sept. 7 regular meeting of trustees of the San Anselmo School District at least two new "positions" were filled that we believe bear further looking into by the people of this district.

There appear to be no approved specifications for the job of "teaching assistant". The agenda calls for a 5½ hour day at $497 per month. One of the duties as outlined in a note apparently not yet approved by the board calls for "identifying educationally handicapped youngsters" throughout the district . . .

These jobs were described by Mr. (Eugene M.) Cochran, head of the E. H. program in San Anselmo, as being worth $3.57 an hour (or approximately $345 per month for a 5½ hour day) but the Classified Employees Association recommended the $497 and $472 figures!

In another case, on the same evening, a job for "clerk" for Red Hill School was filled by Sophia Spencer. On questioning Supt. (Kenneth) Lowry, it was discovered that an ad was placed in the I.J. which elicited 30 written replies. Mr. Lowry stated that he at least had not even read the replies (and he knew of no one else who had read them) since when it was learned that Mrs. Spencer wanted the job, it was immediately given her. There are no specifications on file for a "clerk" job, pay $497 for a six-hour day. It was explained that no principal would be hired at Red Hill to replace Mr. Donald Shaw (who passed away suddenly Aug. 2) but that a secretary and Mrs. Spencer would be the entire administration for the school with Mr. Lowry devoting part of his time to overseeing.

It has not escaped the notice of many citizens that two of these jobs have been filled by politically active persons. We wonder if it is not doing these women a disservice to fill these positions without absolutely clear-cut specifications and qualifications voted on by the board in advance of any recruiting . . .

Motivation Research: Corporate View

We at Motivation Research Center, Inc. appreciated the objective, unbiased manner in which your recent "Full Mind" article on Alpha Dynamics was presented.

However, the purpose of this letter is to clarify any misunderstandings that may have been created by the letter by Dr. G. Warren Kleinmaier, a member of our board of directors, as it appeared in your paper on Sept. 11.

In November of 1970, Dr. Kleinmaier was offered a position on our board of directors, as the results of his stated enthusiasm for our program and our desire to have a qualified M.D.-psychiatrist available to screen the Alpha Dynamics course, when it was being developed, as to the content of the course material.

After reviewing the materal, Dr. Kleinmaier offered no suggestions for changes from a professional, medical-psychiatric position.

He did offer suggestions for certain copy changes, of a grammatical nature, and some of his suggestions were implemented.

Unfortunately, as with most corporations, marketing and advertising copy decisions must be made daily by corporate executives. The board of directors are rarely consulted for opinions on routine corporate matters, and MRC has never implied that all our board of directors are asked to "approve" all printed copy or material.

We respect Dr. Kleinmaier as a dedicated professional, and as an individual of high personal integrity.

It was with regret that we accepted his formal resignation from our board of directors, effective Sept. 16, 1971. However, under the circumstances, we do feel it's to everyone's best interest.

Omission Of Message Perhaps Beneficial

Perhaps the omission of a Rosh Hashanah message to Marin Jewry on the occasion of the New Year 5732 which took place this weekend (Sun., Mon., Tues.) in temples and synagogues throughout the world, may have had a beneficial result-courtesy of the I-J. If you can't read about it, go hear it "live.".

Printing the annual New Year's message, (called to the attention of the I-J well in advance of the date) might have kept some readers from participating in the worship services conducted in Marin this year. Certainly the large attendance at these services would indicate that the omission of the New Year's message had no adverse results.

In any case — Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement (tomorrow) is an ideal time to forgive. Let's hope that Marin Jewry will do just that.

Isn't That Painting Scene In Rockport?

With reference to Mrs. S. Mizel's letter in Friday's paper (Sept. 17), may I carry this pleasantly nostalgic discussion a step further?

When I saw the Couper painting to which Mrs. Mizel refers, my heart leaped as I thought I recognized the well-known "Motif No. 1," so-called, I'd always understood, because it was one of the foremost subjects chosen by painters from all over the world. As a child I played around it, as an art student I painted it, and as an adult, when I can, I revisit it. But isn't it in Rockport?

Actually I was willing to let Tiburon have it, as granted by the Journal, in the spirit of beauty shared. Let me thank Mrs. Mizel for her note of correction. But my curiosity, aroused, remains.

Lack Of Financial Report Overlooked

Having attended the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council board meeting of Sept. 15, I was surprised to see that the I-J reporter had not included in his coverage of that meeting the interesting case of Alan Shattuck.

Mr. Shattuck had been hired by the MCEOC to prepare the financial statement for that agency for the year ending March 1971. Unfortunately, Mr. Shattuck has not yet found time to complete his task although nearly five months have elapsed. Perhaps Mr. Shattuck is not aware that the board of supervisors cannot give the MCEOC moneys promised until the report has been prepared and made available. In the meantime, the manpower program that the money was needed for has withered and is on its way out. It seems as though Mr. Shattuck no longer worries about his job or its effect on others' lives since he has already received payment through December 1971.

As a member of the MCEOC board of directors (and, of course, as a member of the human race) I do not comprehend why your reporter did not consider this newsworthy, nor even worth mention with other, more routine agenda items.

Justice Black's Retirement Opens Way For Virginian

WASHINGTON — At the age of 85, Justice Hugo Lafayette Black has just resigned, coincidental with a serious illness. After a tumultuous and troubled beginning on the Supreme Court, he has served his country well, with an independence of mind and spirit that has characterized the truly distinguished judges in the long history of the court.

Justice Black's many admirers had hoped he would be able to return to the bench, if not at the opening of the fall term on Oct. 4, then shortly thereafter. His anticipation was to have served longer than any other justice had. Only two have exceeded his 34 years. One was Chief Justice John Marshall and the other Associate Justice Stephen J. Field.

THE COMPOSITION of the supreme court, the highest body in the third independent branch of government, is not for years but for decades. This makes the president's appointive power one of the most important functions of the chief executive. He can determine the direction of the court as the final arbiter far beyond his own term or terms in the white house.

In this department Mr. Nixon's record has been dismal. Twice the Senate, with some Republican support, rejected his nominations. Both Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and G. Harrold Carswell were found, ideological considerations to one side, unfitted for the high court. Finally, after two long controversies ending in defeat, the President named a meutral figure, Judge Harry A. Blackmun of the circuit court of Appeals of the eighth Circuit.

When a vacancy occurred with the resignation of Justice Abe Fortas, following a bitter controversy over his nomination to be chief justice, the name of Rep. Richard H. Poff of Virginia was immediately speculated on. It was soon realized that Poff, second ranking Republican member of the House Judiciary Committee serving his 10th term in Congress, was ineligible. Under the constitution a member of congress may not be appointed to an office for which he has voted a raise in pay.

WITH ELECTION to a new Congress this barrier no longer applies, and it is widely believed that Poff is in line for the next vacancy on the court. An ideological conservative, stopping considerably short of being a Byrd Virginian, Poff gets high marks from both liberals and conservatives on the judiciary committee for his knowledge of the law and the judicial process.

When Poff's name was speculated on earlier, Chairman Emanuel Celler and Rep. Robert Kastenmier, who has served for many years on a subcommittee with the Virginian, told him half-jokingly that if he had any trouble with the Senate Judiciary Committee over confirmation they would be happy to come and testify for him. Kastenmeier, a Democrat from Wisconsin, points out that in the recent battle in the House to repeal the concentration camp Law, Poff supported the repealers against the conservatives.

A Poff nomination would go through with no difficulty. This would be the President's third appointment. Given more than a year still in office, barring a second term, Mr. Nixon may well have an opportunity to name a majority of the nine judges. This is underscored by the fact that a second justice, John M. Harlan, 72, has been hospitalized since Aug. 12.

TIME AFTER TIME it has been shown that it is one thing to establish a court liberal or conservative in color and quite another matter for the court to keep that coloration. Chief Justice Warren Burger, the first Nixon appointee, wrote the decision of a unanimous court last April upholding the constitutionality of school busing, rejecting the administration's claim that southern school districts should be permitted to assign students to schools in their own neighborhoods even if this slowed the pace of desegregation. Burger's predecessor, retired Chief Justice Earl Warren, also appointed by a Republican President, wrote in 1954 the landmark decision of Brown vs. Board of Education ending the "separate but equal" doctrine.

One of the longest and most stubborn deadlocks occurred in the early '30s. A Supreme Court with a conservative majority turned down one after the other basic New Deal reforms. There followed Franklin D. Roosevelt's disastrous "court packing" proposal, which was defeated by the Senate. This, together with the age of the justices, brought a quick reversal and a new court.

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Even though Gen. Gorge Grivas is 73 years old, the mention of his name still can cause tremors on the island of Cyprus and bring a frown to the forehead of Greek Premier George Papadopoulos.

Ever since the mid-1950's when he led Cypriot guerrillas in a fight for independence from Britain, Grivas' name has been associated with violence and intrigue worthy of a paperback spy thriller.

After a period of relative obscurity, his name surfaced again in recent days when he disappeared from Greek government surveillance in Athens and, amid rumors, reappeared in Cyprus. Even though Grivas himself maintained silence, his presence was enough to cause the island to brace for renewed trouble.

WITHIN THE GOVERNMENT of President Archbishop Makarios there was a fear that violence, if it came, might be directed at Makarios himself. In preindependence days, the archbishop and Grivas had been close allies. Later, sharp differences arose, most of them stemming from Grivas' fanatic devotion to "Enosis," the union of Cyprus and Greece.

Makarios, at one time also a proponent of Enosis, now favors Cypriot independence and peaceful co-existence between its Greek and Turkish inhabitants.

The issue between Greeks seeking Enosis and Turks favoring partition is responsible for much of the violence on the island going back years. More than a hundred assassination attempts have occurred since Cyprus became independent in 1960, several of them against Makarios.

FORCES OPPOSED to both Papadopoulos and Makarios are suspected of having a hand in Grivas' escape from his closely guarded Athens home.

Grivas' surprise return to Cyprus climaxes a summer of increasing tensions between the island's 600,000 Greeks and approximately 100,000 Turks. It was Grivas who as commander of the Cypriot National Guard in 1967 ordered an attack on two Turkish villages that nearly led to war between Greece and Turkey.

As result of that incident Grivas was ordered into unwilling retirement and placed under guard.

GREECE, TURKEY and Great Britain are co-guarantors of Cypriot independence under terms of a treaty signed in 1960.

Three years of talks between leadrs of the Cypriot, Greek and Turkish communities foundered on the old issue of partition as demanded by the Turks.

Failure of local leaders has led to mounting fears among Greek Cypriots that the governments of Greece and Turkey were nearing agreement of their own which would be imposed upon the island, on terms unfavorable to the Greek inhabitants.

A United Nations peacekeeping force has been on the island since the spring of 1964 under terms renegotiated every six months by U.N. Secretary General Thant. Makarios has dispatched his foreign minister to New York where the U.N. General Assembly is to convene tomorrow. Reportedly, he is to seek new moves to break the deadlock.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

All the freedom mankind has achieved to date has been achieved only because individuals accepted responsiblity. — Arthur H. Motley.

The state cannot get a cent for any man without taking it from some other man, and this latter must be a man who has produced and saved it. The latter is the Forgotten Man. — William Graham Sumner.

How The Great Bus Boycott Ended Marin's Commute Woes

Long after the anti-busing movement waned in San Francisco, it gathered strength in Marin, spurred by the wives and children of commuters.

A new bride tired of watching a Greyhound bus carry off her husband each morning forlornly mentioned to her friends that it was a lousy way to live.

"It would be nice if all the husbands could work in their hometowns," she said. "I'm sick of my husband being bused to work."

"Well, then, let's do something about it," replied Mrs. Zap, who got in the habit of zapping things during the Women's Liberation campaign and didn't want to quit zapping.

SOON THERE WERE slogans appearing on hillsides, fences and buildings reading: "Busing Separates Families," "Busing Is An Aid to Segregation," and "A Man at Home is Worth Two on a Bus."

Children gathered at bus stops carrying signs reading, "Don't Take Our Dads Away," "Think of Those They Leave Behind," and "I Don't Want To Be a Bus Driver When I Grow Up."

Women organized into a countywide group known as Women Against Commuting, known in some circles as the WACs, and its slogan was "Leave the Driving to Us."

Marin County supervisors were swamped with petitions to ban commuting on the grounds that it was bad for the economy of Marin.

"Look at all the lunch money we lose," said Mrs. Zap.

CONSERVATIONISTS, long foes of motor vehicles, advocated that no one should work farther away from home than he could walk. The ministerial association sent out a brochure entitled: "A Man Near Home Isn't Likely To Roam."

The first confrontation came when WAC declared a boycott and wives wouldn't drive their husbands to the nearest bus stop.

Several stubborn husbands who hiked to bus stops were met by rows of militant women who blocked their way and called them "Commuter cowards," "copout commuters," and "Highway 101 husbands."

One brave husband answered: "We have a right to commute if we want to. It's not that we want to be segregated from our families during the day."

Other men began to chant: "One, two, three, four, let us to the bus door."

THE WOMEN BEGAN to lie down in front of the bus and let the air out of the tires, while the men stacked up their brief cases and tried to climb up to the windows.

When Bus Stop 37 came to trial, they were advised to seek their remedy in a legal manner, and they did.

WAC got an injunction against busing for 30 days. The men stayed in Marin all day, liked it, and no one ever commuted again.

Soft Sell And Help Wanted: A Matter Of Motivation

WASHINGTON — One of the problems with today's economy is that it's very hard to find young people who are good salesmen. Many students coming out of college are more interested in a customer's motivation than they are in closing a sale. They also have a tendency to be too honest, which can play havoc in the retail business.

A friend of mine has a dress shop here in Georgetown and she told me of the problems she had with a young lady, a psychology major, whom she hired as a salesgirl.

This, in essence, is what happened:

THE FIRST DAY a lady came in the store, and the salesgirl (let us call her Miss Brampton) asked if she could be of help.

"I'd like a suit for the fall," the lady said.

"What price range?" Miss Brampton asked.

"It doesn't make any difference," the lady replied.

"Well, let me ask you this question: Do you want the suit because you need it? Or have you just had a fight with your husband and are trying to get even by making a very expensive purchase?"

"I BEG YOUR pardon?" the lady said.

"Perhaps you suspect him of some infidelity, and you think this is the only way you can get back at him."

"I have no idea what you're talking about," the customer said.

"Spending money in anger is a very expensive form of hostility. My advice to you is to think it over for a few days. Try to patch up your differences. Buying a new suit won't save your marriage."

"THANK YOU VERY much," the customer said frostily and left the store.

"She's angry with me now," Miss Brampton told the dress shop owner, "but in a week she'll be grateful I talked her out of it."

My friend the shop properietor decided to let the incident pass, but that afternoon another customer came in, and Miss Brampton asked if she could be of help.

The lady said, "I need something really exciting. I'm going to the Kennedy Center and I want a dress that will knock everyone dead."

MISS BRAMPTON said, "We have some lovely evening dresses over here for insecure people."

"Insecure people?"

"Oh, yes. Didn't you know that clothes are one of the main ways women compensate for insecurity?"

"I'm not insecure," the lady said angrily.

"Then why do you want to knock them dead at the Kennedy Center? Why can't you be accepted for yourself instead of what you wear? You are a very attractive person and you have an inner beauty you try to disguise. I can sell you a new dress that will attract attention, but then you would never know if it were you or the dress that made people stop and stare."

BY THIS TIME the dress shop owner decided to step in.

"Miss Brampton, if the lady wants an evening dress, let her see our evening dresses."

"No," the customer said. "Your girl is right. Why spend $500 to get a few compliments from people who really don't care what I wear? Thank you for helping me, young lady. It's true I've been insecure all these years and didn't even know it."

The customer walked out of the store.

The final straw for the dress store owner took place an hour later when a coed came in to buy a hotpants outfit, and Miss Brampton gave her 30 minutes on Women's Lib and then said, "All you do when you buy hotpants is become a sex object."

That night the dress shop owner put a sign in the window "Help Wanted — No Pyschology Majors Need Apply."

Jail Term In Sale Of Heroin

Dennis Lee Hovde, 22, of Corte Madera, was sentenced to nine months in Marin County Jail yesterday for selling heroin.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court also placed Hovde on probation for two years and gave him credit for time he has already spent in jail.

Hovde and Nalla Hovde, 27, were arrested July 8 by Marin drug agents who had obtained a warrant accusing Miss Hovde, who is also known as Judith Samuelson, of selling heroin to agents three times, and Hovde with selling it once, in June.

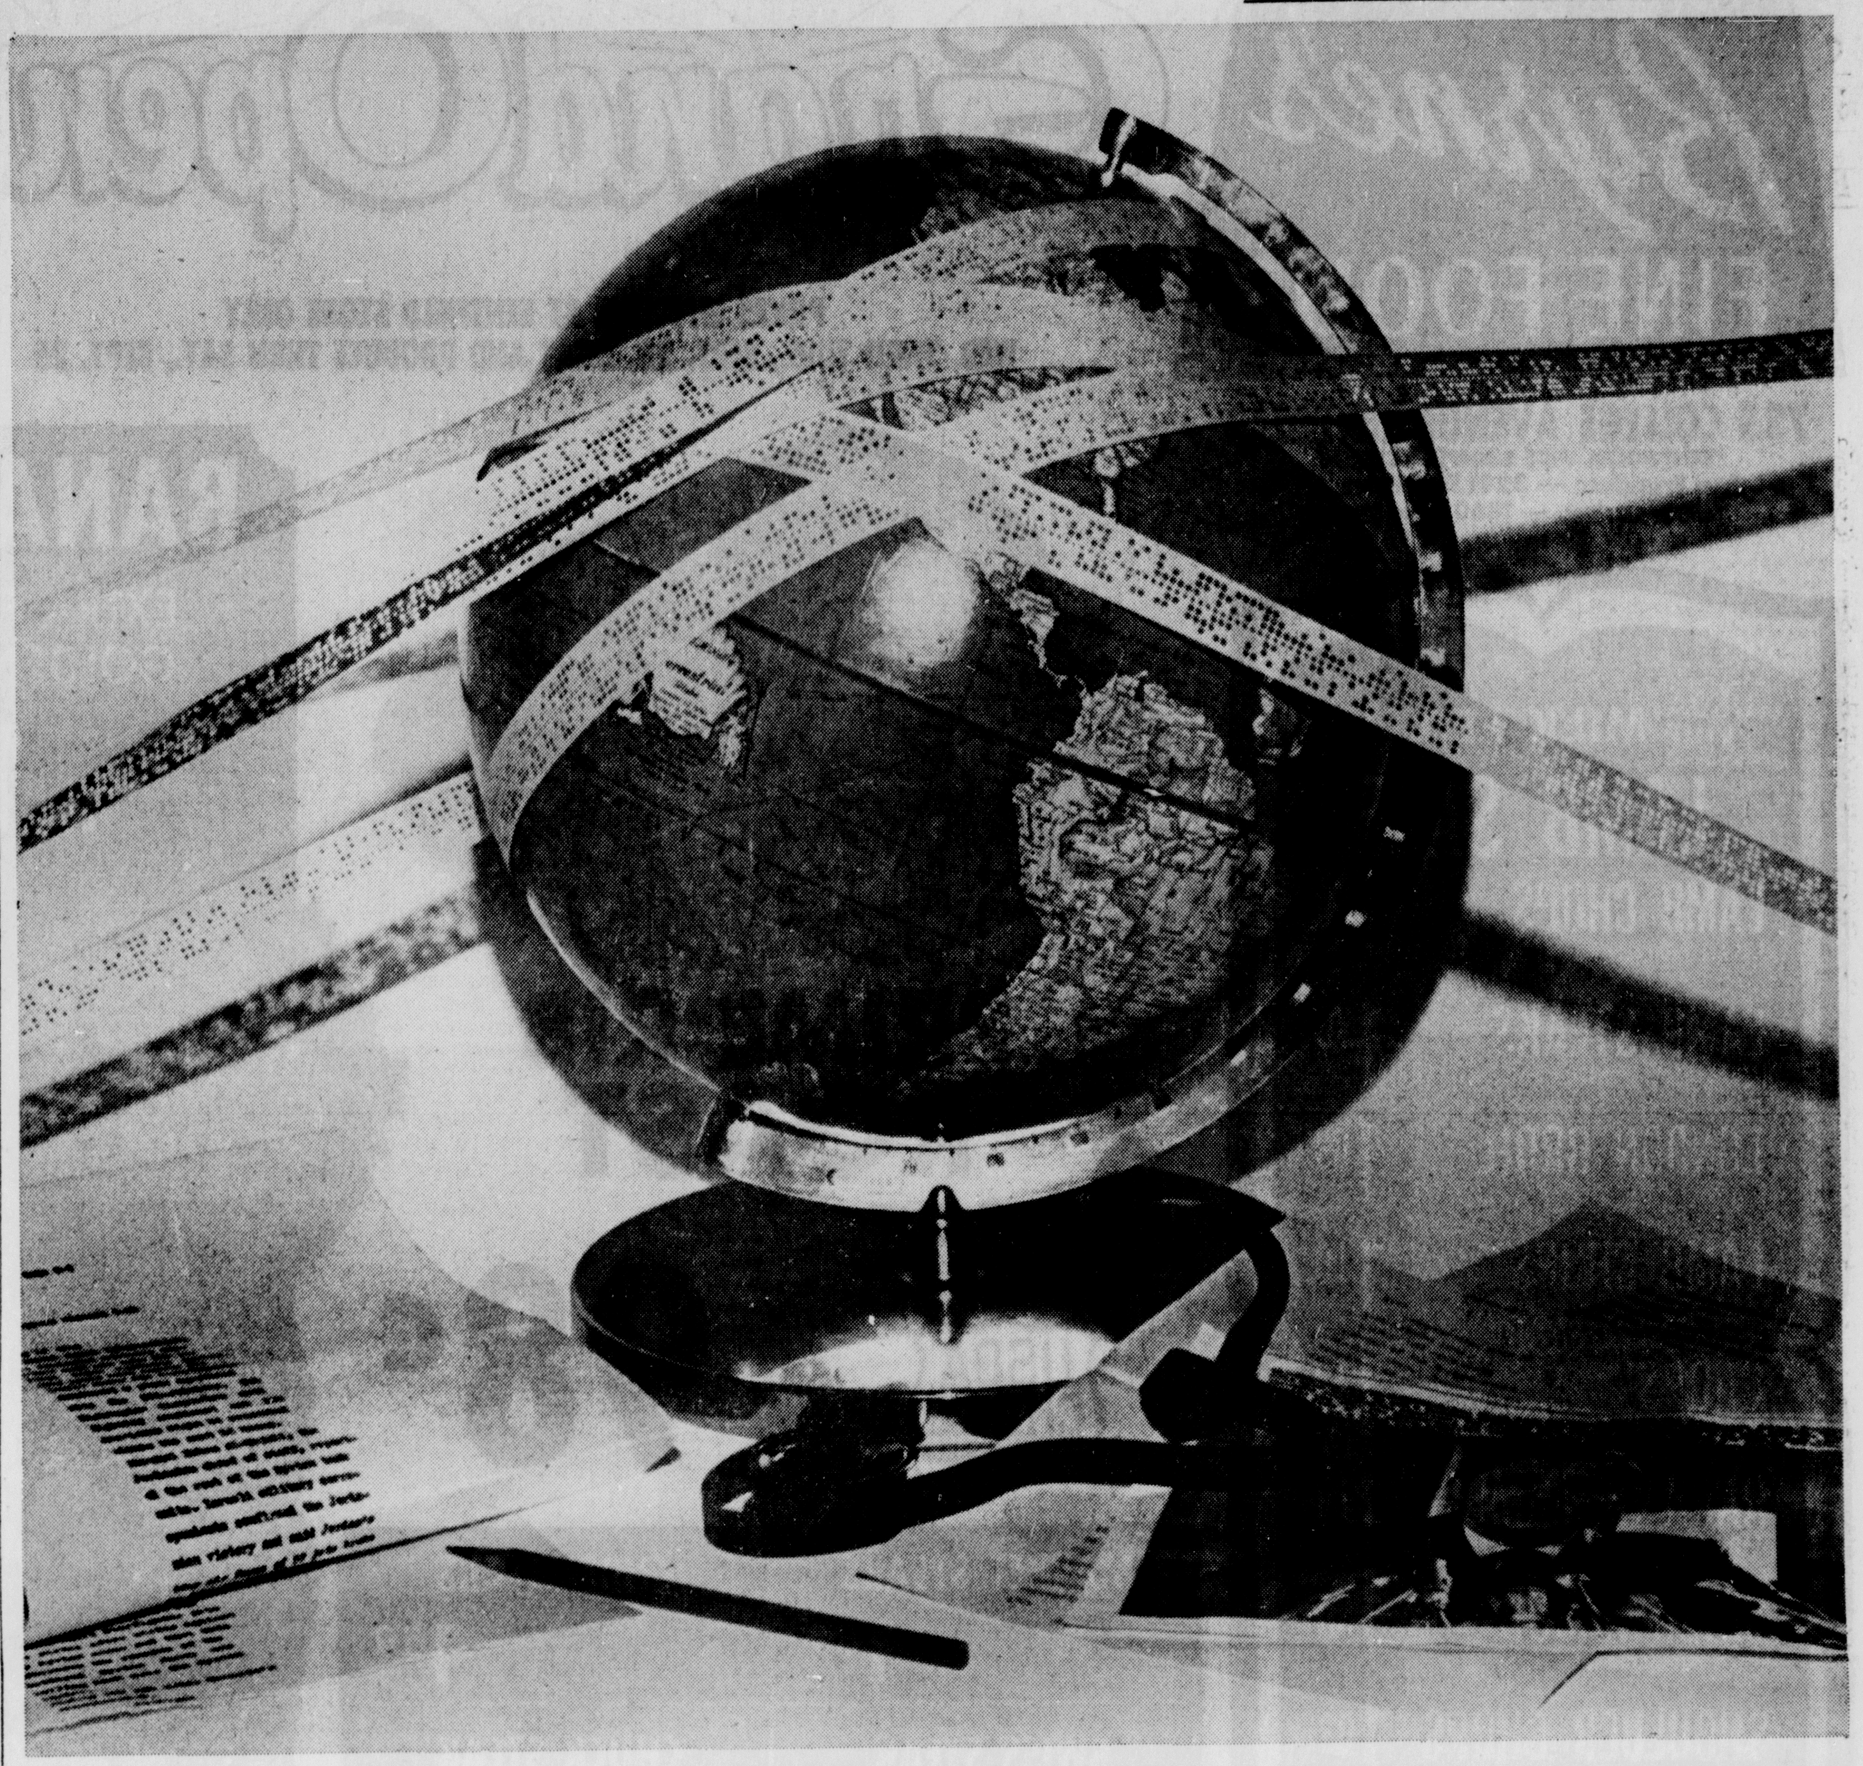

Both pleaded guilty to one count of selling it, and the other two counts against Miss Hovde were dismissed Aug. 30.

She is to be sentenced Oct. 25.

BALLET WEST

Company takes a bow following the performance of "Irish Fantasy" at the 1971 Greek ArtsFestival in Athens. The company, which includes Nancy Taverna of San Rafael (fourth from right), received favorable reviews throughout Europe on its first tour outside of the United States.

BALLERINA NANCY Taverna says she crochets to earn a little extra money and to stay awake during rehearsals. She concentrated on crocheting while other dancers rehearsed in Aspen, Colo., where the company she dances with, Ballet West, began a six-week tour, which took them to six European countries.

BACK FROM EUROPE

Ballerina Nancy Taverna Takes Well-Deserved Rest

By JOAN LISETOR

Taking it easy means resting at the San Rafael home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Caesar Taverna, and taking classes daily with her former teacher, Leona Norman.

After dancing in six countries, traveling by train, airplane, automobile, taxi and bus, just going to class every day is a rest, according to the 21-year-old dancer.

THE TOUR, which began in Aspen, Colo., in June took the company first to the Greek Arts Festival in Athens and then to Yugoslavia, Italy, France, Spain and Switzerland, where they danced in summer festivals held in resort towns.

Nancy says her first trip to Europe was a job, not a pleasure trip.

"It was different from the tours the company makes in the United States, where we follow a course across the country," she says. "In Europe we criss-crossed back and forth across borders because we had to work our schedules in with the festivals.

"The only free time we ever had was between 1 and 5 in the afternoon and on Sundays when everything is closed."

Ballet West, in its 10th year, is considered a new company. On its first European tour the company received all favorable reviews, Nancy says.

"WE WERE not sure what to expect because we had heard that the Europeans would throw tomatoes and walk out if they didn't like you, but we never had to duck from any flying vegetables. The audiences were responsive wherever we went," she says.

"Our impressario, who never said much on the tour, told us when it was completed that we went as an amateur group and after the tour we could be considered almost professional."

Most of the stages were out-of-doors, which was new to the dancers, as was the slant of European stages.

"After always dancing on a flat stage we had to adjust to a rake stage, where you really learn what the terms 'upstage' and 'down stage' mean," says Nancy. "After being conditioned to compensate for the slant, toward the end of the tour in Switzerland we found we were to dance in a skating rink where they had built a flat platform.

"IT WASN'T so bad that the stage was the other way, but Holiday on Ice was booked into the rink the following week, and they had already started freezing because it takes a week for the ice to be ready. Even though we were about 10 feet above it got very, very cold as the evening went on."

The group had no problems with money and was not aware that dollars were not being accepted part of the time they were in Europe. They had some amusing communication problems, and somehow language barrier kept them eating eggs when they didn't want to.

"We used alot of sign language," Nancy explains, "and in France one of the girls held up her fingers to indicate one five-minute egg. She got five one-minute eggs. One of the fellows wanted dessert in France and was delighted that the waiter understood him. The waiter came back shortly and started dishing out something that looked like eggs. It was eggs, and then we found out the French word for 'eggs' sounds like 'dessert'.

Nancy is proud of the fact that she was able to order breakfast in bed in France — and she didn't order eggs.

A native of Marin County, Nancy was graduated from San Rafael High School in 1968. Her decision to attend the University of Utah was made because the school offers a ballet major.

"I NEVER was one of those children who wanted to be 'a ballerina when I grow up'," says Nancy, who started ballet lessons when she was 7 years old. "My mother always said I could quit whenever I wanted.

"I did all of the regular things in high school, like cheerleader, and danced along with it. But when it came time for college I knew I wanted to concentrate on dancing, so my counselor suggested the University of Utah."

After two years of college she quit to dance full time with Ballet West. The company is not connected with the university but draws most of its talent from there.

The life of a dancer is a hard life, says Nancy, who doesn't like to plan ahead or worry about the future.

For the time being, she says, she will stay with Ballet West and continue her hobby of crocheting, which she does to earn a little extra money and stay awake during rehearsals.

She is due back in Salt Lake City Monday for classes and rehearsals for the company's next tour, "probably someplace in the United States."

By MOLLY MARIN

Woo Whan Kim, deputy Korean Consul, will be the guest of the Marin Music Chest at the closing concert of the summer series on Sunday afternoon in Forest Meadows, Dominican College, when the Little Angels, the national folk ballet of Korea, present a program of native folk dances and songs.

In Consul Kim's party will be Mrs. Sang Yung Soh, wife of the Korean Consul-General, and her son, Bying Hee, and daughter, Chung Kee, students at the University of California. The Back Is Bared For Night

Fashions for fall call for the womanly.

Another covers her up . . . in rich, supple fabrics, that come closer to the body, perhaps even more alluring. He uses velvet . . . Does it in dark brown sashed with brown moire. Beautiful foil: puritan collar and cuffs — white linen with crocheted lace.

Another couturier puts his woman in the most sophisticated sportswear look at night — a jumper or pajamas . . . a pulled-together shirt and skirt . . . casual suit in the richest fabric. Tossaway fashion lines, carefully plotted. He gives the young touch to brocade in his white-on-white satin brocade dinner suit . . . the colarless blazer jacket over a stem of a dress.

ON THE AGENDA

THE GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Don't Involve Joker's Wife In His Foolish Little Game

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

I wrote to this guy in Vietnam for five months, and though we never met (it was one of those pen-pal things) he got pretty amorous, saying we'd be together when he was discharged in late October. Call me dumb, but I kind of fell for him, after we exchanged pictures.

Then one day I got a letter from his "pal," saying he'd been killed. Being suspicious, I compared handwritings, and all the capital letters were the same, which means my "boy friend" and his "pal" were the same person, though he'd tried to camouflage.

I checked with some relatives in his home town and found out he's not only alive but married and has a two-year-old son. I was just somebody to string along and hand a bunch of bull, and now he's coming home, he has to lose me fast. I guess he was afraid my letters might be forwarded to the U.S.

Should I pay him back and send the letter on to his wife? Plus all the other lovey-dovey stuff he wrote me? — FURIOUSLY MAD AND HURT

DEAR MAD AND HURT:

What a creep! But don't take it out on his wife.

You never really knew the joker, so you haven't really been hurt. Why not send a sympathy card to him saying, "Better wed than dead — probably," and forget him? — SUE

DEAR M AND H:

DEAR H AND S:

When I wrote to HHU before Sue came in and you started your joint column, I always thought of you as "Dear Helen," but now I wonder if I should write, "Dear Mrs. B. and Sue," "Dear Sue and Her Mother," "Dear Mom and Daughter" or what? — UNSURE

DEAR UNSURE:

Whatever you call us — from "Dear Bottels" to "Hi, You Two, — we won't complain, so long as you keep calling on us. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

Please tell some of these males that they are making fools of themselves. They are not irresistible, either in school or on the way home. What kind of conceited dodos would honk, whistle and pull up to the curb, insinuating that girls should hop right in the car?

These sex fiend chauffeurs and wolf-whistlers should join the circus where they could make idiots of themselves and get paid for it. — UNIMPRESSED

DEAR UN:

Somehow, I've always thought that a wolf whistle, like the Italian pinch, was a form of compliment. You don't need to "hop in the car," naturally, but does a little good-natured banter among high school students really hurt? — HELEN

DEAR UNIMPRESSED:

There are whistlers and WHISTLERs. (Remember, Mom?) Some are junior "dirty old men" who can't make it on their looks or personalities, so they try pick-ups. If they notice you, it's a putdown, 'cause they're after all they can get — from girls who look like they'll give it.

Other whistlers are just friendly-type guys with an eye for cute chicks. It's a compliment if they notice you. When you learn the difference, "Un," you'll stop being so tough on all girl-watchers. — SUE

Any Fashion Is Correct This Season

This fall you can wear any fashion, as long as it's flattering to your own figure type. The first thing you need to know, therefore, is how to classify your shape. Do you have a model figure, almost straight up and down? Or an hourglass figure, with bust and hip measurements equal and the waist 10 to 12 inches smaller? Perhaps you are a showgirl type, formerly called the "Gibson Girl" — larger on top than on the bottom. Or perhaps you're among the women referred to as Victorian figures.

BASIC BONE structure plays a large part in your shape. Of course exercise and diet can modify your proportions, but for now let's deal in realities. What shape are you in for fall, really and truly? Pick your classification before you try to pick out any new clothes.

Probably you can wear some version of almost any current fashion. Take pantsuits, for example. All figure types can wear some sort of pantsuit. A brightly printed corduroy number is, however, more suitable to a model figure than to a Victorian figure. The latter will look better in a solid color and a fabric neither too bulky nor too clingy — something with a light, firm hand such as gabardine.

THE LENGTH and cut of the jacket are most important too. A well-belted waist will emphasize all the curves. Fine for model types; okay for Gibson Girls and hourglass types only if they wish to accentuate the positive; definitely unflattering for the more queenly figure.

A COMFORTABLE SOFA that is also functional has been designed by Milo Baughman for manufacturer Thayer Coggin. The high back and arms create a comfortable seat, and the sofa can serve as a room divider. The companion ottoman can be used for seating, storage, in place of a coffee table or just putting feet on.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

King-Size Sofas With Plump Look

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Something unusual is afoot in the field of upholstered sofas. It started a few years ago when designer Cleo Baldon developed an all-leather, king-size sofa for Pacific Furniture.

When you sat in Miss Baldon's version of the sofa, you were totally immersed. The back of your head could be supported; you could bury yourself within the cushiony comfort of the seat area; the longest legs found expansion room for a reading session or nap.

Then a New York designer, Angelo Donghia, introduced a group of sofas and chairs that had funky, super-plump upholstered look. The chairs and sofas were covered in small, calico-type printed fabrics and there was an appealing, '30s look to the line. While that line was originally created for the interior design wholesale trade, pieces of the group have been modified and are currently being offered for retail store sale. So that fun, funky look will be appearing at a price level most consumers will find acceptable.

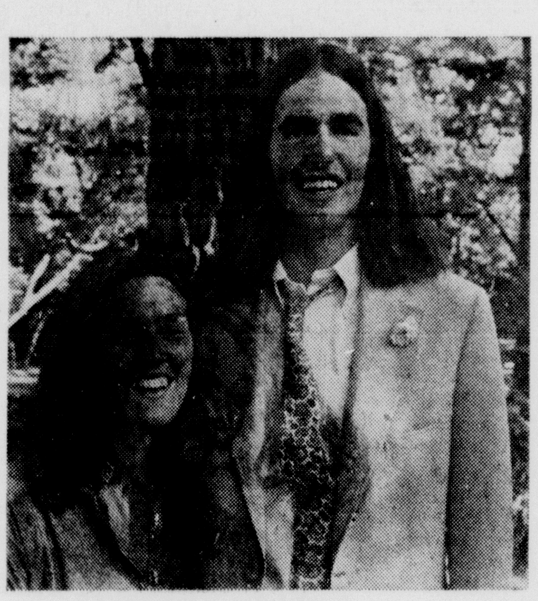

ANOTHER PROLIFIC designer, Milo Baughman, enters the scene now. He has been delineating original sofa concepts for many years. Many of them have been neat, soft-edge shapes, but he has done many versions of the U-shape and serpentine component for seating.

The high back and arms create a seating environment. Again, as with the Baldon design, you are enveloped in comfort. Part of the Baughman idea is to provide a sofa that can also function as a room divider. While other designers have pushed the sofa away from the wall by finishing the back in a handsome way or by providing sofa-back tables to help a sofa function as a divider, Baughman really takes a giant step with his design.

In addition, there's a companion storage ottoman that might easily replace the coffee table. The coffee table is a cliche, a solution used when nothing more reasonable or realistic can be found. I'd rather put my feet up on an ottoman and when necessary use that ottoman for seating and storage.

It's hard to tell if this high-back look will proliferate. But I predict there will be copies and knock-offs of this concept before the new 1972 merchandise hits the retail level.

Any Mother Can Have A 'Bad' Baby

Can good mothers have difficult, "bad" babies? They certainly can, says Dr. Louise Bates Ames, author of "Why Good Mothers have Bad Babies." She says there are inborn differences in babies. These differences, she continues, are apparent very early in infancy, some of them in the first few weeks of life.

Babies are very sensitive to the moods of the parents. Therefore, a relatively calm baby can turn into one who is irritable and cranky, if the mother is nervous and panicky.

A few suggestions from her current Family Circle article:

Don't have preconceived ideas about how your child should behave, about the kind of person you want him to be. He's almost bound to disappoint you.

Look at your child objectively, arriving at your own conclusions as to his personality. Ascertain whether he is calm or nervous, if life for him is easy or difficult, and how much he expects from you. He might expect perfect compliance with his wishes, or may compromise with you.

Evaluate your own personality and behavior patterns. Figure out what portions of your personality make it difficult for you and your baby to live in harmony. By doing this, it will be easier to modify your responses, so that you can get along better with your child.

HOW DO YOU SHAPE UP?

Hips, Waistline and tummy "stretched" out of shape!! Thighs too large!! Lax, underexercised muscles don't hold you in. Start today to shape up for the swim suit season.

Recreation Program Funding Is Granted

The Corte Madera Town Council last night agreed to finance the community's $56,000 recreation program, but tightened the reins of what it considered a run-away program last year.

The decision, approved on a 4-to-1 vote with Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff dissenting, followed lengthy discussion in which councilmen split over the question of opening the program to residents of other communities.

At the heart of the controversy, which surfaced two weeks ago, was a question whether Corte Madera tax dollars were used last year to subsidize fee-supported programs used by nonresidents.

Last night, councilmen learned town dollars had been used, but split over the possibility of some impropriety.

All deplored the town's subsidizing recreation activities for nonresident users to the tune of $5,000, but Mayor Holmes S. Norville and Councilman Robert P. Simmons were quick to point out that that amount was for overhead costs such as staff time and rent.

"The overhead would have been paid anyway," Norville said. "You have to be very careful in talking about overhead costs."

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst differed, however, raising questions as to the legality of "giving away taxpayers' dollars," and urged the entire program be restricted to Corte Madera residents.

He was supported by Councilman Byron D. White, who called for putting the matter over for further investigation.

Norville responded that the program's success depended on outside participation in order to insure enough classes would be offered.

Compromise was reached, however, after several motions — one by Colthurst to disqualify outsiders — failed.

The final motion called for financing the program, limiting outside participation to 50 per cent of each class and a review of nonresident fees after the country's price freeze is lifted.

Councilman Wagstaff, the lone vote against the compromise motion, said he could not vote for a program which used tax dollars to duplicate recreational activities already provided by schools and private instructors.

State Prison Head Asks Hiring Of More Guards

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —State prisons chief Raymond Procunier, declaring that the "killings have got to stop," has proposed the emergency hiring of 403 more guards and technicians to end violence at troubled California penitentiaries.

Procunier, director of corrections, estimated the cost during the already fiscally tight year at $3.2 million but warned that without "adequate" security for both convicts and guards the "system will collapse."

Meanwhile, an association of guards warned of what it said was a threatened move by radicals and revolutionaries to infiltrate ranks of guards. It advocated considering the deportation of troublemakers to foreign countries.

Thirty-three persons have been slain in California state prisons since January 1970. Included in the toll are seven employes killed this year.

"The killings have got to stop," Procunier Monday told the state Board of Corrections, which will make a recommendation to Gov. Ronald Reagan, probably next month.

The governor has declared himself "adamantly" opposed to any new state spending this year based on new taxes but has vowed to make California the nation's leader in putting down prison violence.

Procunier recommended the hiring of 318 additional guards along with 85 more technicians for support functions. This would be an increase of 13 per cent in the ranks of guards, who now total about 2,300.

"I don't know of any way to make the killings stop other than improving the feelings of the staff and improving the feelings of the inmates," Procunier said.

"Some people feel that all you have to do is lock them up and throw the key away. But you can't do it that way."

For troubled San Quentin, where three guards and three inmates were slain last month, including Soledad brother George Jackson, the director called for hiring 38 more guards and five medical technicians.

The biggest single buildup would occur at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville where 73 more guards were recommended. Forty-six extra guards were proposed for Folsom Prison—site of a killing last week—while another 23 were suggested for Soledad, long a trouble spot.

The California State Employes Association Monday proposed the hiring of 441 new staff members, most of them guards. A CSEA spokesman said afterward, "We're very pleased with the department's approach."

Halt To State's School Aid Voted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly today overrode appeals for delay and approved a bill proposing the elimination of basic state aid to local schools.

The legislation went to the Senate on a 44-16 vote. A companion measure to submit the question to the voters at next year's election is pending in the Senate.

The bill by Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, calls for the abolition of the guaranteed $125 the state each year contributes to the support of every public school student.

Under the proposal, an estimated $40 million would be shifted away from basic aid and funneled into equalization aid to further prop up low wealth school districts.

But opponents, citing the recent state Supreme Court decision which ruled the current school financing system illegal, called the Collier bill premature and urged that the issue of school finance be tackled next session.

Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, criticized the bill as a "piecemeal approach" because it directed itself at only one element of school finance.

He noted that in view of the court's ruling, the entire school finance system must be overhauled.

He argued, "We should not vote for this until we know exactly where we are going."

Under the constitution, each public school child is guaranteed at least $125 annually in basic state aid—regardless of whether he goes to a school in a wealthy or poor district. Critics argue the apportionment system is inequitable and that more state money should go to the poor districts.

Two Treated After Accident

John Strong, 30, and Karl Strong, 4, both of 45 Buena Vista, Fairfax, were treated for injuries Saturday afternoon at Marin General Hospital.

The hospital, which received them for treatment at 3:52 p.m., said they were injured in an automobile accident. The hospital said the California Highway Patrol and Fairfax police handled the accident, but neither agency had a record of the accident.

The older Strong was treated for bruises of his left chest, and the boy was treated for a bruised left shoulder.

Bill To Permit VD Instruction Passes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The assembly yesterday voted final passage to a bill making it easier for public schools to teach children about venereal disease.

The measure was sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan on a 45-3 vote. There was no debate.

Authored by Assemblywoman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, the bill eliminates the requirement that children must have parental consent/before they can be taught about venereal disease.

The Assembly concurred in amendments inserted by the Senate, which narrowly passed the bill last Wednesday.

Supporters of the bill had contended thatD among teenagers has become "almost as common as the common cold."

College Mapping Bond Vote Drive

The Marin Community College District board, meeting with its 30-member citizens' advisory panel, last night mapped campaign strategy for the district's Nov. 2 bond election.

According to Earlene Jones, district publicist, the campaign will use much the same techniques as used earlier this year when voters narrowly defeated a similar bond measure.

However, she said, the citizens' committee in charge of the campaign will make a special appeal to voters under 21 for support of the $16.7 million bond measure.

The committee is also charged with speaking engagements and fund raising to finance advertising and mailing costs, she said.

The appeal to younger voters probably will be carried by the College of Marin student body and will be held in conjunction with voter registration, she added.

The campaign will kick off tomorrow with the opening of campaign headquarters at the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad Depot in San Rafael. The ribbon cutting will be at 8:30 a.m. and will be sponsored by the Citizens' Committee for Proposition A.

Crossroads Zone Plea Is Advanced

The Novato Planning Commission last night recommended planned commercial zoning for a 5.47-acre portion of the Crossroads area, northwest of South Novato Boulevard and Highway 101.

Commissioners also approved a tentative map of Crossroads Unit 1 by McKeon Construction Co. for 57 four-unit buildings, a total of 228 units on 21.8 acres in the Crossroads area.

McKeon plans a total of 528 units, including townhouses, on 10.5 acres.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

APARTMENTS — Granted Fred C. Mauroni a permit to construct an eight-unit apartment building on the east side of Railroad Avenue, north of Madrone Avenue.

DUPLEXES — Recommended approval of precise development plans by F and F Enterprises for three duplexes on the north side of San Marin Drive east of San Mateo way.

Mailliard Applauds Hub Mundialization

The congressman who represents San Anselmo not only does not plan a congressional investigation of the Hub City's mundialization activities but has even congratulated the city for its international outlook.

A spokesman in the San Francisco office of Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, said yesterday that the congressman "most definitely was not" going to carry out an investigation asked for by a Marin Republican leader.

Susan T. Tennler of Greenbrae, lieutenant governor of the rightist United Republicans of California, last week had sent a telegram to Mailliard asking the investigation, saying "dual citizenship is expressly prohibited by the United States Constitution."

San Anselmo and its council have been targets of such criticism from some quarters since councilmen voted last May to become the first California community to "mundialize" and embrace the concept of world citizenship.

As explained by Norman E. Leach, San Anselman who is executive director of the World Federalist Youth-USA, mundialization means acknowledging that one is a citizen of the world and allows member cities to fly the U.N. flag and to be paired with a sister city in another country.

Congressman Mailliard had written San Anselmo Mayor Kenneth Anderson in July commending the city for its mundialization and as a member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, said he decried isolationism.

Mrs. Tennler was successful in June in having the U.N. flag removed from the city flagpole but it was returned when a new flag pole was erected.

Satellite Launch Delayed Until Friday

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— The launch of an orbiting solar observatory (OSO) and a small hitchhiking satellite have been delayed until Friday because of trouble with an engine control unit in the delta rocket.

Launch director John J. Neilson said the problem was detected Monday in the velocity control system in the Delta second stage. The unit is designed to stop the engine when the rocket reaches the speed required for an orbit 345 miles above Earth.

Two Are Appointed Council Directors

Arthur Costamagna of San Rafael and Robert Simmons of Corte Madera have been appointed directors of the Marin Republican Council.

Costamagna, an attorney, is a commissioner with the state Workmen's Compensation Appeals Board. Simmons, a certified public accountant, has been a Corte Madera town councilman for the past three years.

Trustees Will Consider Administrator Exchange

The San Anselmo School District board, meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Red Hill School, will consider a proposal to exchange former Supt. Stephen L. Parodi for a curriculum coordinator from the county schools office.

Parodi, who stepped down as superintendent last year to become the district's business manager, will transfer his business-accounting supervision to the county office for an initial three-month period.

In return, the district will be assigned Kenneth Barnes who will run the district inservice training program and be an administrative assistant under the proposal.

Tonight's meeting will be devoted primarily to discussion with a panel of educators on the roles, rights, responsibilities and functions of public education.

Spokesmen from the California Teachers Association, the California School Boards Association and the state department of education will participate.

Seamanship Class Set At High School

An eight-week course in basic seamanship will be given by Flotilla 12 of the Coast Guard Auxiliary beginning at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at Tamalpais High School.

The course is open to both adults and teen-agers and is aimed at those interested in sailboats, cruisers or outboards.

Subjects to be covered include maneuvering, charts and piloting, use of the compass, rules of the road and marlinspike seamanship.

Petaluma Woman Treated For Cuts

A 25-year-old Petaluma woman was reported in good condition at Marin General Hospital today with multiple cuts, bruises and scrapes which hospital officials said were received in an auto accident Saturday.

Faye Sugrue, of 804 Victoria Drive, was admitted to the hospital at 9:09 a.m. Saturday. Details of the accident were not available.

Russian Violinist's Vienna Visit Uncertain

VIENNA (UPI)—The Vienna State Opera has no information yet whether controversial Russian musician Mstislav Rostropovich can perform with the Moscow Bolshoi Opera in Vienna next month, an opera spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the Russian cellist was scheduled to conduct a series of guest performances of the Bolshoi between Oct. 5 and 14. But he said that Soviet authorities have failed to inform the opera whether Rostropovich will get an exit permit.

Rock Thrown Into Window of Building

Someone tossed a rock through a large glass window at the vacant Lee Brothers Market building, 957 Seventh Street, Novato yesterday afternoon causing damage estimated at $300, Novato police reported.

A youth, seen running from the scene at 3:30 p.m., is suspected, police said.

Four Video Sets Stolen

At least four television sets were reported stolen during the weekend from McPhail's Inc. in San Rafael.

Clifford Francis Howard, manager for McPhail's, told police that McPhail's at 917 C Street was burglarized between closing Saturday and opening Monday and that at least four television sets were stolen, according to the police report.

Police said entry was gained by cutting a chain link fence in the rear of the firm and prying a sliding door.

Boy Hurt

James Montalvo, 12, of San Francisco, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for head cuts suffered in an accident Sunday at 8:45 p.m. on Highway 101 south of San Antonio Road at the Marin County line. Details of the accident were not available.

The Door To Victory Unlocked By Leading Diamonds Out Early

The other day I found myself locked out of my apartment. The key simply wouldn't turn in the lock. It was a bit after 3 a.m., so ringing the manager's doorbell was out of the question. No fire escape. No window that I could get to. But bridge experts are brainy types. I took another look and discovered I'd been using the wrong key. My training for this sort of emergency came from the kind of hand shown today.

SERIOUS RISK

If you look just at the South and North hands, you'll see that there's a serious risk of losing a trick in each suit. But if you find the winning play in trumps you don't have to lose a trump trick.

How do you guess the winning trumpplay? Should you lead out the ace and king of spades, or should you finesse through one of the opponents for the queen? If you decide to finesse, should you do so through East or through West?

If you'll pardon me for pointing, you're using the wrong key. Try the diamonds instead of the spades.

FAVORABLE ODDS

If you lead out the top diamonds and then give up a diamond, you will set up a diamond trick in dummy if the missing six diamonds break 3-3 or if either opponent has the doubleton queen or doubleton jack. The odds are almost 2 to 1 in your favor. But then you must find a way to get back to dummy for the established diamond.

The surest plan is to lead the ace of spades after winning the first trick with the ace of hearts. Then lead out three rounds of diamonds. If the diamonds break well enough to set up dummy's ten, you are home.

AT FOURTH DIAMOND

The defense cannot beat you by leading a fourth diamond. You discard the losing heart, and if the other defender can ruff you won't have to lose a trump trick. If the defenders lead anything but a fourth diamond, you can get to dummy with the king of spades to lead the ten of diamonds yourself, discarding a heart.

Remember ths hand the next time you're out for a night on the town.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one spade as dealer, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - Q 8 5
♥ - K 10 8
♦ - J 8 7 5
♣ - A J 10.

What do you say?

This sequence shows a hand too weak for an immediate jump to three spades but too strong for a simple raise to two spades.

WEE PALS

By Morrie Turner

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 21, the 264th day of 1971 with 101 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this date in history:

In 1792 France became a republic.

In 1893 the first successful American-made gasoline--operated motor car appeared on the streets of Springfield, Mass. It was designed and built by Charles and Frank Duryea.

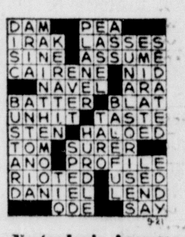

A thought for the day: H. G. Wells said, "Human history becomes more and more a race between education and catastrophe."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Psychiatric Treatment Often Needed By Autistic Children

Mental disorders, such as schizophrenia, may develop in infants as young as four months of age. The parents sense that something is wrong and often consult the family physician because the baby does not respond to affection or lives in a shell. This condition, known as infantile autism, is difficult to treat.

THE AUTISTIC tyke displays a marked indifference to his parents, brothers, sisters and others. Dullness and lack of response to being cuddled may be the earliest symptoms.

Physical development may not be impaired, but late in the second year of life, he may lose the ability to speak, partially or entirely. These tykes fail to progress socially and become aloof. According to a report from the Mayo Clinic, withdrawal from reality is the most common manifestation followed by disturbances in thought and speech.

THE AUTISTIC child has trouble finishing a sentence and is incoherent or mute. He often repeats words in parrotlike fashion. Alterations in mobility may also occur. Some of these youngsters are overactive and others are completely immobile. They may also walk like a robot.

Some autistic children develop a precocious memory which is of little value because it consists of a constant repetition of lines, rhymes, lists of names or states, etc. Still others have phenomenal mechanical skills, but here again, the ability is of limited value.

THE CAUSE of the various childhood schizophrenic syndromes is not known but probably represents a combination of physical and psychogenic factors. There is little evidence that it is hereditary. Organic causes include inherited predispositions to disorders, such as phenylketonuria, infections, poisoning (lead and mercury), nutritional deficiencies and brain tumors.

Psychogenic factors center about the early relationship between mother and infant.

BUT IN MANY instances, there is no evidence that the mother has suffered from inadequate interpersonal relationships. Skilled psychiatric treatment (preferably in an institutional setting) is needed.

THE SKIN AT 80

Mrs. L. P. writes: I am an 80-year-old widow who keeps busy with a house and garden. My skin is not too wrinkled, but it seems to be getting quite dry. Is this to be expected, or can something be done to replenish the oils? I wear a wide-brimmed hat when working in the yard and put cream on my face every night before going to bed. Any suggestions would be welcome.

REPLY

As we grow older, the skin tends to become dry, scaly and inelastic. There is a decline in the activity of the sweat and oil glands, particularly in women. Senile skin is more delicate than that of a baby and must be treated with tender care. Ample rest, a proper diet, oily creams and the use of a mild soap should prove beneficial. Avoid too frequent bathing. For additional information on this subject, send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on the aging skin.

LIVER SPOTS

F. H. writes: Are liver spots on the face considered cancer of the skin?

REPLY

No. Somewhat similar raised and roughened spots may turn into cancer and should be removed or watched carefully.

Governors To Tour The Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Seven U.S. state governors and the governor of Puerto Rico will tour the Soviet Union and Rumania starting Oct. 8.

It will be the first trip of a group of American governors to the Soviet Union since 1959. The State Department said comparable groups of Soviet and Rumanian officials soon will visit the United States.

ROME, Ga. (UPI)—White students at two Rome high schools gave in to black demands Monday in a move school officials said eased racial tensions and ended a school boycott by blacks.

Cyclist, 18, Hurt In Police Chase

An 18-year-old motorcyclist who crashed into a Larkspur police car while being pursued was reported in good condition today in Marin General Hospital.

Gary Ray Schunk of 531 Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera, was arrested and hospitalized Saturday after suffering a broken leg in the crash ending an 80-mile-per hour chase through Greenbrae.

Larkspur police said yesterday the chase began at 12:30 a.m. Saturday after they attempted to stop Schunk for not having a rear license plate.

Instead of stopping, officers said, Schunk sped off along South Eliseo Drive.

During the course of the chase, which included running red lights and stop signs on several Greenbrae streets, officers said Schunk turned off his headlight and successfully evaded a police road block.

He was injured during a collision with a patrol car which was trying to stop him on Via La Cumbre.

When he is released from Marin General, officers said, he will be booked at Marin County Jail.

Contact Lenses Recalled

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Three California optical manufacturers are involved in the recall of more than 2,200 sets of new "soft" contact lenses sold in June and July and found to be contaminated with eye-endangering bacteria.

The bacteria, pseudomonas aeruginosa, can infect the eye, producing pus and irritation and even sight-threatening ulcers on the cornea, the state Public Health Department said Monday.

Doctors dealing with eye care have been warned of the potential problem with the new soft lenses and each purchaser has been told by telephone and letter of the possible danger. The lenses were sold only in California.

State health officials ordered the recall of lenses by two of the firms, Urocom of Los Angeles and Kontour Kontact of Richmond, Calif., after they failed to obtain a special state or federal new drug exemption. It permits the sale of new drugs or products to designated doctors for testing.

The third firm, Soft Lenses Inc., of San Diego, was found not to have contaminated soft contact lenses and did not have to recall its product. All three of the firms now possess the special exemption allowing proper drug investigation.

Extension To Cal Fong Alto Project

Mill Valley Planning Commission last night granted a one-year extension to the Cal Fong Investment Corp., for its plans for a 109-unit housing development in Alto Bowl.

The commission met in special session to take action on the extension request because the previous time restriction would have ended today, according to Tom W. Newton, director of community development.

The request was necessary, Newton said, because of the current ban on building in Southern Marin. The Regional Water Quality Control Board issued a cease-and-desist order June 24 to the Richardson Bay Sanitary District to halt granting sewer connection permits until it stops polluting the bay.

Floating Curtain To Fight Oil Spills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 1,000-foot long floating curtain will be used to combat the next major oil spill that threatens to pollute coastline beaches, the Coast Guard said today.

Designed to act as a barrier, the curtain will be deployed in the open sea to contain the spread of the oil.

Library Sets Book Drive

The annual book drive at the Mill Valley Library has been set for Oct. 2 and 3, to raise money for the library.

David Forsberg, secretary of the library Association asks that no old algebra texts, stolen Gideon Bibles or filled-in crossword puzzles be sent in.

Barrels are located in the library to receive the transplanted books. Good paperbacks and bolumes on gardening, cooking and how to fix things are readily salale Forsberg said.

Vandals Sever Television Cable

Cable television service to Mill Valley, Sausalito and Tiburon was interrupted for about three hours Sunday after the main cable to the three communities was cut, Ron George, plant manager for Televue Systems, Inc. of Marin said.

George said the Armour-covered cable was severed about 8 a.m. in the hills above the Corte Madera grade, probably by someone using a large pair of metal cutters. Service was not restored until 11 a.m., according to George, who said Mill Valley police were investigating the vandalism.

Unique Boat Race In Samoan Isles

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI)—One of the sports highlights of American Samoa is the annual race of the fautasis, 90-foot-long boats with 40 oarsmen, a boat captain and a drum beater to mark time.

Fautasi crews go into training one month before the two-mile race. They live together in a house near their boats, where they maintain strict diets and abstain from alcohol, tobacco and the company of their wives.

Eichler Gets Tentative Nod On Plan

Developer J. L. Eichler yesterday got conditional permission to build three model homes at 1251 Butterfield Road in Sleepy Hollow where he plans to develop 24 lots.

Ralph D. Cairns, deputy zoning administrator for Marin, approved the model homes on condition that Eichler execute a subdivision improvement agreement, deposit improvement bonds with the county, and get assurance from utility companies that utilities will be installed.

The property is located on the southwest side of Butterfield road across from its intersection with Van Tassel Court.

The deputy zoning administrator postponed action on a request for a use permit to continue a nursery school at 1030 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield, at the corner of Butterfly Lane. Marin Community Mental Health Services opened the school for retarded children in July of 1970 and wants a permit to continue.

Cairns gave community mental health services Until Oct. 18 to see if more parking spaces and an unloading zone can be provided.

Renaissance Students Due Free Admittance

After 1,400 students whose classes are studying the Renaissance period have been admitted free to the Renaissance Pleasure Faire, the offer has been withdrawn, according to fair operators.

Phyllis Paterson said yesterday that her staff had only planned on letting in 1,000 students free. When the 1,400 figure was reached, she said, it was decided to discontinue free entry for classes.

The offer had been limited to fifth through 12th grade classes which were engaged in a Renaissance project.

Mrs. Patterson said that teachers may still take their classes to the fair at Black Point which runs for the next two weekends, at reduced rates by making arrangements with the Renaissance Center office in San Francisco.

ENDANGERED SPECIES

As Prairie Dogs Vanish So Does Rare Ferret

By DARRYL STEWART
Toronto Telegram Syndicate
(Last of 12 articles)

The black-footed ferret, a handsome masked member of the weasel family, is today tottering on the brink of extinction — and must be accounted as probably our rarest mammal.

Evidence would indicate that it was never over-abundant, although it was encountered more often at the turn of the century when prairie-dog towns or colonies were numerous. The black-footed ferret is closely associated with prairie dogs and depends entirely on them for its existence, by preying on them or using their burrows for shelter.

Unfortunately, the prairie-dog towns which were formerly numerous were incompatible with agricultural interests. Destruction became indiscriminate, and in many areas complete. With the reduction of the prairie dogs by extensive poisoning campaigns and the elimination of the prairie grasslands, the numbers of ferrets which can live off the prairie dogs has become drastically reduced.

The black-footed ferret is largely nocturnal, which probably accounts for the fact that it was first described by Audubon and James Bachman as late as 1849. It was at least another 24 years afterwards that the next specimen was reported.

This species is the largest of the true weasels and has a very distinctive coloration. Its general ground color is a fawnish offset with contrasting areas of dark-brown or black. It has a black area around the face that forms a mask. The tip of its tail is black and its legs and feet are also black.

Black-Footed Ferret

Its former distribution included southern Alberta and southern Saskatchewan in Canada. In the United States, it was found on the Great Plains from Montana to Texas and Arizona, to 10,500 feet in the Rockies.

The black-footed ferret's present status in Canada is doubtful, although it may still exist in Alberta. It appears to have fared a little better in the United States, where there have been recent confirmed sightings in South Dakota. There have also been single sightings in North Dakota, Texas, Wyoming, and Colorado.

The total population has probably not exceeded 100 individuals in decades. Throughout the continent, between 1946 and 1953 about 70 specimens were seen in 42 different locations. One-third of these specimens were dead. Since 1955, eleven road deaths have been reported.

Remains of black-footed ferrets have been found in coyote stomachs, but it seems doubtful that this small wolf is an important controlling factor. The drive to wipe out prairie dogs has undoubtedly been the key factor in the demise of the black-footed ferret.

Species living in restricted habitats like the black-footed ferret can be destroyed as much by damage or modification of their environment as by hunting.

Man's incredibly destructive and all-consuming population explosion is placing increasingly disastrous pressures on the environment of other animals. The management and preservation of the habitats in which they live is vital.

Two Hearings Set This Week On Point Reyes Master Plan

The National Park Service's proposed master plan and wilderness proposal for Point Reyes National Seashore will get a formal public hearing tomorrow and Thursday in the supervisors' chambers at the Marin Civic Center.

Tomorrow's hearing will be on the master plan for the 64,500-acre park, and Thursday's hearing will deal with the proposed 5,150-acre wilderness area. Both sessions will start at 9 a.m.

Marin organizations and individuals will have a chance to express their views on how the seashore should be developed, and whether the emphasis should be on structured recreation or on natural open areas with a minimum of automobile access.

Marin County's official position is that the seashore should be re-designated a national park to insure the preservation of natural assets. County policy calls for a citizens advisory committee to advise the park service in all phases of planning and development.

The county wants a public transit system to provide access to the park, and the eventual banning of private automobiles inside the park.

The county also wants the 5,150-acre wilderness area, between Mount Wittenberg and Bear Valley Gap, expanded considerably to include other areas like Double Point, Tomales Point, the Esteros, and the Lake Ranch.

Joseph C. Rumburg Jr., director of the western region, National Park Service, will attend both tomorrow and Thursday.

Written statements may be submitted at any time up to 30 days following the public hearings. Such statements should be addressed to the Hearing Office, C/O Superintendent, Point Reyes National Seashore, Point Reyes, Calif. 94956.

Petaluma Eyes Sewer Bond Issue

The Petaluma City Council last night agreed to work toward a January bond election to finance enlargement of the city's sewer plant.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said he believed the bond issue could be substantially lower than the $2 million sewer bond issue which was defeated at the polls in June.

He said exact figures will not be known until next month, but that the amount should be considerably lower since the city is assured of getting an 80 per cent grant for the project where as in June it expected only 50 per cent federal and state financing.

The council also agreed that a citizens committee should be formed soon after the election is formally set so that more discussion can be given to the issue. In June the issue received more than 50 per cent of the vote, but fell far short of the required two-thirds majority.

Meyer told the council the election must be held in January since the city must guarantee local funding by that month to satisfy the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The council has told the water board that if an election is called and fails again, revenue bonds will be sold to finance the state required project.

The Petaluma City Council also:

BURNING — Approved an ordinance banning outdoor burning on Oct. 1 as required by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District and heard Ferald Poznanovich, Sonoma County representative to the board, review pollution standards and district plans.

DREDGING — Heard City Engineer David A. Young report the Army Corps of Engineers has enlarged the scope of the Petaluma River dredging project and that the city must provide addition spoils area. He said he was concerned that more land might not be available. The council asked the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors to reconsider its denial of the city request that the county share in the cost and responsibility of providing spoils areas.

INTERCHANGE — Heard Mayor Helen Putnam report that she attended a meeting of the state Highway Commission in Ventura and that it looked promising that the widening of the East Washington Street overpass of Highway 101 might remain funded for the 1972-73 fiscal year.

AMBULANCE — Approved the purchase of an ambulance at an estimated cost of $16,000.

MERCURY — Agreed to replace dangerous mercury seals in trickling filters at the sewer plant and heard cost of materials might be $11,000, but that a state grant for 80 per cent of the cost is available.

HUD Approval Sought For Cutback

If the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development will approve a cutback in one phase of the project, San Rafael may be able to complete its entire $1.4 million sewer reconstruction project with available funds. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

That was the report given to the San Rafael City Council last night by Dominic J. Selmi of Dan Coleman Associates, consulting engineer for the project.

The federal approval is needed for the city to qualify for $275,000 in federal funds for the project.

Selmi proposed last night a cutback in plans for testing and sealing of existing sewer lines. He told the council that HUD requires a "significant amount" of testing and sealing. Original plans for the project called for $600,000 worth.

But in a revised financing schedule presented last night, Selmi said the entire project could be completed with available funds if HUD will accept a $120,000 expenditure for testing and sealing.

Failing HUD approval of that approach, Selmi offered two choices. If HUD will approve a $250,000 to $300,000 budget for testing and sealing, the entire project could be completed if $130,000 to $180,000 in additional funds can be raised.

No additional funds would be needed if HUD approves a $250,000 to $300,000 budget for sealing and testing, and five smaller construction projects, with an estimated cost of $228,980, are deleted from the overall project.

Selmi's new figures were required when bids for the first stage of the project came in higher than had been estimated. First bids, 40 per cent higher than estimates, were rejected in July.

New bids were opened Sept. 2 and were about 10 per cent higher than estimated. The council last night, however, awarded the $534,592 contract to Maggiora and Ghilotti Inc. of Corte Madera, pending approval by HUD.

Selmi blamed the high bids on "the same inflationary pressures and escalations" that all construction projects have experienced.

He cited a 25 to 35 per cent increase in construction costs in the last two and a half years; state division of highways requirements where sewers meet highways; a reduction in the proposed HUD grant and delays by HUD in approving the grant.

In addition to awarding a contract for the first phase of the project to Maggiora and Ghilotti, Selmi last night recommended the city revise the scope of its proposed testing and sealing project; delete the five smaller construction projects; apply to HUD for an increased grant, and advertise for bids for the remainder of the project in December.

The council awarded the bid and directed Selmi and city staff to proceed on his other recommendations.

San Rafael Takes Steps To Purchase Courthouse Square

The San Rafael City Council moved last night toward eventual acquisition by the city of the old Courthouse property.

The council directed City Mgr. James H. McCown to discuss the possibility with county officials and directed the city staff to begin developing possible use plans for the site in the heart of downtown San Rafael.

Acquisition was proposed last night by Mayor C. Paul Bettini who said that if the city didn't develop the property, "it is unlikely that it will be done by anyone for quite a number of years."

He said he was concerned about the appearance of the square and its effect on business in downtown San Rafael.

The 99-year-old courthouse was gutted by fire May 25 and is now being demolished.

Other councilmen supported Bettini's proposal. Fred E. Jensen said the plan would need public support and Lawrence F. Mulryan said the "concept is good," but warned that the city should proceed cautiously because the square is "such an important piece of property."

The council in 1969 offered the county $500,000 and half of any profit the city made on the property in 1969, but the county held fast for $750,000.

There have been several plans for private development of the square, but all have fallen through.

The San Rafael City Council also:

PARK — Officially accepted the deed to Schoen Park, a privately financed and constructed minipark on East Canal Street. The deed had been accepted by Councilman Mulryan at dedication ceremonies at the park Sunday. The park was developed by Project REC and named after its prime supporter and worker, San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commissioner Robert C. Schoen.

ZONING — Rezoned from planned commercial to multiple residential two parcels owned by Charles Bell on Marin Center Drive with the conditions that the parcels be combined into one and that an overall development plan be submitted to the planning commission before construction is started on the site.

COLUMNS — Authorized spending $600 for moving two columns which were part of the Fifth Avenue side of the old courthouse for use in an official city entrance being formulated by the city's beautification committee for the Irwin Street exit of Highway 101.

LEGISLATION — Directed McCown to notify State Sen. Peter H. Behr of the city's opposition to proposed legislation which would prevent cities from prohibiting and/or setting restrictions, such as for density or lot size requirements, on mobile home parks.

Supervisors To Discuss Prison

Marin County supervisors plan at a trip to Sacramento next Monday afternoon to discuss the future of San Quentin Prison with Marin legislators and officials of the state Department of Corrections.

County Administrator John F. Barrows said the meeting is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. in the office of Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

As a long-range plan, Marin officials want the state prison moved out of the county. In the meantime, they will ask the state to make San Quentin a minimum security prison so that the most violent and hardened convicts will be sent to other institutions instead of being concentrated at San Quentin.

Proxmire Charges Plane Costs 'Covered'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force covered up a $300 million cost increase in production of the C5A cargo plane, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged Monday.

Proxmire said the Pentagon was asked as recently as May by the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee whether there were any problem areas which could increase the cost of the plane. He said the Pentagon replied there were not, although "it was known by the Air Force that the program had increased by $300 million from June of 1970."

Non-League Tests Face Marin Prep Gridder

By RON LENT

Marin County Athletic League teams confront non-league competitors in the second of two tuneups this weekend.

It will be Marin versus Alameda County in three of the four football contests involving local prepsters Friday.

The lineup: Redwood at Encinal of Alameda, 3:30 p.m.; Tamalpais visits Skyline of Oakland, 3:30 p.m.; and Terra Linda hosts Harry Ells of Oakland, 8 p.m. at San Rafael High. San Marin takes on Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park on Petaluma High School's field, 8 o'clock.

On Saturday, Novato hosts Petaluma High, 1 p.m.; Marin Catholic takes on Piner of Santa Rosa, there, 7:30 p.m.; Drake plays at Vallejo High, 8 p.m.; and San Rafael plays invading Montgomery of Santa Rosa, 8 p.m.

Of the four local Marin County Athletic League delegations participating Friday Redwood faces possibly the most explosive enemy.

The Giants, fresh from a 28-7 win over tough Sacred Heart of San Francisco Friday night, hit the road for the second straight week to battle a swift Encinal aggregate. The Jets, a 27-6 conquerer of San Marin Saturday, have an awesome running attack centering around the Shelton brothers, Eric and John. The pair ripped through San Marin's line like gangbusters, according to losing coach Bob Martin.

Not to be outdone, the Larkspur team has the Bill and Daryl Edralin act. During their 48-minute performance in San Francisco last week, the pair chewed up 121 yards and split two touchdowns. The Giant gems also received ample rushing support from basketballer Mike Connor.

While Redwood seeks its second win in as many outings, Tamalpais battles to even its mark at 1-1. The Indians, who surrendered a 24-15 decision to visiting Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland Saturday, face a stronger Alameda County team in Skyline. The Titans, though generally conceded to be a step behind Encinal, are a tougher outfit than O'Dowd.

Thus, Indian coach Mike Davlin has a tough assignment this week, but his enthusiastic troops could surprise, providing the Red and Blue reduce what the mentor considered "mental errors."

With Tam and Redwood busing elsewhere for engagements, Terra Linda High will be the center of local attention when entertaining Harry Ells of Oakland that evening. The Trojans, an easy 21-12 victor over Santa Rosa High in their initial outing, drew mixed reactions from coach Don Lucas, despite displaying potent passing. The biggest plays were quarterback Kevin Donohoe touchdown aerials covering 71 and 31 yards to Sean Casey and Steve Miles, respectively.

Though such sequences impressed the ever enthusiastic Trojan audience, Lucas remained as collected as the game tickets, saying, "It was a typical first contest performance. We made some mistakes, but that was to be expected in this, the first game, particularly with all those juniors."

The veteran Trojan leader lauded Donohoe's effort by stating, "He did a good job. And Miles ran some nice patterns. But it will be better when (halfback John) Buckley returns next week. He should be able to help" against visiting Harry Ells of Oakland Friday night at 3 o'clock on the same field.

Thus, Lucas gains one but apparently loses another, namely junior Jon Loeberg, a 6-foot, 210-pound linmen; he reinjured a dislocated finger and will miss next Friday's Falcon tilt.

Unlike Terra Linda, San Marin has dropped both of its tilts — and by wide margins. After bowing 34-6 to Gunn of Palo Alto and 27-6 to Encinal, Mustang boss Bob Martin commented: "we've made enough errors to last the rest of the year."

It will be his job to rectify transgressions such as dropped passes and leaky pass blocking if the Novato-based gridders are to spoil Rancho Cotate's 1-0 mark. The Rohnert Park team trounced Marin Catholic 34-20 in the winner's opener. Coach Clyde Brock's Cougars exhibited a quick-striking attack behind quarterback Steve Wlodarczyk.

Through possessing sterling players at the scoring slots, Brock is aware that San Marin will be "up" for this game in view of the continued progress of Mustang field general Hoza Wright. The southpaw, erratic in the inaugural against Gunn, repeatedly hit his targets in the Encinal tilt, only to have several completions precluded by bobbles.

Twin Bill For A's Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland A's have clinched a spot in the American League playoffs but still have plenty of incentive remaining.

1. They would like to win at least 100 games. 2. They would like to help Vida Blue win a couple of more games and 3. They'd like to see Reggie Jackson win the American League home run championship.

The A's start towards these goals at 6 p.m. this evening at the coliseum when they entertain the Chicago White Sox in the twi-night doubleheader.

Chuck Dobson (15-4) and Blue (23-8) will hurl for the A's against Chicago's Tommy John (12-15) and Bart Johnson (11-10). The 22-year-old Blue is winless in his last four starts and most of the A's feel a couple of more victories for the ace lefthander would put him in a fine position for possibly a Cy Young Award.

Oakland now is 97-55 on the season with nine games remaining at home. Manager Dick Williams said he'd like to win 100 games.

Jackson is tied for the league home lead with Bill Melton of the White Sox and Norm Cash of Detroit. All have hit 30.

"A guy who doesn't fold under pressure is going to win it," said Jackson of the longball title chase he'lw be waging to night and Wednesday with Melton.

JINXVILLE?

Giants To Visit The Astrodome

HOUSTON (UPI) —Jinxville, in the form of the Houston Astrodome, awaits the pennant-pushing San Francisco Giants tonight.

Manager Charlie Fox and his crew of light bats invade the home of the Houston Astros for a three-game series. This is the same indoor ballpark where the Giants have lost 19 of their last 24 games, including four out of six this year.

Lefty John Cumberland (9-5) of the Giants will go tonight against Jack Billingham (8-15).

Despite being in the throes of a horrendous batting slump since Sept. 3, the Giants still cling to a 1 1-2 game lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

Bobby Bonds, Dick Dietz, Willie Mays, Alan Gallagher, Ken Henderson, Tito Fuentes and Chris Speier—the heart of the Giants regulars—have gone 47-for-339 since Sept. 3. That's an aggregate .139 batting average.

Pennants are seldom born on .139 batting averages.

Following Cumberland in the Giants' rotation against the Astros will be Juan Marichal (15-11) versus rookie James Rodney Richard (2-1) and Gaylord Perry (14-12) against Don Wilson (16-8) Thursday night.

After Houston, the Giants play three games at Cincinnati and then finish up with three more at San Diego.

One Bright Note: No 49ers Injured

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— the team escaped the game without injury.

Nolan was also asked how come tight end Bob Windsor and halfback Doug Cunningham start when Ted Kwalick and Vic Washington appear more explosive.

He indicated Windsor and Cunningham were better blockers and had more experience, but also promised that Kwalick and Washington would get plenty of work this season.

The San Francisco 49ers outgained Atlanta 372 to 266, so how come the Falcons hung a 20-17 loss on the prospectors in a nightmarish NFL opener?

"I've only looked at part of the films," coach Dick Nolan said here Monday, but then he added what everybody knew was the story of the game. "We gave the ball away seven times (four interceptions and three fumbles) and it's pretty hard to win a game like that."

"Still, we nearly did it. Our defensive team played tough football."

The 49er defense knocked the ball out of Atlanta's hands seven times, too. But such were the bounces of the pigskin Sunday that four took Atlanta bounces, two were whistled dead in close calls and only one wound up in the arms of a 49er.

Coach Nolan reported that

A Long Wait For Lions

DETROIT (UPI) — They planned for it, pointed for it and prepared for it during the entire off-season. Now the Detroit Lions are going to have to wait 12 more weeks for another chance to beat the Minnesota Vikings.

Minnesota, master of the Central Division and perhaps the entire National Football League as well, defeated Detroit in the nationally televised Monday night game by a 16-13 score. It was the Vikings' seventh win over the Lions in a row.

The two reigning heavyweights in the so-called "Black-and-Blue Division" don't meet again until Dec. 11 in the by then frozen territory which houses the Vikings.

"We should have won," lamented Detroit Coach Joe Schmidt, which is exactly the same thing he said last year when his Lions blew a 10-point lead in the fourth quarter of the second game between them.

The Lions then schemed and dreamed all winter, spring and summer of the day the two teams would meet again. But the Vikings came out on top again and are one up on the Lions in their quest for their fourth straight division crown.

Detroit blew another lead in this one, a 13-0 advantage accomplished on its acumen and the rare misfortunes of Minnesota in the first half.

Fred Cox connected on a nine-yard field goal with 5:18 left in the game to win it after tying the contest with 9:40 to play by putting a three-pointer through the goal posts from 42 yards out.

Errol Mann, the second most effective kicker in pro football last season, suffered through a "nightmare" night in which he missed five of seven field goal attempts — including one of 33 yards which would have tied the game with seven seconds left.

"We dropped the football a couple of times," Coach Bud Grant of Minnesota said. "It took a quarter and a half for us to recover from that. Last year I think we fumbled once inside our 35 all year—and this time we do it twice and have one pass intercepted in the first half."

Mann had kicked a 20-yard field goal the first time Detroit touched the ball in the game and Detroit added another score when quarterback Greg Landry hit running back Mel Farr with a three-yard touchdown pass. This score came after rookie Jeff Wright of Minnesota had fumbled without being hit on the Detroit kickoff and Craig Cotton fell on the ball on the Vikings' 21.

Dave Osborn fumbled without any help from the other side the next time Minnesota got the ball but Mann's 39-yard field goal try hit the crossbar. Mann also missed twice from 53 yards, and once from 36 yards. However, he did connect on one of 36 yards.

Cox got Minnesota on the ucoreboard when he booted a 13-yarder with just six seconds left in the first half to cut the gap to 13-3.

Wide receiver Bob Grim caught seven passes for 126 yards but the most vital was the one of 45 yards which quarterback Gary Cuozzo threw for a touchdown the first time the Vikings got their hands on the football in the second half. Grim fell on the two but got up and stepped hesitantly into the end zone for the score when defender Lem Barney made no effort to hit him on the ground.

"We had better field position and we moved the ball in the second half," Grant said.

Cuozzo wound up with 232 yards passing on 19 completions in 32 attempts, without being thrown for a loss once. His rushers, held to nine yards in the first half, ended with 43 yards for the game.

Lutz Wins Hardcourt Net Title

Lutz, 24, a former U.S. Davis Cupper, invariably got his first serve where he wanted it and lost only four points all afternoon while serving. He won two games at love while serving en route to a 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 victory.

Olmedo tried to anticipate Lutz' moves but was unable to cope with the speed of the younger player. Olmedo's big points came on accurate placements. Lutz also had an advantage in that he grew up playing on cement surfaces such as the one here.

Lutz won $6,000 and Olmedo, who returned to the pro tour this year after a six-year absence, picked up a check for $3,000.

Devine Back In Hospital After Brief Office Visit

Devine had hoped to be back on the sidelines today—despite a broken leg suffered in Sunday's 42-40 loss to the New York Giants—but doctors told him he should not.

Devine instead met with his assistant coaches, watched films and then talked with newsmen before returning to St. Vincent's Hospital.

—"I'm feeling fine. Much better than I thought I would. I'm more worried about Mike Mc Coy than I am about myself. He's a heck of a lot more important to this team than I am. Mike has a sprained ankle and he'll probably be out about 10 days."

—"I honestly don't think the loss will have any effect on the team's morale. I'm proud of the way they came back and didn't give up. If—after we got behind 28-7—the score would have ballooned to 55-12, then I would have been concerned."

It's Official: Cal Ineligible For Rose Bowl

BURLINGAME (UPI) —The Pacific-8 Conference Council has officially ruled out any possibility of the University of California landing a Rose Bowl bid this year.

Meeting on the San Francisco peninsula Monday, the faculty athletic representatives and athletic directors from the eight conference schools voted to uphold the probationary status of the Bears invoked by the NCAA. It had placed the Bears on probation for failing to predict a 1.6 freshman grade average for track sprinter-football player Isaac Curtis.

If the Bears should ould win the Pac-8 football title, the secondplace team would represent the conference in the Rose Bowl at the end of this season.

Cal's probationary status will be further discussed at an Oct. 6 meeting of the Pac-8 Council.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Orioles' Dobson Wins His 19th

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Pat Dobson is a better-than 500 major league pitcher for the first time in his career today —by one game —and needs just "one more" to place him in that special class of 20 game winners.

The 29-year old right-hander, acquired by the Baltimore Orioles from the San Diego Padres last winter, started the 1971 season with a 25-35 career record. His 8-4 victory over the New York Yankees Monday night gave him a 19-8 season record and moved him to within one game of a 20-victory season —the goal of every major league pitcher.

The win also built the Orioles' first-place lead in the American League East to 6 1-2 games and reduced to five their magic number for clinching a third straight division title.

Dobson allowed eight hits and four runs in eight innings but trailed, 4-3, going into the ninth as a result of a homer by Roy White in the eighth and needed some of that famous Baltimore late-inning lightning to get the victory.

He got it when Boog Powell led off the ninth with a double and pinch-runner Chico Salmon scored the tying run on Don Buford's infield out. Then the Yankee bullpen fell apart and the Orioles scored four more runs with the big blow a two-run single by Bob Grich.

The Cleveland Indians beat the Washington Senators, 3-1, after losing a week-old suspended game, 8-6, in the 20th inning and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Minnesota Twins, 3-0, in Monday's only othr big league action. The Philadelphia Phillies' scheduled doubleheader in Montreal, the only National League activity, was postponed by rain.

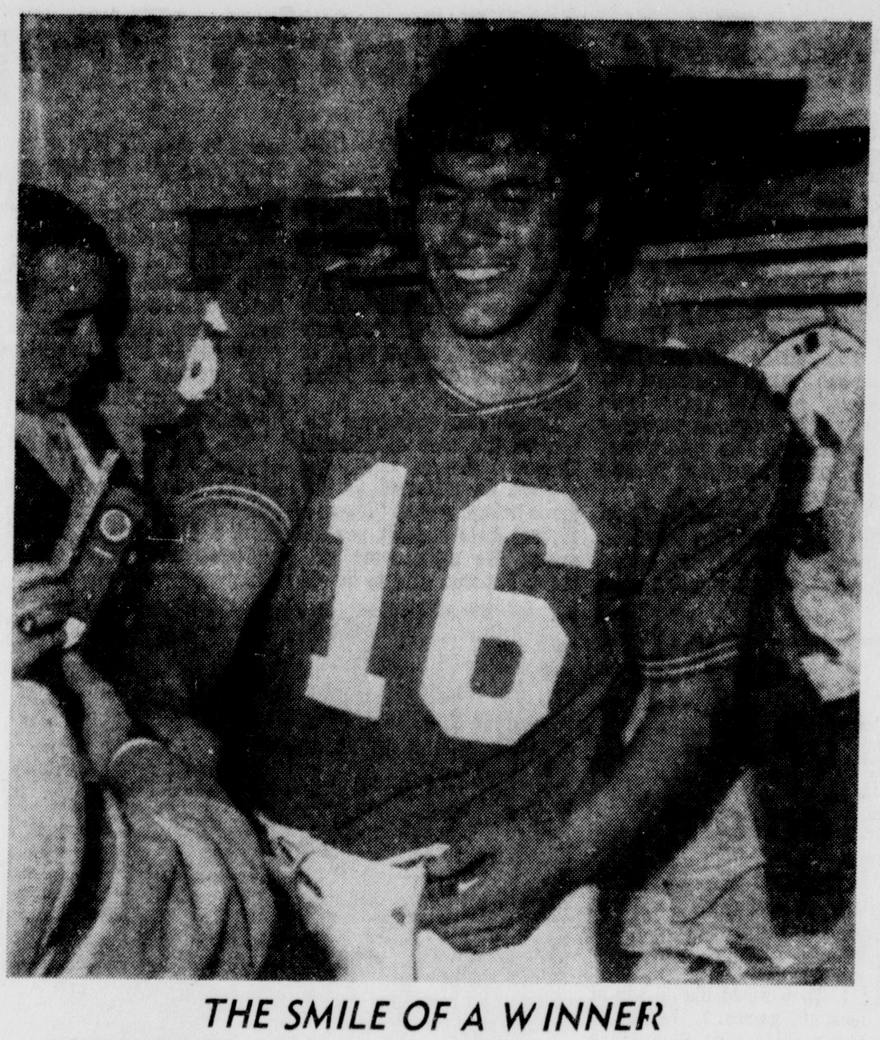

The Senators and Indians resumed their suspended game, started in Cleveland a week ago, with the score tied at 5-5 in the 17th inning. Denny McLain picked up his 10th victory of the year when the Senators scored three runs in the 20th inning with the help of three walks by Sam McDowell and a key error by Kurt Bevacqua on a double play grounder.

It may have been the most forgettable game of the season —there were 383 fans in the stands when it was resumed — as Cleveland set a record by issuing 19 walks and team records for most walks —30 — and most pitchers —18 —were set.

The players had mercy on the fans with a 2:04 second game in which McLain went eight innings and lost his 21st game. Alan Foster yielded three hits in 7 1-3 innings for his eighth win and Fred Stanley homered for the Indians.

Skip Lockwood pitched a fourhitter and drove in a run with a swinging bunt to win his 10th game for the Brewers. Andy Kosco accounted for the Brewers' third run with a homer off Ray Corbin, who suffered his 11th loss.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, needing one victory to clinch the National League East title, send 19-game winner Dock Ellis against Jerry Reuss (14-14) and the St. Louis Cardinals tonight, while the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers continue their run to the wire in the West.

THE SMILE OF A WINNER

A happy Jim Plunkett received congratulations in the New England Patriots dressing room Sunday after leading a 20-6 win over the heavily favored Oakland Raiders in Foxboro, Mass. The Stanford University product threw two touchdown passes.

(UPI Telephoto)

Ex-Raider Blasts QB Lamonica

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI)— Don't try to tell Ike Lassiter the New England Patriots' win over the Oakland Raiders was a fluke.

Lassiter, no stranger to the way Oakland plays, predicted it. He didn't say the score would be anything like the 20-6 shellacking Oakland got from the Pats, but he predicted New England would win.

"I know what it takes to beat Oakland," he said last Thursday. "You gotta put presure on (Daryle) Lamonica."

That's exactly what Lassiter said and that is exactly what the big defensive e n d acquired from the Raiders last year, did. Lamonica got the ball and directed the first 10 plays. But instead of going on to a touchdown, he was on the Pats' 43 and had to punt.

"They wanted to take it to us," Lassiter said. "They wanted to establish their running game, but they had to go off-tackle because none of their backs can run outside. So we made a few adjustments and stopped them, not cold, but we stopped them."

Lassiter had that grin he had last week when he said, "The big thing to do is to lay a lick on the side of Lamonica's head." He kept talking about the game and how he kept encouraging the defensive line to keep charging and not give up.

"Then the Mad Bomber had to go to the air," Lassiter said, "and when you keep the pressure on Lamonica, when you get close to him, he throws the ball away. Even if his receiver is wide open, if he sees a little rush coming at him, he unloads the ball too quick. So we put a little rush on him. "Yaa-hooo!" Lassiter's yell echoed through Schaefer Stadium.

The business for this week is the Detroit Lions, who ought to be smarting after their 16-13 loss to Minnesota Monday night. Three members of the Patriot defensive secondary, Clarence Scott, Don Webb and Larry Carwell, are injured, but fullback Jim Nance says he'll be ready to go Sunday.

"I have to play Sunday," Nance said. "I've been out of action too long. If I'm out much longer, I'll be out of shape." Nance was grinning almost as broadly as the players who were actually in the game. His dislocated toe kept him out of action.

"They thought they'd roll over us 50-0," Nance said. "That's what it was.

"We didn't have to play catchup for a change, and we could play a normal offense."

Monzon 'Ready' For Griffith

With just five days to go, both fighters eased up Monday on heavy workouts, turning to reflex sharpening and light sparring sessions for the Sept. 25 fight in the downtown Luna Park closed stadium.

Both also worked out on the bags late Monday afternoon, the Argentine first and Griffith later, but they still have not met since Griffith's arrival last week.

Football

CLEVELAND — A federal grand jury was to convene for the second consecutive day today to investigate possible anti-trust violations of the National Football League — including alleged blacklisting of players.

Scheduled to testify was Rommie Loudd, personnel director for the New England Patriots.

Loudd, along with John Danahy, director of security for the NFL and Paul Brown, coach and general manager of the Cincinnati Bengals, testified behind closed doors Monday.

NEW YORK — National Football League teams set an opening day attendance record, it was announced Tuesday by the office of commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The two largest crowds attended games between Houston and Cleveland and Los Angeles and New Orleans. A crowd of 73,387 showed up at Municipal Stadium while 70,915 poured through the turnstiles at Tulane Stadium in New Orleans.

Baseball

BOSTON — The future of the Washington Senators was expected to be settled today when American League club owners meet with baseball commissioners Bowie Kuh and one or two prospective pu chasers.

The special session called by league president Joe Cronin was believed facing two major decisions, whether to keep the financially-ailing Senators in Washington and how to make up an estimated $3.5 million difference between the supply and the demand.

Tennis

NEW YORK — Gladys Heldman, coordinator of the Virginia Slims tennis tournaments, today denied Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong was offered $56,000 to play on the American indoor circuit.

Nebraska Remains In Top Spot

NEW YORK (UPI) —In a week that saw nearly every team in the top 20 win by a rout, even a 43-point victory wasn't enough to topple Nebraska from the top spot in the United Press International ratings.

That's what happened to Notre Dame as the Fighting Irish drubbed Northwestern 507, but the Cornhuskers held on to their No. 1 ranking with a lesser rout of Minnesota, 35-7.

With 33 of the 35 coaches in UPI's ratings board participating, Nebraska got 25 first-place votes and a total of 307 points, while Notre Dame received the remaining eight first-place votes and a total of 292.

Texas, with 226 points, held onto the No. 3 spot, but Michigan, which clobbered Virginia 56-0, sneaked past idle Ohio State for fourth place. Following the Buckeyes was Alabama, No. 6 for the second week.

Auburn, which opened its season with a 60-7 rout of Chattanooga, leaped from No. 10 into seventh place while Tennessee slipped back a notch into eighth despite trouncing the U.of California at Santa Barbara, 48-6. Arkansas and Colorado, which both won big over the weekend finished out the top 10 in ninth and tenth place respectively.

Oklahoma, 12th last week, moved up one spot to No. 11 after opening its season with a 30-0 whitewashing of Southern Methodist while Stanford, last week's No. 11 switched places with the Sooners, dropping to 12th.

A three-way tie between Penn State, Washington and Georgia settled No. 13. The Nittany Lions opened their season crushing Navy, 56-3, while Georgia and Washington won their second games of the season.

Arizona State, Southern California and Louisiana State finished 16th, 17th and 18th, but the final top 20 berth resulted in a tie between North Carolina, a newcomer to the football ratings, and Georgia Tech.

Minnesota coach Murray Warmath, a member of UPI's ratings board, summed up Nebraska's strength after Saturday's game. When asked what the turning point was, Warmath replied, "when they blew the opening whistle to start the game."

But Northwestern coach Alex Agase, also a member of the ratings board, was equally impressed with Notre Dame after his Northwestern team suffered its worst defeat of his tenure there.

Said Agase: "Now I know how David would've felt if he'd missed Goliath with that rock."

COLLEGE NOTEBOOK

'Real' Home Game For Sonoma State

By RALPH CHATOIAN

There will be another first in Sonoma State College's young football program Saturday — the first varsity grid game on the college campus.

The Cossacks will take on Oregon Tech at 1:30 p.m. on the Rohnert Park school's new football field. Last year's home games were played at Bailey Field in Santa Rosa.

New scoreboard, new field and new seating facilities to handle about 1,500 persons will be unveiled for the inaugural. Coach Carl Peterson would like nothing better than to break in the field with a victory.

The Cossacks lost their season opener Saturday in Whittier, 10-7, in a defensive show. It was 3-0 at half, Whittier in front, with both teams scoring their lone touchdowns in the second half.

"I was pleased with our defense," said Peterson yesterday, "but we're goin g to have to go some on offense. Dropped passes, holding penalties which stopped drives, these will have to be corrected."

Sonoma State got out in front in the third quarter, 7-3, on a touchdown set up by the defense. Bob Sears, defensive back who played his high school ball at Novato High, intercepted a pass and returned it 40 yards to the Whittier 20. Eventually quarterback Ernie Simon threw a one-yard toss to fullback John Buckey on a play-action pass, and Sonoma lit the scoreboard. The kick by Ray Rivers was good. But the lead lasted only until the fourth quarter when Whittier scored the winner.

But it's a new ball game this week, and Peterson can remember back a year ago when the Cossacks made the trip to Klamath Falls, Ore., to take on Oregon Tech. It was snowing and before long, his cold Cossacks were behind 20-0. But when the game ended, Sonoma State was on top, 21-20.

"I expect another tough game Saturday," said Peterson.

THINGS DON'T look all that good for the water polo program at College of Marin. Coach Bob Justice has only five eligible boys out for the team and "I need at least 10 players," he said yesterday.

"We had 10 out last year, but it seems so many of the good swimmers from the local high schools have gone off to four-year colleges."

THE WOMEN are getting into the act in Sonoma State volleyball, leaving Saturday for a clinic at Cal State Hayward. Sonoma State will be competing in the Northern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (NCIAC). First match for the Sonoma State gals will be Oct. 5, a home date with Santa Rosa Junior College.

Pop Warner Scores

The Redwood Junior Giants dumped San Marin 21-0 but Redwood Gremlin edition dropped a 5-0 decision to the Novato-based Colts in Pop Warner play Saturday in Larkspur.

Two Cagers Arrested For Pot

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) —Two North Carolina State basketball players were arrested Monday on charges of possessing marijuana and their fate as athletes may hang on a court's decision.

Paul Coder, a 6-9 center and the captain, was arrested with substitute forward Bob Huets in a park adjacent to the university campus.

Police took Coder and Huets into custody about noon when they approached a car that had been under surveillance. The 1964 Ford is registered to Norman Bruce Coder.

Police said they found about five ounces of marijuana on the students and in the car. Coder and Huets each were charged with one count of illegal possession of marijuana.

Willis Casey, the university's athletic director, said action would be taken against the two if they are found guilty, but he was unable to say what the measures would be.

The school scholarship committee would have jurisdiction over their athletic grants while their status as students would be reviewed by the university.

The school said in a statement that "depending upon the decision of the court, the university may refer the students' cases to the student judical board.

North Carolina Gridder Dies Of Heat Stroke

The 6-2, 224-pound sophomore from Staten Island, N.Y., had been in a coma since collapsing during wind sprints in 90-degree weather Sept. 6.

After Arnold collapsed, a Raleigh newspaper, the News and Observer, reported that Coach Bill Dooley had not given his team a water break in pregame practice drills.

The paper later reported Dooley was advised by university doctors to start giving water breaks to prevent future heat strokes.

Marin Baseballers Drop Doubleheader

The 1971 Summer League AAA Champs' timely hitting proved to be the difference, though the vanquished outhit the visitors 22 to 11. Dan Caventy belted a solo home run for Marin in the sixth inning of the first game.

Timmer Triumphs

William Timmer topped Hillers Mens Wear, 5-2, behind the timely hitting of John Leaird and Randy Mason in San Rafael Recreation Department softball last night at Albert Field.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

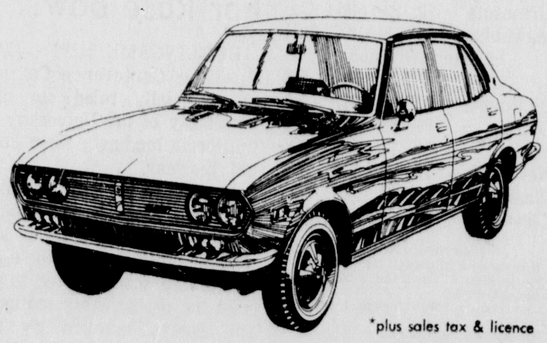

Most beginning women bowlers should start the approach from a point about 12 feet behind the foul line. This is about 18 inches in front of markers usually placed on the lanes, which men use as a guide. Move back if you feel you are crowding your approach, or closer if you're finishing too far behind the foul line.

Hunting Trips Can Be Costly

By AL GIDDINGS

I just received a letter addressed to Jack Schaub of Sacramento from Howard Leach of Sacramento that came to me by mistake. The envelope was addressed to me Howard, as you remember, is my hunting friend from Sacramento who charged (or attempted to) Mary and me for the spirits which he brought along on our sagehen hunt.

Now you can judge for yourself his fraudulent claims. You might wonder how he could possibly send me such a telltale letter by mistake. Well, he's sort of a professor type — the absent minded kind that you read so much about. In fact he recently took his wife and two daughters on a trip to British Columbia. They drove, pulling a trailer all the way.

About the second day, Barbara — Leach's wife — and the two girls noticed that their dad was so absorbed in thought that he wasn't answering them for hours at a time. They decided to play a game. Every time they discussed "Daddy" they used the name "Hubert." At the end of three days, one evening Howard asked them who this fellow "Hubert" was that was so prominent in their talks.

HERE'S HOWARD'S letter:

"Dear Brother Schaub:

"As you well know, our recent year's hunting expeditions have become more costly. This is due in part to the attrition in the hunting party. Both H. Leach, Sr. and Army Armstrong no longer accompany us and contribute financially. In addition, several of our 'close' friends no longer care to hunt with us; others have found happier hunting grounds. The result has been that we have had to rely heavily on Al and Mary Giddings to help us finance our costly trips. Recently Al has been questioning the costs and how we go about assessing him and Mary! He has now discovered that it is more costly for him to campout with us than enjoy the luxury of a motel and cafe.

"Unfortunately, I let the cat out of the bag on the last trip, found out that one-half the grocery bill at the Mayfair in Reno was for the 'booze' I bought. I let this slip out in a conversation with Bob Wise at Webber Lake when I laughingly said,'Have a drink of free liquor!' Giddings overheard this, made a fast calculation and discovered that my $23 grocery bill for the sage hen shoot included one quart of whiskey, one gallon of wine and two six-packs of beer. This 'overhead' cost I explained was standard and was exacted for my labor in guiding him and Mary to their limits of grouse. I explained that you and I customarily charge them, but it's always been in the form of an alcoholic beverage which of course we consume around the campfire after the hunt. But to put it mildly, he is raising hell!

"Frankly, he wants to be provided the luxury of a guided and well tendered hunt, but on his terms. He and Mary have indicated that they plan to participate in our coming deer hunt, but that they may reside in a motel ten miles from camp! Be this the case, it becomes urgent that some other arrangement be in order so that we can be compensated for this loss of revenue.

"I BELIEVE WE will have to prevail upon them to share in the total cost of the hunt with some of the enclosed itemized costs for services. However, we should indicate to them that we would be willing to let them furnish the transportation in their recently acquired Suburban with its 4-wheel drive, air conditioner, six seats. I suggest we offer him one cent per mile. He would have to buy the gas, and pay other such costs as breakdowns. You should particularly note our car labor charges if he should have a car breakdown. Even a minor breakdown should serve to provide us a beverage supply for five years of future hunting.

Please make whatever changes or additions in the following itemized costs, and I will convey our schedule to Al along with an invitation to join us at our happy hunting camp!"

"Sincerely,
Howard Leach"

Raiders Unhurt, San Diego Next

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders were stunned but unhurt after falling 20-6 to New England in their National Football League opener.

Oakland apparently got through its opener without injury so they'll be in good shape for next Sunday's battle at San Diego, where the Chargers are flying high after upsetting Kansas City 21-14 last Sunday.

Defensive end Ben Davidson said the Raiders "were flat" during their collapse against the Jim Plunket-led Patriots.

PREPS

"We'll do all right once we cut down on these mistakes," Martin concluded.

Mental blocks, not errors, are troubling Novato coach Al Scott as he prepares his troops for Petaluma. The Trojans, the victor over Drake 12-7 in the first contest this year for both squads, hope to compound the Hornets' non physical difficulties. "We just can't seem to put more than one score on the board," Scott claimed.

The strong willed coach is working this week on the offense. "It seems we always have a good defense," he noted.

The Black and Gold will need a stout defense in stopping the ball control-oriented visitors. Coach Howard Cadenhead's offense features quarterback Ken Griffith, a good leader with an adequate arm. The running of Bob Gillis presents the most immediate threat to Hornet defensive security.

Scott expressed confidence that when the offense comes around, so will Hornet victories.

Conversely, when the Marin Catholic defense blossoms, Wildcat coach Bruno Banducci will probably earn his initial triumph. For now, the one-time Stanford University guard relies on the running of fullback Pat Parnow plus the passing of alternate quarterbacks Steve Sherry or Steve Schaumleffel.

Despite the quarterback question mark and the 0-2 slate to date, Banducci is not outwardly troubled by early season developments. "Two games don't make the whole year. Anyway, I'd gladly settle for 7-2, and I'm sure the kids feel the same way. We've just got to pick ourselves up and start winning."

These words also apply to the Drake (0-1) situation. Coach Bob Franceschini's footballers succumbed to a Petaluma rally Friday night, 12-7 but the San Anselmo group served notice that possesses hard-hitting defense, if the play of tackle Don Seward and linebacker Rick Bozzio is any indication.

Drake has its stars, but, off its showing against a strong Lincoln of San Francisco unit, the San Rafael High defense may be the best around. With a special emphasis on crisp tackling and pursuit, the Red and White are capable of stifling even powerful offenses, as the Lincoln Mustangs readily conceded after the 33-0 pasting Saturday morning on losers field.

Lanky lineman Duke Bessee triggered the team's pyroantics with a five yard fumble recovery jaunt into the end zone. This opened the blood gates for an offensive splurge led by quarterback Dirk Gansloser and running backs Scott Duncan and Mark Farrar.

The Trio's ability to convert the defense-induced turnovers into touchdowns gives coach Bob Muster a good chance of ending Terra Linda's long standing dominance in the MCAL, assuming the Bulldogs continue winning.

Montgomery, the third Sonoma County team to play against MCAL members Saturday, will offer San Rafael a stern test.

Oregon Runner Named Pac-8 Back Of Week

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Speedy tailback Bobby Moore of Oregon, who rushed for a school record of 249 yards against Utah, is the Pacific-8 Conference back of the week.

The 6-2, 212-pound senior from Tacoma, Wash., also caught three passes, including a 34-yarder for a touchdown, and had a 35-yard touchdown run nullified on a penalty.

PLAYER AGENT STEVE ARNOLD

He Makes Pro Owners Jumpy

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Professional football should take a look at pro baseball and change its draft system, says Steve Arnold, a man who makes owners of professional teams jumpy every time he comes around.

Arnold, one of the co-founders of Pro Sports, Inc., a firm which represents players in owner-player dealings, has moved west to open Steve Arnold Enterprises in Corte Madera.

He and Marty Blackman founded Pro Sports, Inc., seven years ago, the first firm to deal solely with professional athletics. Among the players under contract with Pro Sports are Jim Brown, John Unitas, Bubba Smith, Lance Alworth, Jim Maloney. There are more than 100 players, mostly football and basketball men, under contract with Pro Sports, Inc.

Blackman has remained in New York to start his own business.

Arnold, a handsome, curly haired man of 33, finds it objectionable the way players are signed in the National Football League.

"When a player is drafted by a team," says Arnold, "he has to play for that team or not in the league at all." Citing the recent San Francisco 49ers — Tim Anderson case, Arnold said, "Anderson and his agent couldn't get together with the 49ers, so he decided to play in the Canadian League. If he ever wanted to play in the NFL he would have to play for the 49ers."

Baseball has a better plan, said Arnold. If a player drafted by a team doesn't want to sign with that team, his name goes on a list and he's eligible for a secondary draft later. "Football should do the same thing," he said.

Arnold and Blackman are both Columbia Law School graduates who went into practice as regular lawyers before forming Pro Sports, Inc. It was the first of the companies to represent athletes but now there are about 50 such businesses, according to Arnold's estimation.

Pro Sports, Inc., set up an intricate network scouting system, with Blackman and Arnold searching out the best collegiate talent, signing contracts for their services, and then waiting for the player draft. They handled all negotiations for the athlete and earned usually 10 per cent of the agreed upon contract between player and team.

Here's a rich example:

One of Arnold's clients was LaSalle's basketball star Larry Cannon who eventually signed a four-year contract reportedly calling for an excess of $250,000 with the Miami Floridians of the American Basketball Association. On that deal, Arnold came out with about $25,000. Not bad, eh?

Arnold recalled how coldly player agents were greeted by the late Vince Lombardi who preferred to talk to the players himself when he was coach-general manager of the Green Bay Packers.

"One thing about Lombardi," said Arnold, "was his ability to change with the times. At first he wouldn't even talk to an agent, but later he realized player representatives were here to stay. It got to the point, eventually, when he needed a representative himself, and I wound up representing him on endorsements and television commercials.

"He was quite a guy, and what a negotiator. Wow!" declared Arnold.

Arnold said he thinks prices are coming down yearly on what rookies are receiving to sign pro football contracts, but admits that basketball players are highly overpaid for their services. But, like football, prices will come down after the eventual merger of the ABA and National Basketball Association, he feels.

Arnold is representing five members of the Oakland Raiders team — tight end Ray Chester, defensive tackle Art Thoms, guard George Buehler, linebacker Gerald Irons, defensive end Tony Klein. He isn't currently representing any of the 49ers.

There can be some problems when contingencies are written into player contracts, where players earn more pay for running or passing more than a certain figure, or win NFL honors. Arnold laughed when he recalled an early situation when contingencies caused some quick negotiations in a huddle between players of one team in the early stages of the American Football League.

The player needed 1,000 yards to earn himself an additional $5,000 and going into the last game of the season he had 930, said Arnold. He kept trying to get the quarterback to give him the ball more and finally the quarterback told him they had to win the game, the heck with yardage. In desperation, he told the quarterback he would give him $1,000 if he passed the mark. The quarterback fed him the ball more and they both got the extra money.

Jittery Investors Send Market Down

Robert B. Johnson, a general partner of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, said some institutions are concerned about what Phase Two of President Nixon's economic policies will entail and organized labor's attack on the program in general.

Labor leaders have complained that Nixon's economic reforms are lopsided in favor of big business, and that more should be done for the average working man.

Brown-Forman Distillers "B," by far the most active Amex issues, was ahead fractionally on about 50,000 shares.

RCA, the most active NYSE stock, gained 7-8 after climbing more than 2 points Monday in the wake of an announcement that it was discarding most of the computer business. Analysts said the move was likely to benefit RCA over the long run.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Easier Mortgages Benefit Builders

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold City Investing at a considerable loss. It has come back about 10 points. Should I sell now or continue to hold? — B.P.

A. The recent move by the Federal Home Loan Bank authorizing savings and loan to grant conventional loans with 5 per cent down payments could be an important factor for companies such as City Investing. Other recent moves by the government to hold mortgage rates down should help maintain the current high rate of building. City Investing's real estate subsidiaries, General Development and Guerdon Industries, should contribute importantly to expected earnings improvement this year. Shares should be held for continued recovery.

Q. I am a recent widow with a 6-month-old child. Insurance worth $100,000 and Social Security are my total resources. American General Bond Fund has been suggested as a safe tax-free income investment. Do you think this would be a wise move? — M.E.

A. This closed-end bond fund trades on the NYSE at about a 10 per cent premium over the asset value of its portfolio. And although its indicated dividend return is one of the more generous within this group it is not tax free. A bond fund can in no way guarantee that your capital will be intact when you decide to sell your shares. Nor is the current high rate of return a certainty. However, by investing in good quality bonds you are relatively assured that at maturity your capital will be repaid at par value and in the intervening years a known interest income will be received.

In your case, I would suggest older discount bonds paying somewhat lower current income but giving you a capital gain at maturity. Approximately $20,000 in each of the following: Alcoa 6s of 1992, GMAC 6¼s of 1988, International Nickel 6.85s of 1993 and Sears Roe. Accept. 5s of 1982 would have a face value of $95,000 at maturities, 11 to 22 years hence. Current return on the investment would be $5,675.
